Crommelin Gave Press Confidential Navy Letter

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Capt. John G. Crommelin, naval aviator, last night revealed it was he who gave to newsmen on Monday "confidential" Navy correspondence critical of policies of the Department of Defense.

The Navy had ordered an investigation to determine who had "leaked" the correspondence and had said disciplinary action would follow.

Captain Crommelin earlier had charged the Navy's welfare was being endangered by Defense policies and had said he would risk court-martial to get the matter into the open.

"Fear for Security"

In a statement to the United Press last night, he said he had given the "confidential" correspondence to the United Press, the Associated Press and the International News Service because he considered the step "necessary to the interests of national security."

The correspondence consisted of a letter written by Vice Admiral Gerald F. Bogan, commander of the First Task Fleet in the Pacific, and forwarded "through channels" to Secretary of the Navy Matthews.

The Bogan letter expressed "fear for the security of our country if the policies followed in the Department of Defense" are not changed drastically. Bogan charged the Nation was being "sold a false bill of goods" and that the morale of the Navy had been shattered by cutting the fleet to build up strategic air power.

"No Idea for Publication"

Admiral Arthur W. Radford, Pacific Fleet commander, and Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, Chief of Naval Operations, forwarded the letter to Matthews with comments of their own. They conceded that a large number of naval officers shared Bogan's views, and they appeared to back some of his charges by implication. Denfeld later said his comments should not be taken as approving Bogan's statements.

Yesterday, Secretary Matthews told reporters he did not know "officially" who gave out the documents and had "no idea for publication who did it."

Only a few hours later, Captain Crommelin issued his statement revealing he had made the letter and its "indorsements" public.

He said that in releasing copies

Henrich's 9th Inning Homer Puts Yanks 1-Up in Series, 1-0

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Yankee Stadium, New York, Oct. 5.—Tommy Henrich, relic of the Old Guard Yankees, today smote a ninth-inning home run into the happy laps of the right field spectators and collapsed the Dodgers, 1 to 0, in the opening game of the World Series.

First among the crowd of the 66,224 to concede was big Don Newcombe, 220-pound righthander of the Dodgers, who with a count of two balls and no strikes on Henrich, had tempted him with a fast pitch.

As Henrich's bat cracked loudly against the offering, Newcombe took one sorrowful look, peeled off his glove and was starting for the dugout before the ball was scarcely on its way to home run territory.

His Greatest Game

For Newcombe, who had fanned 11 Yankees, it was sudden, anguished defeat in his grim duel with Yankee Allie Reynolds, who on this day delivered the peak pitching effort of his career.

Reynolds, husky son of an Oklahoma Indian preacher and regarded as a high gamble in the Yankees' pitching program, held the Dodgers to a mere two hits, spaced six innings apart, to write his name high in world series annals.

That was the ball game, dominated by the two pitching giants, each aware that one run would probably beat him as it did victimize Newcombe when he had to deal with Henrich, the first Yankee to face him in the ninth.

Eleven strikeouts, the fast-balling Newcombe threw at the Yankees in his brave try at shutting 'em out. Twice he retired the side on strikes. Only two Yankees did he permit as far as second base in those first eight innings. But in Reynolds he was finding another guy who wouldn't yield.

He Fans Nine Dodgers

Unable to boast Newcombe's fiery speed, Reynolds pitched the cannier game, liberally dosing his fast pitches with curve balls, and he may have owned a one-hitter save for a misjudged fly by Spider Jorgeson that Johnny Lindell permitted to drop for two bases in the first inning.

Six innings later, the Dodgers' Peewee Reese got the only legitimate hit Reynolds allowed, a single over second in the eighth. More effective as the game progressed, and keeping his relief man, Joe Page, tethered to the bullpen, Reynolds achieved nine strikeouts

Oct. 15 Set As 'Target' To Adjourn

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

House and Senate leaders, keeping their fingers crossed, have set Saturday, October 15, as an informal "target date" for adjournment of Congress.

Senate leaders, plagued by absenteeism and with at least three sharp floor controversies ahead, declined to make the date "official," however.

A retake of Tuesday's hairbreadth farm bill vote, a battle over President Truman's proposed "Point 4" guarantees, and a final melee over liberalizing the Displaced Persons Act, made it highly uncertain whether the Senate will make the grade.

Housing Bill Revised

The absentee dilemma, which forced recommittal of the farm bill Tuesday and casts a session's end shadow over the fate of DP legislation, meanwhile took its toll of another bill.

The so-called "middle-class" housing bill, scheduled as a "must," was stripped back to little more than extension of the Federal home loan insurance program and pushed quickly through the Senate.

Senate leaders explained that the 11th-hour revision was voted by the Banking Committee (1) to enable a five-man subcommittee to leave on a European housing survey Friday and (2) to put over until next year controversial expansions in the program.

Senate Banking Chairman Maybank (D., S. C.), said the modest-income housing bill will remain intact on the calendar, while his committee takes more time to study its controversial features.

Senators Go into Huddle

The bill in its liberalized form had been slated for passage immediately after Senate approval of REA loans for expansion of telephone service in rural areas.

But as debate on the phone measure dragged on, the Senate Banking Committee, five members of which will leave for Europe Friday, held a quick huddle and reported the foreshortened substitute. Maybank called it up immediately after passage of the telephone bill, and it zipped through the Senate in five minutes.

A Senate Appropriations Committee study of ECA operations in Europe, tentatively slated to start October 11, meanwhile threatened to aggravate the already large number of absences.

As a result, it may be touch and go whether the Administration leadership can command enough votes to discharge the Judiciary Committee from its grip on the stalemated DP bill, and a virtual certainty it could not produce the 64 votes now needed for cloture.

Average 20 a Day

Opponents of the discharge motion yesterday claimed at least 38 votes, but conceded all of them may not be present.

Leadership spokesman said it boils down to a question of which side can get their votes on deck.

After months of unbroken session, Senators started leaving the Senate in waves late this summer. Since then the number of absences has averaged about 10 on the Republican side to 8 to 12 on the Democratic.

Usually it is a 50-50 proposition, with the number of absentee opponents roughly offsetting absent votes in support of a bill.

Recently, however, it has been impossible for party poll takers to be sure in advance of the approximate vote. A sample upset came Tuesday when the leadership missed defeating the 90 percent farm parity amendment by only

House Votes to Extend Old-Age Pensions To 11,000,000 More

Senate Won't Act On Measure Until '50; Benefits Hiked 70%, Cost 200%

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

President Truman's "Fair Deal" program chalked up a major victory yesterday when the House voted 333 to 14 for a vastly increased social security system.

The measure would bring 11,000,000 more persons under old-age pensions, increase benefits by 70 to 80 percent, and will cost, after 20 years, three times larger payroll taxes.

The measure is still to be considered by the Senate Finance Committee, and acted upon by the Senate which does not plan to take it up until next January.

The compromise social security measure, which had Administration backing, meets many of the Chief Executive's Fair Deal demands but it omits one of President Truman's major recommendations—public aid for all needy persons.

GOP Substitute Beaten

It sailed through the House with only 14 votes against it, and one person voting "present," after a GOP substitute offered by Representative Noah M. Mason (R., Ill.) was defeated 232 to 113.

The GOP plan would have expanded social security but at a slower gait.

The bill would make the most drastic changes in the Social Security Law since its enactment in 1935. Here are its major provisions:

1. Increase social security taxes from the present one percent each on employers and employes to 1½ percent on January 1, 1950; 2 percent each on January 1, 1951; 2½ percent on January 1, 1960; 3 percent on January 1, 1965; and 3¼ percent each on January 1, 1970.

2. Collect the taxes on the first $3600 of an employe's annual income instead of the first $3000 as at present. The employer matches the employe's tax.

Would Cover Self-Employed

3. Broaden coverage to include about 11 million more persons, bringing total coverage to about 46 million. The newly covered would be self-employed—other than doctors, lawyers, dentists and certain other professionals; domestic workers whose cash earnings exceed $26 in any three-month period; employes in non-profit institutions; State and local government employes where there is a Federal-State agreement; and miscellaneous others.

4. Repeal the law passed last year exempting life insurance and other commission salesmen, driver-lessees of taxicabs and others not on a straight salary basis from coverage.

5. Increase the benefits both for those already drawing retirement pay and for those who will go on the rolls in the future. The increases would average about 70 percent for those on the rolls now and about 80 percent for those who would draw benefits in the future.

Minimum Up from $10 to $25

6. Increase the minimum benefit from $10 to $25 a month. The maximum that could be paid to any family would be increased from the present $85 to $150 a month.

7. Provide benefits for total and permanent disability, regardless of age, on the same basis as that provided for a person who has reached the retirement age of 65.

8. Permit a person who is 65 or older to earn up to $50 a month without sacrificing his retirement benefits. Under present law those

U. S. Peace Efforts Shifted From Steel to Coal Strike

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The Federal government temporarily lost interest in the steel strike yesterday, and concentrated its peace efforts on the 17-day soft coal walkout.

Cyrus S. Ching, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, urged John L. Lewis, boss of the 400,000 striking miners, and the major spokesmen for the bituminous coal industry to meet with him here Friday.

Management representatives quickly accepted the mediation bid. A Lewis spokesman said the union head would have no statement last night.

Ching told a press conference that formal Government action on the 5-day steel strike was unlikely until next week. The Conciliation Service, he said, was turning its attention to the coal strike simply because the country would be running into a national emergency for lack of coal before reaching a national crisis in steel.

"It's obvious you can't operate steel mills without coal," Ching said. He added that even though there is a large amount of coal above the ground—estimated to be over a month's supply—"some people are already being affected" by the coal strike.

The Conciliation chief made no specific references to the pinch in coal, but wire services reported from Ohio that the Universal Sewer Pipe Corp. plant at New Philadelphia, and the clay plant of Robinson & Sons at Ulrichsville, had closed for lack of coal.

Ching, in reply to a question, said his action was not at the behest of the White House, but rather routine action on the part of the mediation service. He pointed out that the soft coal dispute dates back to May, and that this was the first time the Federal Government was entering the controversy.

Even so, with large supplies of coal above ground, Ching's move aroused speculation that, should the mediation sessions fail, the White House might create a coal industry fact-finding board to investigate the dispute and recommend a settlement. The heavy stockpile of coal would permit the board a reasonable amount of time to carry out its inquiry, whereas if the White House waited until the coal supplies ran out, it

Soviets Plan New Stand on Arms Control

Lake Success, N. Y., Oct. 5 (U.P.).—Russia told the United Nations Security Council today that it is planning to offer a new proposal on the control of world armaments.

The announcement was made by Jacob A. Malik, who arrived here yesterday from the Soviet.

Malik made the statement in urging postponement of council debate on a plan for a world census of nonatomic weapons.

The census plan, originally proposed by France, won majority support in the U. N. Commission for Conventional Armaments, but was strongly opposed by Russia on grounds that a census was meaningless unless a count also was made of atom stockpiles.

Delegates had been awaiting today's meeting to see whether Malik would announce any change in the Soviet demand for an atom census now that Russia apparently has made an atom bomb.

Malik explained he had not had time to brush up on latest U. N. debate on arms control. He re-

Pact Nations Order Unified Defense Plans

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

Defense Ministers of the Atlantic Pact countries ordered their military commanders yesterday to work out unified defense plans for the whole North Atlantic area.

Their decision meant that all planning against a possible Soviet attack must be carried out hereafter on an integrated basis, instead of by each country for itself.

A communique issued after a 5½-hour meeting at the Pentagon reiterated the desire of the United States, Canada and the 10 pact nations of Europe "to make the North Atlantic area peaceful through united strength."

Arms Aid Qualification

"All agreed," said the communique, "that each party must do its part as determined by its position and its resources to contribute to the common security of all. The principle of integrated defense was accepted as the governing factor in the planning."

Unless the Europeans had accepted this principle, they could not possibly have qualified for almost a billion dollars' worth of American arms and military aid just authorized by Congress.

For Congress specified, in writing the act, that all but 100 million dollars of the aid funds would be withheld until the 12 allies had worked out an integrated defense system and had obtained presidential approval.

May Delay Certification

The Senate-House conference report on the arms bill explained "integrated defense" by saying:

"No one nation in the group must aspire to perpetuate or expand its various military components for purely national considerations . . . For some this may require submission to a secondary status in certain types of armament. For some it may require specialization in military activities that would not be preferred if a free choice were made on a purely national basis.

"All must be wlling to give up

Bolling C-47 Missing With 9 Area Men

Seven airmen and two soldiers from Washington area bases are missing and presumed down in a C-47 transport en route from Bolling Air Force Base to Mobile, Ala.

The twin-engined craft took off from Bolling at 8:55 a. m. yesterday, and was due to land at Brookley Air Force Base near Mobile at about 1:24 p. m. The plane has not been heard from since it left the ground.

All seven airmen were stationed at Bolling. Two Army hitchikers aboard were from Fort Meade and Fort Belvoir.

Bolling Air Force officers released the names of six occupants whose next of kin have been notified. They are:

Capt. John W. Censor, pilot, 27, of 4206 Wheeler rd. se., a pilot training instructor at Bolling for the past year.

First Lieut. Frank J. Clark, 26, copilot, who lives at 50 Danbury st. se.

Capt. John J. Jett, 31, of 1600 Fort Davis pl. se.

Lieut. Charles W. Cross, 26, of 1014 Barnaby ter. se.

Tech. Sergt. Walter E. Cosby, 27, of 331 Anacostia rd. se.

Staff Sergt. Reginald E. Silva, 29, of 2927 First st. se. The other three men aboard are all enlisted men.

2 Congressmen Robbed of $5000 On Spanish Train

Madrid, Oct. 5 (AP).—Representative Richards (D., S. C.) said today he literally lost his pants on a train in Spain last Sunday.

Spanish police said he and his traveling companion, Representative Keogh (D., N. Y.), were robbed of almost $5000 in cash, travelers' checks and Spanish currency when the Barcelona express on which they were riding stopped at Casetas, near Zaragoza.

The two Congressmen had hung their trousers near the Pullman window before retiring. The thief snatched Richards' pants and the money from Keogh's pockets while they slept at the tiny station.

Richards said his share of the loss was only about $200 and a gold wrist watch. "But the worst part was losing my pants," he said.

He had to borrow a pair of pants from Representative Gregory (D., Ky.) before he could get off at Bilbao.

The Congressmen are part of a group of five United States Representatives visiting Spain. They hoped to meet Generalissimo Franco to better United States-Spanish relations.

Democrats Launch Fight To Back Olds

By The Associated Press

The Democratic National Committee last night launched a fight for confirmation of Leland Olds for a third term on the Federal Power Commission.

Earlier, the Senate Commerce Committee had disregarded a plea from President Truman, voting 10 to 2 to reject Olds nomination. The Senate still must act.

Democratic Chairman William M. Boyle, jr., disclosed he has sent telegrams to all members of the committee and to state chairmen and vice chairmen asking them to let their Senators know that "the people want Olds confirmed."

Boyle noted that Mr. Truman wrote to the Senate Tuesday declaring that "powerful corporations" are opposing Olds, and he added:

"Federal Power Commissioner Olds has stood for what the Democratic Party has stood—the best interests of the general public in the public utility field. Defeat of his nomination would be a defeat for the millions of Americans who are entitled to fair power rates and a victory for the power lobbyists and the Republican Party."

The 10-2 committee vote against Olds—in which Democrats joined Republicans—made it doubtful the Senate would confirm Olds.

Chairman Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.) reported the unfavorable recommendation to the Senate, thus giving the chamber itself an opportunity to vote on

Forgetting Call For Jury Duty Costs $10 Fine

"Forgetting" to report for jury duty in District Court cost Max Zucker, 222 Underwood st. nw., a fine of $10 yesterday.

Zucker was due to appear in the court for jury duty Tuesday, but showed up apologetically yesterday—after the panels had been picked—to say he had forgotten all about it.

Judge Matthew F. McGuire asked Zucker what his business was. Zucker replied it was the clothing credit line.

"If I owed you $40 for a suit of clothes, would you forget about it?" asked the judge.

Zucker had no reply. It was then that the judge fined him $10. Zucker won't have to serve on the jury this month.

GI Insurance Dividend Date Moved Up to Pre-Yule Period

By The Associated Press

The Veterans' Administration may start paying the $2,800,000,000 GI insurance dividend before Christmas—at the rate of a million checks a week.

As soon as the bulk of those payments is out of the way, the agency will get to work on a second special dividend, the size of which has not yet been determined.

Veterans Administrator Carl R. Gray, jr., has ordered completion of the first dividend payment, to some 16 million World War II veterans, by next June 30 if possible.

The VA insurance section had expected to start the payments in January, on a 200,000-checks-a-day basis. But a spokesman said:

"There is a possibility that we might start them before the first of the year.

"We will go just as fast as we can, and if we can beat the January deadline we will."

About 12 million veterans have applied for the dividend since application blanks became available August 29.

"Dividend checks will go out roughly in the order that the applications were received—first come, first served," the spokesman said.

The maximum dividend is $528.

51 TNT-Loaded Dynamite Caps Sought as 1 Badly Hurts Boy

Fifty-one dangerous TNT-loaded dynamite caps, stolen Monday, may be in the possession of children in Falls Church, police there warned yesterday.

One of the caps exploded Tuesday and ripped part of the thumb and two fingers from the left hand of 10-year-old Clarence W. Case, 1020 Cedar la., Sleepy Hollow, near Falls Church.

It has not been determined whether the boy's eyesight has been damaged, his grandmother, Mrs. Elsie Case, said. He has been transferred from Arlington Hospital to Episcopal Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Hospital here.

The cap, a copper-encased cylinder about an inch and a half long, somewhat resembling a cartridge, blew up while the Case boy was picking at it with a nail in the living room of his home.

Police said the cap was one of 65 stolen from a parked jeep owned by the Roan & Poppelman construction firm. They are used to explode dynamite charges. The jeep had been parked near Oak st. school, Falls Church, which young Case attends. Police have accounted for 14 of the caps and are trying to trace the 51 still missing.

Young Case, police found, was given the cap by a 6-year-old boy who lives in his block. The 6-year-old said he received it from schoolmates at St. James parochial school, about four blocks from Oak st. school.

At the parochial school, police recovered seven of the missing caps from five second-graders. One of the boys told police he had more of them at his home. They called his mother and she swept six more from under a living room davenport.

The boys told police they found the shiny objects on the bank of Tripp's Run, near Oak st., in Falls Church.

One of the caps recovered bore teeth marks, indicating a boy had bit into it. He was lucky, police said, for the caps explode usually with only a slight bit of pressure. Police said they have several leads on other boys who may have the deadly devices in their possession.

U. S. Challenges Old 'Separate But Equal' Segregation Rule

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

The Administration carried its civil rights battle to the Supreme Court yesterday in a challenge to the 50-year-old "separate but equal" facilities basis of segregation in the United States.

In a brief filed with the court, the Justice Department called that segregation doctrine "a constitutional anachronism which no longer deserves a place in our law."

It is this doctrine on which segregation has been legally based for schools, restaurants, theaters and other public gathering places in Washington and elsewhere in the Nation.

The brief was filed by Solicitor General Philip B. Perlman. Attorney General J. Howard McGrath said last night it was "in line with my own views." McGrath said he had not talked to President Truman about the case, but thought it unnecessary. The Justice Department began work on the brief months ago, while Tom C. Clark, new Supreme Court Justice, was Attorney General.

The Justice Department, though nominally a defendant in a segregation case due to be argued this month before the court, yesterday

Ex-Navy Pilots Set Endurance Flight Record

Yuma, Ariz., Oct. 5 (U.P.).—Former Navy fliers Bob Woodhouse and Woody Jo[illegible]ard set a new world record for sustained endurance flying at 9:18 p. m. (EST) tonight when they passed their 1008th hour in the air.

The two Yuma businessmen shattered the mark set last spring by Bill Barris and Dick Riedel, Fullerton, Calif., pilots.

Woodhouse, 26, and Jongeward, 31, intend to remain in the air until October 12, Columbus Day, provided their two-place Aeronca plane functions as smoothly as it has since takeoff, August 24.

VA Revokes Order On GI Schooling

By The Associated Press

The Veterans Administration cancelled yesterday its controversial order restricting the rights of veterans to change courses of study under the GI bill.

Veterans Administrator Carl R. Gray, jr., issued a new set of regulations permitting many veterans to change courses and schools, or to take postgraduate study, or to enroll in schools established since September, 1944, without providing special "justification."

The older order, now abolished, required "justification" in such cases.

The new regulations continue a ban on avocational or recreational courses.

Under this ban, the Government will not pay tuition, or other GI bill benefits, for a course of study pursued as a pleasure rather than as training for an occupation.

The ban was adopted after testimony about GI courses in ballroom dancing and drink-mixing.

The order which Gray cancelled was issue in mid-September. Veterans' organizations had complained that it threatened to cut off from GI benefits many veterans who had changed courses with the opening of schools this fall.

In announcing his revised order, Gray said in a statement that he "fully intends to see that veterans receive every benefit under the GI bill to which they are entitled."

He added:

"It is my further responsibility not to give veterans any benefits specifically denied them by the Congress."

The new order becomes effective November 1. Beginning on that date, Gray said, any veteran desiring additional educational training benefits, or wishing to change his course or institution, must show in his application the name of the course and the institution.

He said veterans otherwise eligible and whose conduct and progress have been satisfactory, will be allowed to change to any course or get additional training that is "commonly recognized as being in the same general field as the original education or job objective or a normally related progressive objective."

In China

Two Slayings Are Charged To Explorer

Canton, China, Oct. 5 (AP).—An American explorer today was charged with the fatal shooting of two companions at a drinking party that began as a gay celebration of a wedding anniversary.

Clark

Explorer Leonard Clark, 42, San Francisco, recovering from a chest wound, was taken to Canton's Detention House protesting his innocence.

He had just been accused in District Court of manslaughter in the deaths of Willard Freeman, 41, Bridgewater, Mass., and Harold Harris, 45, British subject, at Freeman's home September 8.

In a jail interview, he gave for the first time his version of what happened in an upstairs bedroom of Freeman's home.

Only a short time before he had called on his friend Freeman, a Canton businessman, he had returned from western China, where he said he had discovered the world's highest mountain in the Amne Machin Range.

He had gone to Freeman's home to help him celebrate Freeman's fourth wedding anniversary.

"We had one hell of a drunken party," Clark related. "Bill got his drunken jealousy idea again—it had cropped up once before two weeks earlier. He accused me and Maya (Freeman's wife) of being in love."

Clark said he called Freeman a liar and "the next thing I knew Harris and Bill were beating hell out of me."

"Harris was the real aggressor," he continued. "He hit me on the head. Then I was knocked down to the floor and Bill began kicking me. I managed to get up, but they both kept at me."

"Then I felt what seemed to be a sharp, heavy blow on the chest, and passed out."

Clark said he did not know until recently that Freeman and Harris were dead. He declared that Mrs. Freeman, who had said she had retired and heard no shooting that night, was not in the room.

Clark expressed concern when told police did not expect the trial to begin for several weeks. He said he did not want to be in Canton when the Chinese Communists take the city.

"I don't mind them shooting me, but they'd torture me for the work I did for the O. S. S. behind Japanese lines during the war," he added. "My reports about the Reds weren't favorable to them."

Clark was with the Office of Strategic Services in China during the war.

He asked that Gen. William Donovan, head of the O. S. S. during the war, be notified of his plight.

(In New York, Donovan said he thought Clark's fears were well founded and he had asked the State Department to look out for Clark. He said the department told him that a representative would be sent to Canton from Hongkong to see what could be done.)

aboard to fly for nine hours. The flight, which was charted via radio airways to Richmond and thence direct to Mobile, had a total distance of 870 miles.

Air Sea Rescue at Westover Air Force Base in Massachusetts has sent one B-17, two PBY seaplanes and one C-82 with paradoctors aboard to join all available Bolling planes in a search for the missing craft.

Bolling officers said the plane was on a proficiency flight. An extra flight crew was aboard to pick up a plane at Mobile and return with it to Bolling.

The pilot, Captain Censor, who is married to the former Laurene A. Broberg of Elgin, Ill., and attended Loras College in Illinois, is considered to be a top-notch pilot, Bolling officers said. He has two young sons, John L. Censor and George Censor.

Military planes are required to report their positions every half hour while on cross country flights. However, Air Force officials said, if the radio goes bad and the weather remains favorable, the plane may continue on its route.

3 Republicans Ask Extension Of AEC Probe

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Three Republican Senators pressed yesterday for continuation of a congressional investigation into charges of "incredible mismanagement" on the part of the Atomic Energy Commission. They will seek a final decision from the Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy today.

Committee Chairman Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) previously indicated that the investigation had run on long enough, through some 44 sessions during the summer.

But it was not clear last night whether he would seek a vote on the question today, or yield to arguments that the further investigations would require only a few days in closed sessions of the committee.

Yesterday's meeting found Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), the man who originally made the charges against the AEC, joined by Senators William F. Knowland (R., Calif.) and Eugene D. Millikin (R., Colo.).

They asserted that many times in the open sessions of the investigation important lines of inquiry had to be dropped because they were about to lead into secret fields. Their expectation was that the matters would be pursued in executive session. Indeed, they asserted, they had been promised as much.

The principal question he wishes to look into, Hickenlooper said yesterday, relates to the progress of the AEC in moving ahead on weapons production at maximum speed, through the erection of new facilities and development of new projects.

Knowland indicated to reporters that the further investigation would require only "three days" Hickenlooper agreed, with the qualification, "if only the witnesses and the committee will get down to business."

But McMahon, acting on the promise that the hearings were ended, has prepared a report on the investigation and had hoped to have its general conclusions accepted by a majority of the committee. The report points to some errors of the AEC but denies that any proof of Hickenlooper's charges was adduced.

President to Sign Arms Aid Bill Today

President Truman today will sign the bill authorizing $1,314,010,000 for arms aid to North Atlantic Pact nations.

Veto Army's Racial Plans, Truman Urged

President Truman yesterday was urged to overrule Secretary of Defense Johnson and disapprove the new Army program for treatment of Negro enlisted men "because of its failure to spell out the elimination of segregation."

In a letter to the Chief Executive, Grant Reynolds and A. Philip Randolph, cochairmen of the Committee Against Jim Crow in Military Service and Training, accused Army officials of "brazen insubordination to the stated goal of the Commander in Chief" by their "obstinate retention of all-Negro units and of racial quotas on enlistments."

Reynolds and Randolph declared: "This latest paper program is another example of Army flimflam. It is a blood brother of the discredited and deceitful Gillem Board report. Though appearing to introduce the principle of integration into Army schools and into the system of promotions, these concessions are decidedly minor.

"At best they will make Army life a bit easier for a few obsequious careerists who never challenge the degrading Jim Crow customs in order to advance personally . . .

"At the time of your ow executive order of July 26, 1948, you stated that it contemplated the eventual abolition of segregation. Because the Army plan will not materially further that goal, we believe that you are morally obligated to reject it and to demand a policy of genuine integration."

Ham Fisher Quotes Truman As Old Fan of Joe Palooka's

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

The first time he met President Truman, Ham Fisher said, the Chief Executive told him he had been reading "Joe Palooka" since the day Joe walked into Knobby Walsh's haberdashery store for his first job.

Fisher is in Washington this week with other leading cartoonists helping promote the sale of United States Savings Bonds.

"Joe Palooka," which Fisher said is now carried in 860 newspapers, is in the front rank of the comic strips, and Palooka is doubtless the most famous boxer in history, surpassing Louis, Dempsey and Tunney combined.

The late President Franklin Roosevelt was also a Palooka fan. On one occasion, he thanked Fisher for "helping me put across the draft."

Roosevelt was referring to the fact that in 1939, Fisher, who was an interventionist, enlisted Joe in the Army from his job as world's heavyweight champion.

From time to time the strip has also had its say for such causes as racial tolerance. Last April citizens of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., where the strip was created, gratefully changed the name of a nearby peak to "Mount Joe Palooka" and put up a plaque "Dedicated to Joe Palooks, champion of Democracy."

Fisher himself has had a storybook career. He says he barely got through high school, having spent all his spare time drawing pictures. He was laborer, truck driver and salesman of everything from neckties to insurance.

Finally he became salesman for a feature syndicate and used the opportunity to tell the editors that he was about to bring them "the most colossal, terrific and stupendous feature of all time." In 25 days he sold his own strip to editors in 30 big cities.

And, as Fisher himself has remarked: "After that, Joe was no palooka."

Drinks From Spray Gun Send 8 Children to Stomach Pump

Eight Falls Church children, the eldest 7 years old, yesterday had a fine time drinking from an old spray gun until their mothers learned they might have poisoned themselves.

Without further ado, they were sped to Children's Hospital, where—as a safety measure—their stomachs were pumped. Last night they were romping again, good as new.

Around noon, reported Mrs. Marie Deibler, of 400 Rosemary lane, the children were playing under her back porch. One found his way into her basement, emerging with a spray gun that had been used, she thinks, on Japanese beetles about three years ago.

The gang then trooped to a neighbor's home, Mrs. Deibler said, where they filled the spray gun with water and proceeded to drink from the nozzle.

"All eight of them," said Mrs. Deibler.

When they returned to her yard, dragging the spray gun with them, she learned they had been drinking from it. A call to a physician brought the warning that they might have poisoned themselves.

It was then that Mrs. Deibler called their mothers, and in a short time the children were in Children's Hospital noisily awaiting their turn at the stomach pump. None was found to be in danger and all were released.

The children are Mrs. Deibler's son, Philip, 4; Ben Fisher, 6, son of Joseph and Margaret Fisher, 1302 Trace pl.; Penny Adams, 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Adams, 411 Jackson st.; April Melbourne, 3, daughter of Roy and Virginia Melbourne, 408 Jackson st.; Robert Rhoads, 4½, son of Lee and Ann Rhoads, 407 Rosemary lane; Laurie, 3, and John Hyde, 4½, sons of Mr. and Mrs. John Hyde, 316 Rosemary lane, and Gordon Strickler, 4, son of Marshall and Mary Strickler, 300 Rosemary lane.

Farm Bill Up For Rewriting In Committee

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The Senate Agriculture Committee will meet today to rewrite its long-range farm bill, recommitted to it after a stormy fight late Tuesday.

Predictions last night were that the committee will come up Friday with a measure providing a new sliding scale of price supports similar to that beaten Tuesday night.

Committee members favoring sliding scale supports outnumber those in favor of rigid supports at 90 percent of parity by 10 to 3.

The same supporters of the sliding scale declare they will have enough votes when the Senate again takes up the farm program to defeat those seeking support of the six basic crops at a rigid 90 percent.

Barkley Broke Tie

Tuesday night it took the vote of Vice President Alben W. Barkley to break a 37-to-37 tie, and replace the sliding scale with a rigid support program.

Missing from the floor at the vote, however, were several Senators outspokenly favorable to the original proposal of Senator Clinton P. Anderson (D., New Mex.), for a sliding scale.

These included such members as Senators Taft (R., Ohio), Dulles (R., N. Y.), Ellender (D., La.) and others.

Another development likely to influence votes on the measure was the call for a meeting here this week of State presidents of the American Farm Bureau Federation. The federation favors a sliding scale of price supports, and went down fighting for that issue Tuesday. It carries a lot of weight in some States represented by Senators who voted for rigid price levels Tuesday.

An interesting feature of the Tuesday vote was the pronounced disagreement among Republican Senators who took part a week previously in a Republican Midwest Farm Rally at Sioux City, Iowa.

Corn vs. Cotton, Wheat

Three Senators who attended the rally, Aiken of Vermont, Hickenlooper of Iowa and Thye of Minnesota, voted for the Anderson plan; three others, Butler of Nebraska, Young of North Dakota and Mundt of South Dakota, voted against it. A seventh, Wherry of Nebraska, was absent.

Senators from corn-producing States voted almost as a group against rigid price supports. Those from cotton and wheat States voted as a group for rigid supports.

Experts agree that the acreage restrictions and marketing quotas necessary to proper enforcement of rigid 90-percent supports would be much more difficult to operate in corn States than in the others.

Corn seldom leaves the county in which it grows, making enforcement of marketing quotas extremely difficult.

House Would Add 11 Million To Old Age Pension Rolls

drawing benefits may earn only up to $14.99 a month in addition to their old-age pensions.

9. Give veterans of World War II an arbitrary wage credit of $160 per month for each month they spent in service. Under present law no such provision is made.

10. Revise the program under which Federal financial aid is given to the needy aged, the blind, and dependent children, to provide also for the needy who are permanently and totally disabled. Federal-State public assistance matching formulas would be revised to provide more money for States with low incomes.

Private Pensions a Threat

Final action came after two days of debate, much of it devoted to GOP warnings against a "welfare state."

Some of the Administration sponsors voiced the hope the legislation would ease the demands of some labor groups for special pension plans financed wholly by employers.

In its report to the House the Ways and Means Committee said that private company-financed programs endanger the Federal security system.

Pensions are the issue in the coal and steel walkouts. Congress will now watch to see what, if any, effect the House action may have upon strikes and threatened strikes over company-financed pensions.

Doughton Sees Benefit

Ways and Means Chairman Robert L. Doughton (D., N. C.), who authored the original social security bill in 1935, led the fight for the Administration measure.

He told the House the legislation would be "of lasting benefit to the stability and prosperity and well-being of the Nation." Congress, he said, was challenged to improve the Federal program in the face of growing demands for pension plans financed solely by employers.

Before the vote, both Democrats and Republicans joined in a standing ovation to the 85-year-old Doughton.

Until the Senate acts, it will be uncertain whether the coverage, newly extended to domestic workers, will mean the institution of a stamp book plan for 750,000 household servants and their housewife employes.

In most discussions of the measure it has been suggested that some form of a stamp book plan would be the most practicable method for housewives and their domestic servants to employ.

President Truman had asked for the coverage of some 20 million persons under old-age insurance, but the House bill left out farm operators and farm hands. Administration sponsors indicated that farmers were reluctant to be covered.

Opposing the bill on final passage were 2 Democrats and 12 Republicans. They were Representatives Byrnes (R., Wisc.) Case (R., S. Dak.), Church (R., Ill.), Clevenger (R., Ohio), Crawford (R., Mich.), Davis (D., Ga.), Eaton (R., N. J.), Gwinn (R., N. Y.), Hoffman (R., Mich.), McMillen (R., Ill.), Mason (R., Ill.), Wint Smith (R., Kas.), Howard W. Smith (D., Va.), and Taber (R., N. Y.).

Representative Rankin (D., Miss.) voted "present."

Southern Democrats, who have joined Republicans in opposing some Administration bills such as labor legislation, led the fight on the GOP social security measure and lined up almost solidly to help defeat it.

1000 Reported Seized In Prague Roundup

Prague, Oct. 5 (AP).—Reliable reports today said nearly 1000 Prague citizens were arrested in a big police roundup last night.

There was no official confirmation. The estimate of the number seized in the dragnet came from a person close to police sources.

Reasons for the arrests were not known.

Rebels Going To Bulgaria, Athens Says

Area of troop movements

Athens, Greece, Oct. 5 (AP).—The Communist-led Greek guerilla regime was reported here today to be shifting military forces from Albania to Bulgaria—from the western to the eastern flank of Yugoslavia.

There was no official announcement, but usually reliable intelligence advices said the guerilla headquarters already have been transferred to Communist Bulgaria, on the Black Sea, from Communist Albania, on the Adriatic.

Other sources said about 8000 guerillas are being shipped from Albania to Bulgaria by sea in the third major guerilla movement among Greece's northern neighbors of the long civil war.

Veteran observers said the Greek rebels, who are headed by Demetrius Partsalides, secretary-general of the Communist EAM, may be used from a Bulgarian base in the Russian-led Cominform's campaign against Yugoslav Premier Marshal Tito.

There were two other possibilities:

1. That civil warfare along the border, light since government troops drove the guerillas from the Grammos mountains into Albania recently, will be stepped up. (Greece's frontier with Bulgaria runs more than 200 miles, twice the length of the Greek-Albanian frontier.)

2. That Russia has written off Albania as a base of operations against Greece and Yugoslavia.

By The Associated Press

Legislation to guarantee private United States investments abroad under President Truman's "Point Four" program was approved yesterday by the House Banking Committee.

The legislation, already okayed by a Senate committee, is designed to encourage private enterprise to take part in the President's plan to help underdeveloped areas.

Guarantees were spelled out by the House group to assure:

1. Convertibility of profits into United States dollars to protect investors against blocked returns in foreign currency.

2. Compensation, in dollars, for loss resulting from expropriation, confiscation or seizure by foreign nations.

The bill places guarantee powers in the Export-Import Bank.

This portion of the Point Four plan, outlined by the President in his inaugural address last January, supplements a program of technical assistance for raising living standards of recipient nations.

A bill now before the House Foreign Affairs Committee calls for 35 million dollars of first-year technical aid in education, health, agriculture, labor and some 14 other fields. This phase would be carried out chiefly through technical missions.

Truman Blasts 'Subjugation' Under Statism

President Truman asserted yesterday that free people everywhere are "horrified to witness the subjugation of their fellow human beings by the totalitarian states."

"No group is being spared," he said, adding that "Protestants, Jews, Catholics and Orthodox are being crushed into submission."

The President's remarks were contained in a letter to John L. Sullivan, former Secretary of the Navy, in which he accepted the honorary chairmanship of Brotherhood Week, 1950. Sullivan is general chairman of Brotherhood Week being sponsored by the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

"It seems to me," Mr. Truman said, "that Americans can make no greater contribution to all mankind than to stand united, without a state-imposed uniformity, for the achievement of that peace and freedom for which all people everywhere pray."

He said respect for human dignity is the "central issue in the world struggle today" and that the United States is dedicated to the conviction that all people are entitled to equal rights and freedoms "even though they may differ in religious persuasion, in social and political views or in racial origin."

Canton Drive Launched by Red Troops

Hongkong, Oct. 15 (U.P.).—Chinese Communist troops today launched their long-delayed drive against Canton, capturing a key airfield and communications hub in Hunan Province and pushing to within 20 miles of Kukong, strategic city 120 miles to the north.

The Nationalist government ordered an emergency evacuation of civilians from Kukong as Red columns pressed in from the north and northeast in a double-pronged drive. Gunfire was audible and the atmosphere was tense within the city, which is the western anchor of the Nationalists' northern Kwangtung defense line above Canton.

Canton reports said the Ministry of Defense admited the loss of Chihkiang, communications point less than 300 miles northwest of Canton.

The Nationalist provisional government for Hunan was reported to have fled from Chihkiang 40 miles to the south.

Guard Asks 1951 Budget Of $169,500

The District National Guard is seeking a $169,500 budget for the 1951 fiscal year, including a $7950 salary increase for its commanding general.

The local militia's request, released yesterday by the Commissioners, is $78,300 more than current appropriations.

The new commander, Brig. Gen. William H. Abendroth, would receive $11,880 under the 1951 budget request, but would devote full time to the District Guard.

The retiring commanding general, Albert L. Cox, served on a part-time basis at $3,940 yearly.

The new salary sought is equivalent to the pay of an Army brigadier general with 26 years' service, plus subsistence and dependents' allowances.

Aside from requests for added personnel at Andrews Field and Sims Camp, the Guard is pretty much holding the line. It is not seeking funds for any major capital improvements.

D. C. Leaders Fete Wilner On Birthday

More than 550 District businessmen, civic leaders and city officials gathered last night to help Joseph A. Wilner, prominent merchant and community leader, celebrate his seventieth birthday at a testimonial dinner at the Mayflower Hotel.

"Uncle Joe" Wilner, as he is frequently called, was praised for his efforts on behalf of his coreligionists, his city and his country.

For the past 22 years Wilner has been president of the Adas Israel Congregation. He was also one of the founders of the Jewish Community Center and president of the Young Men's Hebrew Association and Grand Lodge No. 5 of B'nai B'rith.

At the same time, during his 45 years in Washington, he moved up from apprentice tailor to proprietor of one of the city's largest custom tailoring firms, supplementing this with diligent study of the law at National and Georgetown Universities. In 1920 he was admitted to the bar.

Years later, this training helped him with his duties on Draft Board No. 1 in the city, as a member of the Special Trial Board which held hearings on charges against a city fire chief and, presently, as a member of the Police Complaint Review Board. It was during these years that Wilner lost two sons in the service. The other two, Morton H., an attorney, and Paul R., a physician, also served in the Army and now have practices here.

Last night, Wilner received a laudatory message from John Russell Young, president of the District Board of Commissioners, and heard speeches attesting his worth "as a real man" from Austin F. Canfield, former president of the District Bar Association; William E. Leahy, District director of Selective Service; the Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, chaplain of the United States Senate; Rabbi Solomon Metz, spiritual leader of the congregation Wilner helped develop from 200 family members to 800, and Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld of the Washington Hebrew Congregation.

Presentations were made to the honor guest by Rabbi Joel Gessen on behalf of the Jewish Theological Seminary; Isaac Goldman, vice president of Wilner's congregation, and Abe Kay, president of the Louis D. Brandeis Zionist District.

Others who gathered to pay tribute to Wilner included Judge Alexander Holtzoff of District Court; Nathan Cayton, chief judge, Municipal Court of Appeals; Representative Celler (D., N. Y.), Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, former head of the District National Guard; Secretary of Interior Krug, Lieut. Gen. E. W. Rollings of the Air Force and Judge Milton Kronheim of Municipal Court.

During the affair, small-statured Wilner, known for his modest, mild manner, wandered through the banquet room shaking hands with those who gathered to honor him. When talk turned to his sons, he sobbed quietly.

Best Wishes for 'Uncle Joe' Wilner . . .

Reds Promise End of Reich Occupation

From Press Dispatches

Berlin, Oct. 5.—The East German government to be proclaimed Friday will have sovereign powers, and "be free of occupation troops," following the signing of a Soviet-German peace treaty, Soviet authorities pledged today.

Soviet authorities asserted one of the first duties of the new government would be the signing of a peace treaty. This would be followed by the withdrawal of occupation troops, even though the withdrawal might wait until late in 1950.

The Soviet Military Administration's official organ Taegliche Rundschau summarized the powers of the new government as follows:

"An independent government with its seat in Berlin, which will be responsible to the German people, and not high commissioners. It will not be hindered in its activities by the regulations of an occupation statute but will constitute a regime with which a peace treaty can be concluded.

To Have Own Foreign Policy

"The new regime will represent a territory that will be free from occupation troops after the signing of this treaty. The German government will control its own foreign policy without any interference from high commissioners."

A 14-man cabinet was nominated today for the new Communist East German government—with Gerhart Eisler as minister of propaganda.

German news sources reported the list.

Eisler is the 53-year-old German-born Communist leader who jumped bail on two prison sentences and escaped from the United States aboard the Polish ship Batory last May.

The Russian-backed Socialist Unity Party (SED), Communist Party of the eastern zone, has submitted the names of the proposed cabinet and a state president to zonal political groups for approval, it was reported.

Kastner for President

Prof. Hermann Kastner of the Liberal Democratic Party (LDP) was listed as the nominee for president, a figurehead office, and some cabinet positions were assigned others outside the SED.

Otto Grotewohl, cochairman of the SED since it was formed by a Russian-forced merger of the Socialists and Communists in 1946, was named as Chancellor, or Prime Minister.

The Soviet-licensed ADN News Agency announced the Communist-ruled German People's Council will convene at noon Friday as a "special chamber to bring a constitutional government of the German democratic republic into being."

Policy Statement

A policy statement pledged "special attention" to trade with the Soviet Union, and her eastern allies, unqualified acceptance of the loss of German territory to Poland, a ban on any activity to draw Germany into the Western European Union or the Atlantic Pact, immediate restoration of the unity and normal life of Berlin, equal rights for all citizens, including Nazis, and unhindered development of German peace industry and shipbuilding.

The platform pledged to put an immediate stop to dismantling German factories for reparations, though it made no mention of Russia's method of extracting reparations from current German production.

McCloy Calls Peace Talk Old Soviet Propaganda

Frankfurt, Germany, Oct. 5 (U.P.).—U. S. High Commissioner John J. McCloy today dismissed Russian hints of a separate peace treaty for the new East Reich and withdrawal of Red Army troops as "a favorite theme of Soviet propaganda for more than a year.

"The United States Government consistently has maintained that the peace treaty, when agreed upon by the Foreign Ministers, must be concluded with a government which is representative of the German people and honestly determined by free elections," he said.

Queuille Resigns In Wage-Price Row

Paris, Oct. 5 (AP).—Premier Henri Queuille resigned today as a result of wage and price problems growing out of devaluation of the franc. President Vincent Auriol will announce Thursday whether he will accept the resignation.

Queuille has held together a coalition of radical Socialists, Socialists and Popular Republicans for 13 months, the longest life of any French government since the Fourth Republic was formed after the war.

Queuille threw in the sponge when Daniel Mayer, Socialist Labor Minister, wrote what was described by well-informed sources as a virtual ultimatum demanding wage increases for labor well beyond what Queuille was prepared to grant.

The crisis exploded after weeks of bickering over the issue—ever since France devalued the franc from .30 to .28 cents in step with Britain's cheapening of her pound September 18.

Non-Communist as well as Communist unions have been demanding wage increases or cost-of-living bonuses to compensate for higher prices resulting from devaluation. They have been threatening a 24-hour token strike.

The demands split the cabinet. Mayer and other Socialists supported the labor demands. Several of the popular Republicans sided with them. Ever since the Communists were a serious political threat in France, the Socialists have been forced to compete for the labor vote.

But the conservative faction of the cabinet, led by the Radical Socialists, Queuille and Finance Minister Petsche, opposed wage raises as inflationary.

Last Saturday it was announced a compromise had been agreed. It included price reductions and rises in "abnormally low" wages only. But last night Mayer wrote the premier a three-page letter refusing to accept that formula.

Without Socialist support, Queuille is not able to command a majority in parliament. So he quit. Friends predicted the president would refuse the resignation, and that Queuille would go before parliament Saturday, give an accounting and announce his government's exit without a showdown vote. Parliament had not been scheduled to convene until October 18.

Von Manstein Trial

Nazi Acted On Orders, Defense Says

Hamburg, Germany, Oct. 5 (AP).—Defense Counsel at the war crimes trial of former German Field Marshal Erich von Manstein today urged the court to avoid establishing a precedent that a general officer is free to disobey the orders of his government.

Von Manstein began his defense before a British military tribunal which has the power to impose the death sentence. He has pleaded innocent to all 17 charges of war crimes against him.

He is the last of Hitler's top officers to be tried by Britain.

The prosecution argued that Von Manstein, first as Chief of Staff in Poland and later as commander of large army formations, was responsible for carrying out and even initiating atrocity orders.

Von Manstein's leading counsel, R. T. Paget, a Labor member of the British Parliament, argued it was "wrong to punish Von Manstein for obeying orders that as a soldier he was forced to obey."

Chicago Engineer To Take Lie Test In Rape-Slaying

Chicago, Oct. 5 (U.P.).—Ernest B. Knight, "model citizen" who tried to stage a holdup "just for a thrill," will submit to a lie detector test Monday in the rape-slaying last December of Roberta Rinearson, 10, it was disclosed today.

Knight

Knight, married and a $450-a-month designing engineer, already faces charges of armed robbery. He confessed that he thrust a gun into the automobile of a young college couple Saturday, and fled when they fought back.

Police said Knight also admitted he crept into the bedroom of his 20-year-old stepdaughter, Marla Bett, in La Salle, Ill., last April and ran away that time, too, when she screamed as he attempted to put adhesive tape over her mouth.

R-Reds F-Find Device To C-Cure Stammering

London, Oct. 5 (AP).—Moscow reported a new invention today—a gadget that cures stammering.

The Moscow radio described the device, brainchild of one Professor Gerasimov, as a pocket-sized affair with rubber tubes which attach to the wearer's ears. After treatments, speech impediments disappear, the broadcast said.

New Efforts Urged to Save German Plants

By The Associated Press

The State Department was urged by 44 Senators yesterday to try anew to halt the dismantling of German industrial plants as war reparations.

The British government reportedly has stepped up the rate of plant-wrecking and removal in its occupation zone, the Senators told Secretary of State Acheson in an unusual round-robin letter.

"We think that in all good faith the British government should have closed its program of dismantling German industry until the matter could have been re-examined as requested by the Congress of the United States," the letter said.

The signers included Taft (R., Ohio), McMahon (D., Conn.), Douglas (D., Ill.), Wherry (R., Nebr.). More than half the Senate would have joined the appeal, one signer said, had there been more time to circulate the letter.

The newly approved Marshall Plan appropriation bill instructs Administrator Paul G. Hoffman to make a recheck, if he deems it advisable, to decide which plants would contribute more to German and European recovery by remaining in Germany.

Hoffman has made one such survey. Last year it resulted in saving more than 150 of the 700-odd plants stabbed for removal to France and Britain as reparations. However, Hoffman can merely recommend; it is up to Secretary Acheson to make the necessary arrangements with the occupying governments.

British Labor Refuses To Indorse Pay Freeze

London, Oct. 5 (U.P.).—The eight-million-member Trades Union Congress, a powerful faction in the Labor Party, refused again today to indorse the Labor Government's wage-freeze policy.

The TUC's general council did not take stand on either side of the issue, merely ordering a special economic committeee to study "all aspects of the situation" created by devaluation of the British pound.

Report on Malmedy Trial Sees Justice Done

By Robert S. Allen

There will be little comfort for Senator Joe McCarthy (R., Wisc.) in the report of the Senate Armed Services Subcommittee investigating the trial of those accused of the Malmedy massacre.

The report will hold those tried received "substantial justice."

McCarthy has vociferously contended their trial was a miscarriage of justice. He is demanding commutation of the death sentences of the six Germans convicted of shooting down more than 100 American prisoners and Belgian civilians.

The committee's report will not comment on that demand. It will deal solely with the conduct of the trial. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, former United States commander in Germany, upheld the death sentences after an exhaustive review.

The committee's finding will be based on extended hearings in Washington and Germany. The group, consisting of Senators Raymond A. Baldwin (R., Conn.), Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.) and Lester Hunt (D., Wyo.), was accompanied to Germany by a team of U. S. Public Health Service doctors. They examined the prisoners on their claim they were beaten to extort confessions from them.

The report will state that while the doctors found some scars, they were unable to determine whether they were due to the alleged beatings, or other causes, such as service wounds.

Major recommendation of the committee will be that future trials of this kind be conducted by civilian courts instead of military tribunals. Also, that no coercion of any nature be used to obtain evidence.

The committee will criticize the so-called "mock trials" staged for that purpose. But the report will emphatically reject McCarthy's claim the SS men were improperly convicted.

The findings will be submitted to the full Senate Armed Services Committee, which will determine whether to publish them. Final decision on execution of the six men rests with Army Secretary Gordon Gray.

U. S. Challenges Segregation Doctrine

asked the court to rule on behalf of the Negro bringing the suit. In taking this position, the Justice Department is opposing the Interstate Commerce Commission, whose ruling permitting segregation in railroad dining cars is being attacked.

Move to Reverse Decision

The suit was brought by Elmer W. Henderson, 3729 J st. ne., who is director of the American Council of Human Rights. The District Court in Maryland ruled against him but he, and now the Government, seeks to reverse that decision.

Henderson charges he was unable to obtain a meal on a Southern Railway train in 1942, riding between here and Birmingham, Ala. The railroad also is a defendant in the case.

The Justice Department's 68-page brief is an attack on both the legal and social basis of segregation in general, and is liberally sprinkled with quotations from the report of the President's Committee on Civil Rights.

The Government declares that while it does not feel the Henderson case turns on the "separate but equal" facilities argument, it believes that if the court cannot decide the case without reference to that doctrine it "should now be reexamined and overruled."

Segregation Upheld

The lower court had upheld the ICC ruling permitting segregation in dining cars on the grounds that "separate but equal" accommodations were provided for Negroes. The doctrine first was established half a century ago in a post-Civil War case.

Of dining car segregation, the Government declared:

"The curtain of partition which fences Negroes off from all other diners exposed, naked and unadorned, the caste system which segregation manifests and fosters. A Negro can obtain service only by accepting or appearing to accept, under the very eyes of his fellow passengers, white and colored, the caste status which the segregation signifies and is intended to signify."

Government Declaration

In asking the Supreme Court to overturn the "separate but equal" doctrine, the Government declared:

"The evasions and violations of the Constitution are being gradually eliminated. One handicap is the approval, given ir another day and generation, to the proposition that the Constitution could be satisfied and friction removed by the establishment of 'separate but equal' facilities. Experience has shown that neither the Constitution, nor the laws enacted under its authority, nor the individuals affected, are given the required respect and status under such an arrangement.

"'Equal' facilities, if separate, are rarely ever equal, even in a physical sense. In most situations they have been used to cloak glaring inequalities. And the very idea of separate facilities, or separate rights, is in itself a negation of the full and complete possession of rivileges and immunities of citizenship."

$17,000,000 Bill Introduced for Soldiers Home

Representative Olin E. Teague (D., Tex.) yesterday introduced a bill for a 17-million-dollar building program at Soldiers Home here.

His bill would appropriate the money directly from the Soldiers Home permanent fund, which now totals more than 30 million dollars, he said.

It would provide for additional quarters to house 850 men, and for a 450-bed hospital building.

Teague explained that the officials of Soldiers Home had repeatedly sought authority in their budget to proceed with the building program, but that the estimates had been rejected by the Budget Bureau.

Bill Asks Check On Shops, Stores In U. S. Buildings

Representative Karsten (D., Mo.) yesterday called for a closer check on funds of income-producing activities in Government buildings.

Karsten introduced a bill calling for standard accounting methods and for General Accounting Office review of the activities. The bill was sent to the House Committee on Expenditures in the Executive Departments. The Senate and House would be exempted from its provisions.

Karsten said many of the revenue producing activities—eating places, newsstands, barber shops and the like—now give no accounting of the funds they receive and disburse.

Police Private Who Was $322 Short Is Fired

Police Pvt. Vincent S. Hurd, who was found guilty by a Police Trial Board of being short $322 in Metropolitan Police Retiring Association funds, was dismissed from the force Tuesday.

The District Commissioners directed the dismissal at the usual semiweekly closed meeting on Tuesday and the action was not disclosed until yesterday.

Hurd's dismissal was recommended by the trial board after a hearing on September 16. Hurd had entered a plea of nolo contendere and asked for leniency. He did not appeal the board recommendation.

The 36-year-old policeman, who has been in the department since December 1, 1938, resides with a wife and three children at 3407 37th ave., Colmar Manor, Md. He was assigned to the Ninth Precinct.

At the time the shortage was discovered, Hurd told officers he planned to repay the money with his $330 District retroactive pay raise, but Congressional delay in passing the funds measure prevented this.

100 In Arlington Get Notices For Failure to Have Tags

More than 100 Arlington residents have received summonses in the past week for failure to have both State and County license tags on their cars, Arlington Police Chief Harry L. Woodyard said yesterday.

Of 17 persons scheduled to appear yesterday on the charge in Arlington County Court, 12 forfeited $8.25 collateral each. Warrants were issued for the arrest of three persons who failed to appear. One case was dismissed and another defendant was acquitted.

All persons who have lived in Arlington County 30 days or more are required to have both tags, purchasable at the State Motor Vehicles offices on 5th and S. Glebe road and at the county tag office at 2043 Wilson blvd.

Penalty for violation of the county tag ordinance is a fine of $5 to $50.

Woodyard said the drive on violators would continue "until they've all bought tags."

Bad Checks Get 120-Day Sentence For Job-Seeker

Judge Thomas D. Quinn of Municiupal Court yesterday sentenced Woodrow Mize, 27, who roomed at 515 F st. nw., to serve 120 days for passing 11 bad checks totaling $301.

Police charged that Mize cashed the bogus drafts from May 2 to July 29 at small downtown stores. Authorities reported he left a millwork job in Jonesville, S. C., in April to seek employment here.

When he was unable to find work adequate to support his wife and her family, he resorted to the checkwriting, according to police.

CBS Puts Color TV Set Cost About $220

By Rufus Crator
Associate Editor, Broadcasting-Telecasting

A color television receiver showing 10-inch pictures should retail at about $220 if the Federal Communications Commission approves the system sponsored by the Columbia Broadcasting System, Dr. Peter C. Goldmark, who developed the CBS technique, predicted yesterday.

He told the FCC, now in the second week of hearings on color television, that his estimates came from "manufacturers who have worked with us and who will testify here."

The $220 set, he said, would be a "self-contained combination color and black-and-white table-model receiver giving an effective 10-inch black-and-white or color picture, enlarged from a 7-inch tube."

"The cost of console direct-view color receivers giving magnified images equivalent to 12½-inch tubes should, I believe, be increased over $220 by an amount approximately in proportion to the price differential between a 10-inch black-and-white table model and a 12½-inch black-and-white console," he added.

$15 Cost of Adapting

Dr. Goldmark's prepared statement said, in a portion not yet reached in testimony, that manufacturer's estimates indicate the cost of adapting black-and-white will be about $15 if the modification is made before the set leaves the factory. If done in the home by means of an external scanning adapter, according to the statement, the cost would be about $35 plus service charge.

The statement said a manufacturer will testify that a converter, to permit black-and-white sets to receive color picture under the CBS system, may be built to retail at about $70 and that this may be reduced to about $50 when the manufacturer is able to "redesign our original laboratory version and fully apply his own production engineering." These prices would be in addition to the adapter costs.

Dr. Goldmark's statement continued:

"Thus, on the basis of the information given me by the manufacturers, the total cost of conversion for a black-and-white set with adaptation carried out at the factory can be as low as $65, including the extra cost of the adaptation."

Color television, he said, could be "a Nation-wide fact" within less than a year if the FCC approves the CBS system, and "if all manufacturers as eagerly sought to bring out color receivers and color converters as those who are working with us, and if all operating television stations modified a number of their cameras for color pickup."

He thought it "fair to assume" that the largest direct-view receiver under the CBS system would have a 12½-inch tube, which with a magnifier would give the equivalent of a 15-inch tube, and that projection-type receivers would be used for larger pictures.

Objection Overruled

Attorneys for Radio Corporation of American, developer of another color system, and for Allen B. DuMont Laboratories, which advocates delay in the standardization of color, protested Dr. Goldmark's estimates of set costs under the CBS system. They claimed he was attempting to give the testimoney of witnesses who have not yet appeared. Their objections were overruled by FCC Chairman Wayne Coy, who is presiding.

The CBS color system, one of three that will be shown during the hearings, will be demonstrated officially to the commission today and Friday at the Carleton Hotel. Friday's showing is slated to include a pickup from a local high school football practice field.

The RCA system will be officially demonstrated Monday at the Washington Hotel and the studios of WNBW in the Wardman Park Hotel. The third system, developed by Color Television, Inc., may be shown to FCC next month in San Francisco, where it is currently undergoing tests. Admittance to the local demonstrations will be limited to participants in the hearings.

Both RCA and Color Television, Inc., claim their systems are "completely compatible"—that is, that existing black-and-white receivers could, without modification, receive color pictures in black and white. Both are all-electronic systems, while the CBS equipment now being demonstrated employs a color filter disc at the receiver.

CBS contends, however, that its system can be either electronic or mechanical, or a combination of both, and that it "can use any of the specific types of apparatus required with the other systems if time should prove such apparatus to be technically practical and economically feasible."

Estimates Contrasted

To contrast the cost estimates on receivers under the CBS system, Dr. Goldmark, who is the CBS director of engineering research and development, cited RCA's earlier testimony that sets built for the RCA color system would range in cost from $400 to $1000.

RCA's $400 estimate, he noted, was for a set employing two basic colors (green-red and blue-green) instead of three (red, blue, green).

Much of Dr. Goldmark's testimony consisted of technical analysis in which he attacked the RCA and Color Television, Inc., systems as being too complicated to be practicable and economical.

Counsel for RCA, CTI, and other opponents of the CBS system have not yet had an opportunity to cross-examine the CBS witness. Cross-examination is being reserved until the direct testimony of all the participants is completed probably in about two weeks.

Polio Foundation Reports Reserve Funds Exhausted

New York, Oct. 5 (U.P.).—The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis today said that its reserves had been exhausted completely by this year's record polio epidemic.

The foundation, which hopes to raise four million dollars in its 1950 March of Dimes and is in urgent need of emergency contributions now, said that epidemic aid funds will be non-existent "long before the next March of Dimes."

"We will have not one penny to spend upon new research—not one penny to open up new fields of investigation that must be explored if we are to eliminate, rather than treat, infantile paralysis," a statement by outgoing President Basil O'Connor said.

Neely Calls D. C. Group Today With 10 Minutes Grace

Senator Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.) has scheduled his third attempt to muster an "on time" quorum of the Senate District Committee.

But he has relaxed his definition of "on time."

The meeting is set for 11 a. m. today. Members will have a grace period of 10 minutes to appear in the committee room.

Neely adjourned two earlier meetings, one in three, and one in four minutes, when fewer than the 7-member committee majority needed for legislative decisions showed up.

Among major bills awaiting committee action are those to add three judges to Municipal Court, to authorize limiting the number of taxicabs here, and to revise insurance laws.

Probers Told 'Spy' Knew of A-Work

Judges Lacking

Coplon Trial Put Off to November 9

New York, Oct. 5 (AP).—The joint trial of Judith Coplon and her former Russian sweetheart has been postponed because of a shortage of Federal judges.

The two are accused of conspiracy to commit espionage, and Miss Coplon already has been convicted in a Washington trial of spying for Russia. She was sentenced to 40 months to 10 years in prison, but appealed.

She and her codefendant, Valentin A. Gubitchev, were due for trial October 17, after numerous delays. But the shortage of judges forced a new postponement until November 9.

Miss Coplon, a former Government worker in Washington, is free on $40,000 bail, and Gubitchev, a suspended engineer for the United Nations, is at liberty under $100,000 bail.

Archibald Palmer, Miss Coplon's attorney, said he may press for still another delay on November 9, pending the outcome of her appeal.

Congress has just authorized four new Federal judges for the Southern District of New York, but the President has not made the appointments.

Sevareid Claims Russian Explosion Was Atomic Bomb

New York, Oct. 5 (U.P.).—Eric Sevareid, chief Washington correspondent for the Columbia Broadcasting System, said tonight he had learned "on the most final kind of authority" that the Russian atomic explosion was an atom bomb.

"There is no longer the faintest doubt of that among the responsible leaders of this Government," Sevareid said. "The thing that went off in Russia may not have been the size and shape and general appearance of what we think of as a bomb, but that makes no difference. It was a deliberate explosion, not an accident, a detonation I'm told of the power of our first explosion at Alamagorda, N. Mex."

Speed Flight Planned

San Diego, Calif., Oct. 5 (AP).—United States Marine Lieut. Col. Marion Carl, once holder of the world's air speed record, plans a speed flight Thursday from Glenview, Ill., to Cherry Point, N. C., Naval Air Station.

By The Associated Press

Edward Manning, a former employe of the Chicago Atomic Laboratory, yesterday testified an accused Russian spy had "direct knowledge" of the wartime work in the laboratory.

Manning, who now lives in Knoxville, Tenn., was before the House Un-American Activities Committee to tell what he knows about Arthur Adams. In a report last year, the committee named Adams as a Russian spy who is believed to be in Russia now.

Manning said Adams knew what was going on in the laboratory and that he assumed Adams got his knowledge from Clarence Hiskey, who worked in the laboratory.

Manning said he was dismissed by the laboratory for security reasons and that Hiskey, now a professor at Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, was dismissed too.

It was Hiskey who introduced him to Adams, Manning testified.

Hiskey has appeared before the committee twice and refused to say whether he had any contacts with Adams on grounds he might incriminate himself.

Manning said he was a "technician at a low level" in the work on the atom bomb in Chicago. Hiskey was on higher level, he said.

The witness said he never has been a Communist and never turned over any secret information to Adams. He said he never was asked to, either by Hiskey or Adams.

In fact, he said, Hiskey once told him not to discuss his work with Adams.

Manning told of a meeting with Adams in New York in the summer of 1945. He said it was then that Adams "made it very clear to me" he knew the nature of the work at the Chicago A-bomb shop.

So far as he knew, Manning said, Hiskey was the only other person in the laboratory who knew Adams, so he naturally reasoned Adams' knowledge came from Hiskey.

The New York meeting was after he had been dropped by the laboratory, taken into the Army, and was about to go overseas, Manning said. The witness said he had concluded he had been fired because of associations with Hiskey and Adams and had gone to New York to sound out Adams on that idea.

Hiskey also was taken into the Army.

Manning said Hiskey never had munist Party, but "in the light of my present knowledge I'd say tried to recruit him into the Comhe was a Communist, without doubt."

Tideland Oil 'Propaganda' Under Fire

By The Associated Press

A spokesman for the States in their fight with Federal authorities over ownership of submerged coastal lands yesterday accused the opposition of wanting to concentrate all governmental powers in Washington.

Testimony to this effect was given before a Senate Interior Subcommittee by Maryland's Attorney General Hall Hammond, speaking on behalf of the National Association of State Attorneys General.

Pressing for passing of legislation which would give the States clear title to all the so-called tidelands, Hammond declared these areas had always, until recently, been considered the property of the States.

"The issues presented to this committee and the Congress," said Hammond, "have been clouded by misleading propaganda emanating from those who would concentrate all power in the Federal Government, from those who strive to increase in personal power . . ."

Refutes Charges

He refuted charges voiced before the committee Tuesday by Phillip B. Perlman, Solicitor General of the Justice Department, although he did not mention Perlman by name.

Urging passage of legislation to give the Government clear title to the off-shore property, Perlman declared that State-ownership bills "have had the blind support of State governors and of State attorneys general, most of whom find it much easier to go along with the few States that would be unduly enriched by a wholesale donation of Federal assets . . ."

Hammond said private enterprise will develop mineral resources in the marginal sealands regardless of who has formal ownership. Oil production under State control "has been more successful" than similar Federal operations, however, he said.

Representatives of other States described Federal ownership proposals as a move toward concentration of all governmental power in Washington.

Louisiana's chief spokesman, District Attorney Leander Perez of Plaquemines Parish, challenged the contention voiced yesterday by Secretary of the Interior Krug that the Federal Government could better exploit submerged lands in the public interest than could the States.

Denies Krug Position

"The position taken by the Secretary of the Interior," he said, "indicated that the States could not be trusted to produce the oil within their boundaries to provide for the national defense.

"This is refuted by facts as recently as the second World War, when the needs of the Nation for boundless quantities of petroleum were supplied by production of oil made possible through the efficient measures of State control."

Although only three States have large known off-shore deposits — Louisiana, Texas and California — officials from one coast to the other testified personally or submitted statements favoring State control and ownership.

Nicholas V. Olds, assistant attorney general of Michigan, urged that Congress remove any doubts that might exist as to State ownership of lands under the Great Lakes and inland waters.

Texas Land Commissioner Bascom Giles, reviewing his State's special claim to its submerged lands, cited records to show that Texas joined the Union with the understanding it should retain its public domain and settle its own debts.

Irving M. Smith, city attorney for Long Beach, Calif., told of difficulties with the Federal Government in getting sand and gravel from tidelands.

Walter Johnson, formerly of Nebraska, representing the National Association of State Attorneys General, placed in the record statements supporting State ownership from authorities in Arizona, Washington, New Jersey, California, Texas, Oregon, New Hampshire, Iowa, Tennessee, Kansas and Connecticut.

Minton Will Take Oath Wednesday

Justice Sherman Minton will be sworn in next Wednesday as the newest member of the Supreme Court, it was announced at the court yesterday.

The ceremony will take place at 10 a. m. in President Truman's White House office with Chief Justice Vinson administering the oath. Minton will spend the intervening week at his Indiana home.

Bank Deposit Insurance Hike to $10,000 Sought

By The Associated Press

Legislation to increase insurance on bank deposits from the present $5000 to 10,000 is being prepared by Representative Steed (D., Okla.).

"Ten thousands dollars is no more in actual value than $5000 was when the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation act first was passed," he said.

The increased insurance would mean more public confidence, giving small banks greater strength, Steed said.

Senators Approve Mason

President Truman's nomination of Lowell B. Mason for reappointment to the Federal Trade Commission was approved unanimously yesterday by the Senate Commerce Committee.

quested postponement of action on the French plan.

"The Soviet delegation," he added, "plans to make some proposals in connection with this matter."

Malik gave the council no hint of the new Soviet proposal, but he later told newsmen: "Our policy has not changed."

Council Chairman Warren R. Austin of the United States scheduled the next council meeting for Tuesday afternoon when Malik is scheduled to reveal his proposal.

The "Big Six" atomic powers are due to hold another session behind closed doors Thursday to see if there is any change in the eastern or western atom policy that might break the long deadlock over international atomic control.

Other U. N. developments:

1. Russia warned the political committee that continued execution of guerillas by the Greek government would jeopardize private U. N. talks on settling the dispute between Greece and her three northern neighbors. The political committee overwhelmingly voted down a Polish proposal to reopen debate on the Greek question so action could be taken to stop the executions.

2. Polish Delegate Jan Drohojowski delivered a 1½-hour speech attacking the western proposal to seek a ruling by the International Court of Justice on the East-West dispute over recent Balkan church trials. The Polish diplomat said Britain, for one, had no right to condemn the trial of Hungary's Josef Cardinal Mindszenty since traitors in England were given the same treatment. He cited the case of William Joyce.

U. S. Says Red Share Of U. N. Support Small

Lake Success, Oct. 5 (NYHT). The United States told the Soviet Union today, in effect, that if it continues to claim economic improvement unsurpassed anywhere, it should pay a larger share of the United Nations budget than the 6.34 percent it now contributes.

American Delegate John S. Cooper told the Budget Committee of the U. N. Assembly the United States would not object to paying nearly 40 percent of the U. N. budget, as it has in the past, but the Soviet Union and her satellites report substantial economic improvement and "we believe it should be reflected in contributions to the United Nations."

Yugoslavia Recognizes Chinese Reds

Belgrade, Oct. 5 (AP).—Yugoslavia went along with the Moscow bloc today in granting formal diplomatic recognition to the Chinese Communist government at Peiping.

Observers interpreted the announcement to mean Premier Marshal Tito, outcast of the Cominform, is seeking a friend. He is gambling on finding brotherly comradeship in the Communist world with Chairman Mao Tze-tung in the hope Mao will prove as independent of Moscow as the Yugoslav marshal himself.

Deputy Foreign Minister Vladimir Popovic said the rising star of Communism in China was the "result of the magnificent victories of the Chinese people."

Blood Derivative Rushed by Plane To Ailing Woman

A human blood derivative, serum albumin, was rushed from Washington by plane by the Red Cross yesterday to aid a woman accident victim in her fight for life at Lock Haven, Pa.

The woman suffered a brain hemorrhage in an auto crash. A surgeon said the serum was necessary to prevent serious complications following surgery. The nearest supply was Washington.

Six ampules of the serum (it requires 24 to 30 pints of whole blood to produce this amount) were flown to Pittsburgh by Northwest Airlines, then picked up by Trans-World Airlines for a quick flight to Williamsport, Pa., nearest airport to Lock Haven.

A Red Cross car met the second plane at Williamsport and sped the serum to the Lock Haven hospital.

71 D. C. Requests For Handicapped Workers Entered

The United States Employment Service office here has received 71 requests from District employers for handicapped workers, it was announced yesterday.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring this program as its contribution to National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week. Today at 12:30 p. m., at a luncheon in the Burlington Hotel, the chamber will award a plaque to Drew Pearson, columnist, for his efforts to persuade employers to hire handicapped persons.

USES and the District Rehabilitation Service are cooperating in filling the requests of District employers for handicapped workers.

VandenbergMakes Good Progress, Hospital Reports

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 5 (AP).—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.) continues to make "excellent progress" in recovery from a lung operation, a University Hospital bulletin said tonight.

The hospital said the 65-year-old Senate leader was out of bed for 10 minutes today.

Meanwhile, a hospital spokesman disclosed that laboratory tests made on Senator Vandenberg would not be made public. He said this was at the Senator's request.

those preferences which are characteristic of purely national defense but which are not in keeping with the common defense of the area."

Although the European countries accepted the broad principle of integration yesterday, it was by no means certain that they had fully assured themselves of American arms.

President Truman plans to sign the military assistance bill at the White House this morning, with legislative leaders as witnesses. Before certifying that the Europeans have made themselves eligible for help, under the rules laid down by Congress, he may prefer to wait a few weeks for more detailed plans.

The chiefs of staff of the Atlantic Pact countries, constituting themselves a permanent ... Committee, will have their first meeting this afternoon, and will start work on setting up the planning staffs.

Among other decisions taken yesterday was one making London the headquarters of the Military and Supply Board of the 12-nation defense organization. London was previously chosen as the European headquarters of the American agency that will administer the military aid program.

The first meeting of the 12-nation board in London was set for December, about a month before the first supplies from the United States are expected to leave American ports.

Johnson's Debut

Yesterday's meeting was the debut of Defense Secretary Louis Johnson as an international negotiator, apart from his mission to India for President Roosevelt during the war.

Johnson not only presided over the long meeting, but struck its keynote in a brief statement that all 12 countries would fight aggression together.

"We have no motive other than peace," he told the ministers and their military advisers. "The very idea of aggression is repugnant to us and to the free peoples we represent.

"But let no would-be aggressor mistake our hatred of aggression as any lack of determination on our part, on the part of every one of the 12 nations we represent, to resist it with all of our combined might.

"We in the United States insist that peace today can be chiefly assured through strength—our combined military strength and economic strength."

New Teachers View Linguistic School

Five foreign educators yesterday took a good look at the place from which they hope a good many Americans will go forth in the future to talk with the peoples of the world in their own tongues.

They were the first contingent of eight teachers from overseas who, with faculty members from this country, will instruct at Georgetown University's Institute of Languages and Linguistics, which opens October 17 at 1719 Massachusetts ave. nw.

Among them was Prof. Jean Deny of Paris, one of Europe's best known linguists and vice director of the institute. All were greeted by the Rev. Edmund A. Walsh, S.J., founder and regent of the university's school of foreign service, and Prof. Leon E. Dostert, director of the institute.

Most interesting to them was a training hall now under construction which will feature an interpretation system permitting simultaneous translation in five languages.

The system is the same as that at the United Nations, Dostert said. He is the initiator and former head of simultaneous interpretation there. At the institute, it will be used to teach 16 languages this year, and more in the future.

This equipment added to the school's over-all teaching methods, will result in a teaching plan that may be taken up by institutions of higher learning the world over. That, at least, is the hope of Father Walsh.

Under the linguists who studied their school's setup yesterday, students are slated to get a "strict minimum of textbook instruction."

But the 100 who will be admitted at the outset—most are already selected—will have recordings drone in their ears until repetition makes it impossible for them to forget. They will also attend lectures and do group work, and be guided by an individual tutor.

The course, which leads to a bachelor of science degree in languages, will take three years, one of them abroad, if possible. By the week, students will put in 30 hours intensive drill.

According to Dostert, a student's success or failure depends only on whether he receives a "satisfactory" from his instructors. There will be no grades, he said, and no credit system.

Father Walsh sees the institute as "a link between peoples. It will bring them closer together through understanding."

Wagner Papers Go to Georgetown

Gift of the writings and correspondence of former Senator Robert F. Wagner (D., N. Y.) to Georgetown University was announced yesterday by the Very Rev. Hunter Guthrie, S. J., its president.

The formal presentation is to be made October 23 at a ceremony in Gaston Hall on the university campus, with Robert F. Wagner, jr., acting in behalf of his father, who retired recently after several years of illness. The papers will be accepted by Father Guthrie, and representatives of both chambers of Congress, labor and close personal associates of the retired Senator will speak.

The papers, Father Guthrie pointed out, provide not only a record of the rise of one of America's leading political figures but a reservoir of information for graduate research work on labor and labor's relations to Government and economics, especially in the 1935 period when the Wagner Labor Relations Act was being considered.

Pollution Unit Urges Narrow Sewage Study

The newly organized Water Pollution Control Advisory Board this week recommended concentration of a special Federal study of sewage treatment in but "one or a few river basins."

The recommendation, for best use of an initial appropriation of $200,000 for such study, was made to insure against allocating the fund thinly over too wide an area, board members said.

The board also recommended that, in case of pollution of interstate waters, a firm policy be taken to end that pollution. It also asked preparation of a uniform anti-pollution law that States could adopt to strengthen their own.

Concerning pollution of streams with radioactive wastes, Board Chairman Mark D. Hollis noted that such wastes are pollutants within enforcement scope of provisions of the Water Pollution Control Act of 1948. In view of security requirements, however, he pointed out that the problem should be handled in collaboration with the Atomic Energy Commission.

The advisory board was established by authority of the Water Pollution Control Act in February of this year. The act authorizes expenditures of up to 37 million dollars a year for five years, beginning last July 1, in a Nation-wide pollution control program.

Recognition In China

It is satisfactory to read the reports from London that Britain intends to keep in step with the United States in meeting the problem posed by the setting up of the Communist government in China. The Anglo-American clash over the Middle East must not be repeated over the Far East. We take it, indeed, that the talks will not be only Anglo-American, but will take in the whole of the Atlantic Alliance, most of the members of which have interests in China. However, Britain has the biggest stake, trading in China as well as with China, and is in a tight spot in respect of her foreign commerce. It is evident from messages from London that while she wants to keep in line with America, she is anxious to promote recognition without delay in order to resume business.

The State Department's attitude seems to be to deprecate the haste reported from London. This seems to us a correct position. The Communists still have some distance to go before they fulfill the primary condition of even de facto recognition—that is to say, territorial control. Nor is a mere request for recognition sufficient without some demonstration of respect for international obligations, including the rules of hospitality to foreigners. Official Communist behavior toward foreign officials has betrayed a virulent antiforeignism which must be unique in modern history, and the curtness of the printed request for recognition is no earnest of a change of attitude. Moreover, the State Department wants to take up the new situation with responsible members of Congress—an attitude which, while constitutionally unnecessary, is called for both by the role that Congress assumed in the disastrous intervention in China and by the great importance of recognition. It will also give the public an opening for a debate on this contentious subject.

If the Allies stick together, the conditions for de facto recognition will improve, for China has a deficit economy, and must be feeling the pinch of the drying up of trade with the West. Certainly the Russians cannot, and would not if they could, meet the deficit. What is needed from Communist China is evidence of better conduct, and until this is forthcoming, recognition would be premature in that it would create more problems than it would settle.

Race In The Army

The Army's new policy of affording greater opportunity to Negro soldiers is good as far as it goes, but it does not go very far. The opening of previously restricted occupational specialties and service schools to Negroes and the establishment of Army-wide promotion standards are all steps in the right direction. But the practical meaning of the wider opportunities thus opened is severely constricted by continuation of the segregated assignment policy. Qualified Negroes may be assigned to overhead installations, but they will not be assigned to white units. In other words, there is no guarantee that after a Negro has been trained for a certain specialty, he will be allowed to practice it unless a vacancy exists in an overhead installation or a Negro unit.

This is a far cry from Secretary Gray's assurance that "No individual who qualifies for a military occupational specialty will be denied the opportunity to follow it because of race or color." Indeed, the failure to provide for Army-wide assignment of qualified Negroes makes Mr. Gray's remarks about applying specialties "in the manner most useful to the Army" sound like double-talk.

The new policy purports to do something it does not do in fact. Moreover, the report masquerades under the statement that the policy has been "discussed" with Chairman Charles Fahy of the President's Committee on Equality of Treatment and Opportunity in the Armed Forces. Actually the Fahy Committee has called for a good deal more than this kind of foot-dragging.

For that matter, it is hard to understand how Secretary Johnson could have given the Army report his imprimatur. Mr. Johnson's order of April 6 says: "Qualified Negro personnel shall be assigned to fill any type of position vacancy in organizations or overhead installations without regard to race." (Italics ours). The Army policy does not do that, although both the Navy and the Air Force are now following this practice.

Military men often insist that the utilization of Negro troops must be regarded as a military rather than a social problem. That is precisely why the Army's policy does not serve its own purpose. Undeniably the record of segregated Negro units in World War II was bad. Among the many reasons for this is one fundamental fact: all-Negro units were made up largely of men of low IQs who did not have the stimulus of genuine competition for assignment and promotion. In other words, segregated units in themselves frustrate the most efficient use of manpower.

There is reason why the end to Army segregation must be gradual. What is important is that a start be made in good faith to disperse Negro troops throughout the Army, quietly and without publicity. The Army already has made one praiseworthy move to eliminate the culls by refusing to reenlist men who have not advanced beyond the grade of private. It could go further in this respect by abandoning the 10 percent enlistment quota for Negroes and substituting minimum intelligence qualifications for all recruits. The Army will continue to manufacture a Negro problem for itself so long as it employs criteria of race rather than ability anywhere along the line.

Fuming Navy

Applying the principle of the safety valve, the House Armed Services Committee has decided to permit the Navy to blow off steam in the open beginning today. The decision is a wise one. The foolish charges of irregularity in B-36 bomber procurement were only a surface indication of the ferment in which the Navy is embroiled, and the House committee sensibly is ditching this aspect of its investigation to go ahead with an examination of roles and missions, strategic bombing and weapons development. Frank public discussion is now the only way to resolve the dispute within the armed forces which has become so intense as to have grave bearing on the competency of the national defense.

One incidental effect of this enlarged scope of the investigation should be to end the campaign of "surreptitious" disclosures by the Navy, a campaign which has left the impression that the sea arm is altogether too much engaged in peddling sour grapes. Ostensibly the reason for these sour grapes is the cancellation of the supercarrier; actually, a lot of the complaints reflect a basic disagreement with the unification law. The controversial Captain Crommelin, who has admitted responsibility for the deliberate leak Monday of the supposedly confidential memoranda of Admirals Bogan, Radford and Denfeld to Secretary Matthews, did nothing to absolve the Navy of the ugly reputation it is building for underhanded tactics. Indeed, Crommelin seems to have asked deliberately for a court-martial.

Nevertheless, the complaints do reflect a situation that is deeply disturbing. Navy morale, in spite of recent assurances to the contrary by Secretary Matthews, is undeniably poor. A principal factor in the deterioration of morale is the feeling, especially among the younger officers, that the Navy is being eclipsed, even that it eventually will be rubbed out. That feeling, whether or not it is justified, is of profound importance to the national defense, for the country simply cannot afford to permit the decay of its sea forces.

In part the problem arises from negativism within the Navy itself. Spokesmen, overt and covert, seemingly have been too much concerned with attacking the B-36 and depreciating the Air Force. The positive side of what the Navy has to do has had little attention. There is some ground for the impression that the Navy has been so intent on keeping a finger in the strategic bombing pie that it has neglected other vital functions.

Unless the Navy has been very coy, for instance, it has not developed an adequate defense against the schnorkel submarine. The Russians are strong in schnorkels, and if they chose to attack this country, there is no reason to assume that the attack would come by air. A schnorkel submarine carrying an atomic torpedo could wreak havoc, for example, in such a place as San Francisco Harbor. The Navy would be in a stronger position to contend for additional functions (and the money that goes with them) if there were assurance that antisubmarine precautions and the still vital protection of surface shipping were receiving full attention.

The Navy has great value as a striking force precisely because it permits of a fluidity in strategy. In this context strategic use of the Navy, including naval aviation, could be of great importance in a war of surprise, offsetting the static effect of patternized defense planning. But the argument against exclusion of the Navy is not an argument for the complete autonomy some Navy men apparently seek. In a unified defense no service alone can be the judge of what it will or will not do; the purpose of unified planning is to make the best use of what each service has to offer. The point to make sure of—and this is where the House Armed Services Committee investigation can do a great service—is that the Navy's view is not arbitrarily squelched when strategic plans are made. The one redeeming feature in the current Navy gymnastics is that they focus attention on the need for the committee to plumb the whole realm of our strategic concepts.

Science Foundation

The National Science Foundation bill is still frozen solid in the House Rules Committee, whether as a result of interference from the patent lobby or a general failure to understand its importance. In view of the grave national defense need for promoting basic science, it would be very remiss of Congress to adjourn without action. The Senate already has passed the Thomas bill, but the companion Priest bill has been stuck in the House since June. This delay is ample reason for the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, which reported the measure originally, to move to discharge the Rules Committee and bring the bill to the floor. Pure research is the fundamental stuff of all later applied science. The advent of the Russian atomic bomb is convincing evidence that now more than ever it is imperative for this country to keep a scientific lead. The House Rules Committee may dawdle, but Russian science, obviously, will not wait.

Judicial Confirmation

Judge Minton gained stature by declining to appear before the Senate Judiciary Committee in connection with his confirmation to be an associate justice of the Supreme Court. In the first place, no man nominated to such a position should be asked to testify in his own behalf. So far as his record is concerned, it can be ascertained from disinterested sources. As to the nominee's views, Justice Frankfurter struck the right note when he appeared before the committee at the time of his nomination in 1939. "I should think it improper," he said, "for a nominee, no less than for a member of the court, to express his personal views on controversial political issues affecting the court." It is interesting to note that, while Mr. Frankfurter did appear before the committee, he did not testify in his own behalf.

The letter sent to the committee by Judge Minton also explained the wide variation between his conduct as a Senator and as a judge in a way that doubtless contributed to his confirmation. As a Senator, he admits, he was a "strong partisan" and he "may have made mistakes." One hopes that he recognizes among those mistakes his vehement support of the court-packing bill of 1937 and his own bill to penalize newspapers for publishing anything known to be false. The important point so far as his present assignment is concerned, however, is that he put partisanship aside when he was appointed to the Seventh Circuit Court of Appeals. On the bench, he says, "cases must be decided under applicable law and upon the record as to where the right lies. I have never approached a case except to try to find the answer in the law to the question presented on the record before me." Eminent lawyers in Chicago sustain this claim.

There is always a grave risk in appointing active partisans to the bench. Yet our history is replete with examples of men who dropped partisanship when they donned the black robes of the Supreme Bench. Chief Justices Taney and Chase are notable examples and, on the present court, Mr. Justice Jackson. Our own preference is for the man who is every inch a judge by temperament, learning and habit of mind, and it is probable that the Senate would have been happier to have confirmed such a nominee. But the initial choice of judges lies with the President, and when he has selected a man who has proved his capacity to serve creditably on the bench, the Senate has no reasonable alternative to voting its consent.

Farm Merry-Go-Round

If anyone looking at what happened to the Anderson farm bill in the Senate has the feeling that this is where he came in, he is probably right. Ever since the war, the struggle has been to get away from the rigid 90 percent of parity price support concept fixed originally as a means of encouraging production. The Aiken law, passed by the Eightieth Congress, goes a long way in substituting a flexible sliding scale of support prices conditioned on supply. But the Aiken law is not designed to take effect until January 1, 1950, and apparently the intent of legislators is to see that it never does go into operation.

Already the House has passed a bill extending mandatory 90 percent supports for another year. The effect of what happened Tuesday in the Senate was the same. Although the Anderson bill weaseled to the extent of continuing 90 percent supports on five basic crops for one year, it did recognize the principle of the Aiken law in providing a variable 75-90 percent support scale after the first year. But the Senate, in an almost unbelievable series of gyrations, voted an amendment to broaden the scope of the 90 percent support to include peanuts and to extend the application of the 90 percent rule indefinitely. This was the clew for virtually every special interest to get in its licks, and the recommittal of the bill to the Agriculture Committee was the only way to prevent a complete miscarriage.

Interestingly enough, it was Vice President Barkley who cast the deciding vote in favor of rigidity, and this occasioned a nasty split with Majority Leader Lucas. Despite his defeat, Senator Lucas had the more impressive argument in pointing to the inconsistency between economy pledges and inflexible supports. Senator Aiken has asserted that an extension of mandatory 90 percent supports will exhaust the $4,850,000,000 borrowing power of the Commodity Credit Corporation before spring. Even the Brannan Plan, for all its vagueness and unpredictability, probably would not cost the estimated two billion dollars a year which the 90 percent measure would entail.

In view of the attitude displayed in the Senate, it may be difficult for the Agriculture Committee to stick to its guns. But it would be far better to have no new legislation at all, and to allow the Aiken law to take effect as scheduled, than to perpetuate the sort of expensive class legislation, with consequent resentment, involved in rigid supports. Judging from Tuesday's action, the Senate would make of the farmer a parasite, receiving not merely protection against price disaster, but a permanent dole given no other economic group. We do not believe farmers are that selfish.

VA Red Tape

In the past month, regulations put out by the Veterans' Administration, supposedly interpreting the Appropriation Act of August 24, 1949, may effectively curtail the education of hundreds of thousands of veterans.

One of the worst features of the new rules is the placing of all schools, including vocational, that have come into existence since 1944 in the same category as nonvocational schools, such as "dancing courses, bar tending courses in mixology, personality development," etc.

This means that all the new schools in bricklaying, tailoring, architectural drafting, watch repairing, or upholstering, which no one could deny are strictly vocational, would be handicapped in that veterans desiring to attend them would have to provide "complete justification that such course will contribute to bona fide use in the veterans present or future business or employment."

Whether or not the Veterans' Administration can be convinced that "justification" exists, it is discriminately unfair to impose upon "post-1944" schools a handicap that will deter many veterans from going through the red tape and time-consuming process of "justification."

Poe Centennial

October 7 is the 100th anniversary of the death of one of America's most famous men of letters, Edgar Allan Poe.

It was only a few days before this (in 1849) that Poe stopped over in Baltimore on his way north, and falling in with a gang of election repeaters, became an easy victim of their machinations by reason of his weakness for strong drink. He was finally rescued by a friend who found him in a tavern in a drugged condition on October 3. Unable to rally, Israfel, as one of his biographers referred to him, passed away four days later suffering the agonies of a tormented mind to the very end.

His remains lie next to those of his child wife, Virginia, in the burial grounds of the Westminster Presbyterian Church in nearby Baltimore. How many Washingtonians will forget the atom bomb long enough to pay tribute to the memory of an American universally revered, or better still go over to the churchyard in Baltimore and stand for a moment at the grave of an American genius?

WALTER H. ZEYDEL.
Washington.

"Pedagogic Blues"

Your October 2 editorial, "Pedagogic Blues," left me just a little confused. I feel that I am able to read and understand the English language as used in this country, but after reading the article five times I still could not determine whether you were ridiculing the Baltimore pedagogues, the American education system, the students in our schools or whether you were just plain disagreeing with educators who insist on some sort of standards for our schools.

An analysis of your article points to that conclusion and that conclusion only. You first point out that the professors are complaining that college freshmen show inadequacies in arithmetic and that you consider this undemocratic. Is it undemocratic to be able to count your money at the grocery store, manage your monthly budget, figure out your paycheck, or vote for the necessary amount of a budget to conserve our natural resources?

You next cry alarm at professors who insist on their students having a "nodding acquaintance with the rules of English orthography, grammar and syntax." You imply that this is abstract knowledge and is not as useful as knowledge gained by trial and error. Is it trial and error alone which helps us to read and understand a good novel, what Congress is doing, or what your editorials are saying? Was it trial and error which led the parents of Montgomery County to protest the way in which their children were being taught? Or rather, was it a realization that modern education is leaving something out in the training of children?

I am surprised at the position your editorial took in this matter. I would like to suggest that your paper concern itself with asking the teachers what they think about the results of present-day teaching. Ask the sixth grade teacher, the junior high school teacher, the high school teacher, and the college professor. Determine by your own empiricism what the answer is. This method of research through asking those who are concerned and who know has been your policy in the past. Can you afford not to know the answers?

ROBERT W. BOYD,
Washington.

Oursler's Parable

With the publication of Mr. Fulton Oursler's first modern parable (October 2) you have succeeded in insulting not only the intelligence of your readers, but also their concept of the Christian ethic. Mr. Oursler hands us materialism decked out in Christian guise, but that is the least of his transgressions.

In The Greatest Story Ever Told, Mr. Oursler happily accomplished the vulgarization of Jesus, while pretending to glorify Him; and he debased and perverted the Christian philosophy, while feigning to translate it. Now, with the first example of his promised series of parables, he opens his second affront in your pages.

It is manifest that Mr. Oursler is an expediter of sorts; it is not clear, however, that he acts on behalf of any part of the Christian church. Apparently some confusion exists in his mind. True it is that he has certain commercial virtues to peddle, namely, a fine grasp of percentage, so that in Mr. Oursler's hands, the virtue of charity is transmogrified into usury. Thus we have materialism fobbed off as Christianity.

Mr. Oursler might properly be called a "Christian 5-per-center," representing, as he does, the Horatio Alger myth carried beyond the limits of tolerability and good taste.

"The Budapest Trials"

In your editorial on September 20 you commented upon the Budapest trials and speculated how much plausibility there was in all the charges made against the principal accused, former Foreign Minister Rajk and General Palffy. A slip you made provoked criticism by "L.H.B." published in your issue of September 25. Had "L.H.B." contented himself with correcting your slip I would not feel compelled to write. But beyond correcting a mistake he himself goes on speculating about the meaning of the trials and in doing so he successfully produces a red herring, that Mr. Eugene Havas, whose letter you published on September 28, failed to point out.

According to "L.H.B." the Budapest trials were just another manifestation of the head-on collision of two opposing social and economic systems, of two almost irreconcilable world philosophies. That there is a head-on collision and that there are two conflicting world philosophies, no one in his senses would deny. But to anyone acquainted with the record of the principal accused and the efficiency of the Communist intelligence service it is a mystery what that has to do with the trials in Budapest.

Rajk was, for all who knew him, a stanch and hard-boiled Communist. Communist since his early youth, he was compelled to study abroad, fought in the Spanish Civil War and did not become a public figure until after the war when in 1946 he became Minister of Interior. In this capacity he controlled security and the police.

He was hard and ruthless and his record in suppressing any movement or individual suspected of anti-Communist leanings or Western sympathies was as good as any Communist could wish. But he did not belong to the Moscovite group which ruled supreme.

There had been evidence of an anti-Moscovite brand of communism long before Tito became the black sheep of the Kremlin fold and it was not unnatural that Rajk was supposed to be one of the few possible candidates for leadership. But he was not a national figure, he had not been connected with any national movement, and people in Hungary hate communism and Communists whether blessed or cursed by the Kremlin.

General Palffy also successfully convinced all non-Communists of the seriousness of his convictions. To get into the hands of his military political police and its prisons was the worst fate that could befall any Hungarian, and people who took grave risks in helping the Western allies during the war perished at his hands. He ruled supreme in the Ministry of Defense, was responsible for the political indoctrination of the army and had the strong backing of the Soviet authorities.

Supposedly he was an admirer of Tito, as were many other faithful Communists before Tito fell into disgrace. An army officer before the war, he had to resign his commission in the forties and, thwarted in his ambitions, turned to the Left while working as a clerk for a firm in Budapest. He may have had private views on Allied strategy, but he was in no position to be of the slightest help to Mr. Churchill or anybody else in organizing a campaign in the Balkans.

Incidentally, though citizens of Hungary, neither of the two is of Hungarian stock. Their names are assumed names, misleading, but more imposing than the originals.

It is to be hoped that an intelligence service is operating in Communist-dominated countries as successfully as Communist intelligence is operating on this side of the iron curtain. However the Communists are past masters in spying and underground organization, and it is extremely unlikely that spies would be able to rise to the highest and most confidential jobs in a Communist state. The Communists may have many virtues not known or appreciated in the Western democracies, but to give the benefit of a doubt is not one of them. It would certainly take more evidence than what was produced at the Budapest trials to convince the really unprejudiced observer that Rajk and his associates faked their communism and were the spies and agents of the "Western imperialists."

Transit Radio

I am happy that The Washington Post, in Bill Brinkley's feature story of October 2, has at last touched upon a topic that ate at my gall ever since I first had to endure a "musical" Washington trolley car. I am happy to learn that my voice is joining a chorus of citizens outraged by this imposition upon the patient patrons of Capital Transit Co.

Why is it assumed that the average American should and can be doped every minute of the day? If "musical" public transportation is permitted to continue the psychiatrists will have a new slant on causes of their patients' disabilities or the increase of cases of violent outbursts. And, perhaps, also Washington's sidewalks will be trodden by greater numbers of pedestrians bent on self-preservation.

American Will To Work

By Malvina Lindsay

'Laziness' Bogy

HOUSE DEBATE on the new social security bill resurrected a few of the usual platitudes . . . about "regimented security" and "living off Uncle Sam."

Yet these echoed more hollowly than in the past. For whatever truth they may hold, there is growing realization, even among those who utter them, that the "new society" the factory age has brought will continue its concern with security, and that pension demands of organized workers are forcing the hand of Government.

"Too bad," say solid citizens shaking their heads. "How different from the days when we were young! All we hear now when youths plan their careers is what pensions they will get at 55. What will become of American initiative? The zeal to save pennies? The will to work?"

Yet even the enlarged social security service the new bill provides is a conservative attempt to answer some of the questions posed by the "new society," as Peter F. Drucker calls it in his current series of articles in Harper's magazine. For whether we like it or not, we are, as Mr. Drucker points out, living in a world revolution brought about by the mass production principle in industry. Oddly some of those who most lament the social change this revolution has brought have had their pocketbooks fattened the most by it.

BUT ARE we losing our will to work? Is the prospect of age 65 of a small pension—possibly enough to meet our rent—or the assurance of public assistance if we are starving, likely to set us all to leaning against our rakes?

Evidence does not bear this out. American energy and industry continue to astonish foreign visitors. Youth seeks vacation and after-school work as never before. Elderly people are protesting throughout the country over forced retirement from their jobs.

The will to work of Americans was strikingly shown during the war when the Social Security Board found the number of recipients of old-age assistance and aid to dependent children dropping steadily as jobs became available. During one war year 700,000 men and women past 65, whose old-age insurance was fully paid up, did not claim benefits, and about 70,000 once-retired workers gave up benefits temporarily to return to work.

During the worst part of the 1930s depression this writer was familiar with a community in which many self-supporting families were on relief. Day after day most of the fathers and many of the mothers in these families would tramp the streets or stand in lines for hours seeking jobs. It was heartbreaking to see them come home at night with sagging shoulders to report failure. When a WPA project was opened, the majority rushed to get jobs with zeal and eagerness. New hope, new self-respect, radiated in their homes. This witness to that economic tragedy could never thereafter find a WPA joke funny.

EVEN AMERICAN youth, for all its big ideas of easy money, has more hard-headed ambition than we realize. A recent survey of attitudes toward work among tenth and twelfth grade students of Lansing, Mich., by the Social Research Service of Michigan State College, showed that more than half of these students already had held full-time jobs. It also showed that their formula for getting ahead in their jobs was "harder work." Only 5 percent thought they could advance by knowing the right people and using influence.

The desire to feel useful is fundamental. Even dogs, psychologists report, are happier when they have duties that make them feel needed and important.

How to keep men and women past 65 productive and make them feel useful is a bigger problem in relation to the aging population than that of social security pensions. The pensions are necessary to put a prop of security under them. But the will to work remains with many a person past 65.

Man's will to work, as well as his will to eat, needs to be taken account of in any future security plans for the Nation's older, or even younger, generation. A national commission could well be at work now exploring how in the "new society" those too old or too young for the mass production drive could yet use their skills, talents and industry to bring added production to the Nation and greater happiness and self-respect to themselves.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

Dulles And Lehman

IT DOES not often happen that an independent voter can say of two candidates that he would like to see both of them elected. New York State, which already has one exceptionally useful Senator in Mr. Ives, now has the hard but very pleasant choice of two men, each in his own way highly qualified. Were Senators elected here as members of Parliament are in Britain, seats which guaranteed them election would be found for both Senator Dulles and former Governor Lehman.

Lippmann

BUT, of course, here the choice has to be made and, if I were not a disfranchised resident of the District of Columbia but a voter in New York, I would vote for Senator Dulles. I would not do this because I had read the campaign speeches and had to come to think that the two men are debating great issues. In that respect, no matter what tripe each of them may find himself saying in the course of the campaign, they are using differing adjectives to define approximately the same nouns.

It is ridiculous to describe Mr. Dulles as a Fascist reactionary and warmonger, who would grind the faces of the poor and throw us into war with Russia; it is equally ridiculous to describe Mr. Lehman as an incipient fellow traveler, who would expropriate the rich and bring the Cominform to the United States. By their connections, their convictions and their instincts both men belong to what Mr. Arthur Schlesinger, jr., has called "the vital center." If Mr. Lehman goes to the Senate, we shall find his influence exerted in adjusting the big promises of the Fair Deal to the realities of the budget, the national economy and of effective administration. And if Mr. Dulles goes to the Senate, his influence will be exerted towards modernizing the position of his own party, and in shaping new projects so that they may command general support, and be more than measures imposed by a party majority and the pressure of blocs and of groups.

THE choice between them, as I see it, turns on the fact that to elect Mr. Lehman is to have another Democratic Senator, a very good one to be sure but not one who brings to the Senate qualities, experience, or convictions which are not already there in considerable abundance. To elect Mr. Dulles, on the other hand, is to do more than produce another Republican Senator. It is to bring into the Senate experience which almost no other Senator of either party possesses, and abilities in the field of the highest national interest which very few men in either party, or in the Congress, or in the Administration, can equal,—which none, now active in public life, surpasses. Mr. Lehman's election would be like appointing a very able and experienced captain to command an important ship; Mr. Dulles' election would be like finding an admiral for the staff which plans the operations of the Navy.

I do not mean to disparage Mr. Lehman's qualities when I say that he could not hope to play the kind of part which Mr. Dulles has played, first as an adviser and then as a Senator, in shaping national policy and the legislation to support it. Mr. Lehman would, I have no doubt, play an effective part in domestic matters for which his long public experience has fitted him. But I imagine that he would not himself make any claim to special knowledge or long-considered views in the big field where Mr. Dulles has for many years played such a leading part. Thus Mr. Lehman would add weight to the Democratic Party. But Mr. Dulles would add weight to the United States Government. If he were to leave the Senate, there would be a vacancy that for some considerable time to come at least no one else is likely to fill.

IT IS OFTEN said that Mr. Dulles is one of the principal makers and guardians of the bipartisan foreign policy. Though this is true enough, there is some misunderstanding about it insofar as it is supposed to mean that the Republican minority is persuaded to support what the Democratic Administration proposes. Conceived that way, a bipartisan foreign policy could easily degenerate into a policy that has never really been debated and for which the Administration in power is not really held accountable.

I have had a reasonably good opportunity to observe the operation of the bipartisan policy and the part that Mr. Dulles has played in it. His role, where he has had the power to act with effect, has not been to persuade the Republicans to agree to what the Democrats propose. It has been, rather, to advise ways of doing more acceptably things that in principle everyone wants to do, and thus to lift policies—such as the military assistance program—to a level where the agreement is not between the party leaders but is general and national and American.

MR. DULLES would not add one more vote to the support of the Administration program, which is what Mr. Lehman would in fact do. He would bring a powerful and original mind and influence to bear upon the formulation of the program itself. That is a very special contribution which, I believe, no one else can make in the same degree and with the same certainty.

Now that Senator Vandenberg is insisting—though he will have to fight the country before he succeeds—that he will retire at the end of his present term, it would be an extremely serious loss to the Nation and to the cause of peace in the world if Senator Dulles were lost to the Senate.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Battle Of The Whiskies

THE POWER of big Government to intervene in big business and tip the scales for one side or the other is nowhere better illustrated than in the distilling industry. In the background of larger events here in Washington there has been going on what might be called the battle of the whiskies.

Childs

It has enlisted some powerful political support on both sides. Rumors persist of influence bought and sold as the battle rages. They are rumors that probably only a full-fledged Senate investigation could run to earth.

The contest has had its comic aspects, with round, rubicund Senator Virgil Chapman of Kentucky becoming the champion without peer of Kentucky's bourbon and the big distillers who make it. Chapman angrily denounced officials who had ruled against the big companies. Some 80 million dollars was immediately involved in whisky values and even in these days of high prices and cheap money that is no laughing matter.

Last April the Alcohol Tax Unit of the Treasury ruled that certain stored whisky aged in used barrels could bear the same label designating age and type as whisky aged in new charred-oak casks. This had long been urged by the smaller independent distillers who were handicapped, particularly during the war, with the limitations it imposed, by the fact the big boys had bought up most of the cooperage companies that make the barrels.

THE RULING said that careful tests and analyses had shown "that there is no discernible difference between whisky which has been aged for a given period, the first part of the period being spent in reused cooperage and the latter part in new, and whisky which has been aged for a like period in a new charred barrel from the beginning . . ." Furthermore, it said that "other agencies of the Government interested in preventing monopolistic trends or in affording all possible protection to the smaller and less powerful industry units" had urged the Alcohol Tax Unit to take some action.

The urging had come from the Antitrust Division of the Department of Justice. The Antitrust Division has been reported investigating monopoly trends in both distilling and cooperage, an investigation which seems to be remarkably prolonged.

The Federal Trade Commission also has looked into the effect of wholesale mergers in the distilling industry and the effect of purchase by the big four (Schenley, Seagram's, National and Hiram Walker) of the cooperage companies. An FTC report said:

"This had the dual effect of inducing the independent cooperage firms to sell out and at the same time making it difficult for any distiller to operate without a captive cooperage plant of its own."

BUT THE ruling brought a violent response from the big distillers. Their friends in Senate and House began to descend on the Treasury. At one time Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder had 24 members of the Senate and House in his office, each one trying to pound on the desk and outshout the others in denunciation of the iniquity of the ruling.

Even Vice President Barkley made a polite inquiry about the matter and his office has worked hard in opposition to the ruling. Besides the Congressmen from the State that is the home of bourbon, others from States such as Arkansas that produce white oak for new barrels chimed in.

Five days after the ruling was issued it was "suspended." A little later a public hearing was held with 400 pages of testimony taken. On August 31 the hotly disputed ruling was revoked by Deputy Internal Revenue Commissioner Carroll E. Mealey, who had originally issued it.

Ever since there have been dark hints from the two camps of the political influence that was developed. The big distillers say the April 7 order grew out of a deal made with the independents during last year's campaign and was in response to a generous campaign contribution. The independents reply that the order was revoked after a secret agreement calling for big donations to next year's congressional campaign.

According to rumors coming from both camps, President Truman's friend, former Gov. Mon Wallgren, was retained to help settle the feud. Wallgren emphatically denies this.

The power of Government to act as umpire—over air routes, radio wave lengths and so on—grows apace with the new technologies and with the growth of monopoly. With the umpire being pushed back and forth by political persuaders and influence dealers, we have no protection and it is we who in the end pay the whole bill.

France, Italy, Britain Cut Trade Walls

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 5 (AP).—ECA Administrator Paul Hoffman today disclosed a sharp slash in European trade barriers by Britain, France and Italy.

Hoffman told the American Federation of Labor Convention the action was "an historic step" in a practical move "toward creating within western Europe the same sort of free intercourse that has proven so fruitful among the 48 States in our own country."

The ECA chief said the three big European countries have agreed to lift import quotas and other trade restrictions as much as 55 percent of their imports from other Marshall Plan countries.

"It brings the dream of European unity one step nearer realization," Hoffman said.

Hoffman was the principal speaker at a morning convention session which was to be followed by an afternoon devoted to mapping broadened AFL political plans for next year's congressional campaign.

Hoffman told reporters more progress toward unifying the economy of western Europe has been made in the past six months "than in the last 600 years, I would say." He said devaluation of European currencies was another forward step in that direction.

"There are various moves under consideration which will result in lowered tariff between certain countries in Europe," he said.

Hoffman was asked what he thought of the comments of Senator Malone (R., Nev.) an earlier speaker, who said the Administration's reciprocal trade program was fostering unemloyment in this country.

Malone contended this was true because products made abroad with cheap labor were competing with American-made goods.

"I don't think we see eye to eye on that at all," Hoffman replied.

He said the total volume of this country's imports is extremely small, compared with the amount of goods and services produced in America. A great part of the imports, too, are vitally needed here, he added.

In his speech, Hoffman said the Marshall Plan was succeeding in "making up the food deficit of Europe," and Europe's production is expanding above prewar levels.

"Don't let anybody tell you that the workers of Britain, and of western Europe are not working hard," Hoffman advised the AFL delegates. "Some people love to say that, you know. Well, maybe they are the same sort of people who say it about American workers.

"Don't you believe it. I have seen what they (European workers) turn out, all too frequently with outmoded tools in inefficient plans. They are working hard not only to earn their own way, day by day, but also to build for the future."

Hoffman said all the progress in western Europe brought about by those countries' own efforts and by Marshall Plan aid could be wiped out in six months if American help were ended.

He said he was concerned with what will happen when Marshall Plan aid terminates in mid-1952, "unless Europe's ability to earn dollars is greatly increased and unless we are willing to let her earn those dollars."

Hoffman said Europe will need enough dollars to buy four million dollars worth of goods every year. He said it will mean Europe must boost her sales in this country from the present one billion dollars to $2,500,000,000 annually.

The AFL indorsed a multimillion dollar political drive to elect a "friendly" Congress and insure repeal of the Taft-Hartley Law.

Joseph D. Keenan, director of the AFL's Labor League for Political Education, told the convention that labor has a "fight for our existence" in special elections this fall and in the 1950 congressional campaign.

Keenan and other AFL leaders outlined plans for a drive to have each of the claimed eight million AFL members contribute at least $2 toward the labor organization's political war chest.

The delegates cheered Keenan's singling out of five Republican Senators for secial AFL efforts to defeat them. Heading the list was Senator Taft of Ohio. The others were Senators Donnell of Missouri, Capehart of Indiana, Millikin of Colorado and Dulles of New York.

Keenen gave special AFL indorsement and a promise of help in their reelection efforts next year to three Republicans and five Democratic Senators. They are Senators Morse (R., Oreg.), Aiken (R., Vt.), Tobey (R., N. H.), Myers (D., Pa.), McMahon (D., Conn.), Elbert Thomas (D., Utah), Hill D., Ala.) and Pepper (D., Fla.).

would have to take drastic, emergency action.

With more than a million employes out of work as a result of the combined steel-coal strike, Federal officials were expressing concern, for the most part privately, over the impact of the dual-walkout on the national economy.

Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer, speaking in New York, said that the two strikes probably will force a "drastic curtailment" in the nation's economic life within the next two weeks.

Sawyer observed there had been a "marked letdown" in industry and business during the past two weeks because of consumers' fears over the strikes.

The economic letdown, according to Sawyer, has been particularly noticeable in the retail clothing and shoe fields.

In Baltimore, William H. Mahaney, chairman of the Maryland Employment Security Board, predicted that 40,000 workers in the city's area would be idle by the end of the month if the dual strike continues. He said that already 21,000 were unemployed in Baltimore, many of them steelworkers from the nearby Bethlehem plant, and that several large retail stores were reducing their work force by 10 percent.

In Chicago, the National Small Businessmen's Association asked the President to use his "available and sufficient" powers to end both walkouts, which, the organization said, "definitely" occasion destruction of small enterprises. At the White House, Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said that there was no action "imminent" on steel. Nothing at all was said about coal."

Meanwhile, Westinghouse announced it would begin allocating distribution of its electrical appliances because of a freeze on new steel supplies. At the Commerce Department, officials were considering placing controls on the export of steel, and possibly seeking voluntary controls over domestic distribution of available steel.

Philip Murray, president of both the CIO and the Steelworkers, announced last night that Kaiser Steel, a small producer employing around 3500 workers, had signed a new contract with the union providing 10-cents-an-hour welfare benefit and accepting the principle of the noncontributory insurance and pensions for the employes. One other small basic steel producer, Portsmouth Steel Co., with 4000 workers, signed just before the steelworkers walked out at 12:01 a. m. last Saturday.

The big steel producers, led by U. S. Steel, have thus far refused to establish insurance and pension benefits unless and until the employes also agree to contribute in part for the cost of the welfare funds.

There was a spurt of activity on the coal front yesterday as John L. dashed some 75 miles between White Sulphur Springs and Bluefield, W. Va., to confer with representatives of the industry.

At White Sulphur Springs, George H. Love, spokesman for the Northern producers, and Harry M. Moses, representative of the "captive" coal mines operated by the steel corporations, said there was "no progress" in talks with Lewis over a new contract. A similar estimate of the situation was reported at Bluefield by Joseph E. Moody, spokesman for the Southern operators. Although Lewis has never publicly made himself specific, it appears he wants for his miners a cut in working hours, a raise in pay, and a hike in the present 20-cents-a-ton employer contribution to the miners' welfare fund. Love, Moses and Moody accepted Conciliation Chief Ching's mediation invitation.

More violence was reported in the coal fields yesterday. Some 250 pickets attacked a convoy of 16 trucks hauling coal from a nonunion strip mine near Coupon, Pa. Police rescued the convoy and arrested six pickets.

Fourteen men were arrested near St. Charles, Va., after a battle among 50 union and nonunion miners. Those arrested were charged with carrying concealed weapons or interfering with police. One man was injured.

Two pickets were fined after a truck was stoned near Ebensburg, Pa. Pickets forced two nonunion mines to close near Steubenville, Ohio.

Pressmen Claim Nearly All Of Late Union Head's Estate

The national policy committee of the International Pressmen's Union (AFL) has filed a claim against virtually all of the estimated $800,000 estate of the late George L. Berry, long-time union president.

Filing of the suit in a court in Rogersville, Tenn., on Monday was made known yesterday. Headquarters of the union is at Pressmen's Home, Tenn., near Rogersville.

The national policy committee does not speak officially for the international. It is composed of members of the Washington Pressmen's Local No. 1, the Essex County, N. J., Pressmen's Union and other locals.

However, a suit was also filed Monday at Rogersville by officers of the international.

It was in the form of an amended petition asking for an accounting of all funds allegedly owed by Berry to the union.

Berry's estate includes interests in the million-dollar International Playing Card and Label Co., a bank and a newspaper in Rogersville and several other properties.

Washington Attorney Alexander B. Hawes, counsel for the national policy committee, pointed out that it was the committee that first demanded that the international union file the suit.

The committee had insisted that the Berry estate belongs to the international union because it was built up with union funds. This claim touched off a bitter interunion fight.

Shortly after Berry's death, the international had filed a claim of $63,000 against the estate as representing the amount of union money used by Berry to equip a farm.

Hawes said the committee filed its claim "just in case" because the deadline for filing claims against the Berry estate was yesterday.

The Government reportedly holds a $232,000 lien against the Berry estate. However, should it be decided in the courts that the property belongs to the union and was not Berry's personal property, the property would not be subject to the lien against Berry, said one committee spokesman.

Although charges have been brought by the international against Local 1 here and the Essex County local because of the national policy committee demands that a full claim be made to the Berry estate, Hawes said he doubted that any disciplinary action would be taken by the international's board of directors.

However, it was learned last night that Louis Lopez, legislative representative here of the international and member of Local 1, has been fired for failure to report to the international board of directors the committee's inquiries into the Berry estate. Lopez is a candidate for president of Local 1.

U. S. Won't Send Its Ambassador Back to China

NYHT News Service

The Administration has decided not to send Ambassador John Leighton Stuart back to China, it was learned yesterday.

He will not be replaced. It is the State Department's opinion that relations with the Nationalist government no longer require the presence of an Ambassador.

Similarly, Great Britain has instructed its Ambassador at Nanking, Sir Ralph Stevenson, to return to London for "consultations" and it is unlikely that he will return to China until a decision is taken on recognition of the Chinese Communist regime.

The President's Calling List:

By The Associated Press

President Truman yesterday had the following White House appointments:

10 a. m.—Congressional conferees on Government pay bills.

11.—Lord Tedder, marshal of the Royal Air Force.

11:15.—Frederick J. Lawton, assistant budget director.

12:30 p. m.—Secretary of Defense Johnson and Secretary of the Navy Matthews.

3:15.—Democratic Chairman William M. Boyle.

3:30—Judge Sherman Minton.

Kearns Wants to Get Look at Knox Gold

Representative Kearns (R., Pa.) thinks it's time Congress found out if all that gold really is in the Government vaults at Fort Knox, Ky., as advertised.

He hasn't seen it, he said, and he hasn't been able to find anyone else who has seen it.

So he introduced a resolution yesterday directing the House Banking Committee to inspect Fort Knox and see if the gold is there. He didn't say what the committee should do if it found the Fort Knox vaults empty.

one vote. Twenty-two Senators were absent or not recorded.

The absence figures fluctuate sharply from day to day. Yesterday, with no important test on tap, absences dropped to a recent low of 16—8 from each side of the aisle. Today they could be double that number.

This is one reason leaders want to adjourn Congress as soon as possible.

Yesterday the push was plainly on.

The cutback housing bill passed by the Senate continues for 4 months (from October 31 until March 1) the Federal Housing Administration's authority to insure construction loans made by private lending agencies. The bill gives FHA additional funds for the program. The House, which has approved a broader program, must concur in the change.

The rural telephone bill also passed by the Senate and returned to the House authorizes the REA to lend money to small telephone companies to improve rural service. The loans would carry 2 percent interest and require adequate security.

In addition, House and Senate conferees agreed on a $584,098,797 Interior Department appropriation bill, cut $32,706,000 below the President's original budget estimates.

Court Rulings Tie Custody Case in Knot

A District Court judge is at legal loggerheads with a Maryland court judge over the custody of a 6-year-old Washington girl.

The judges have made apparently contrary decisions effecting the child, with the estranged parents, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Robinson, in a dilemma over the daughter, Regina Gowena Robinson.

On Monday, Judge J. Dudley Digges of the Circuit Court of Prince Georges County issued an order restraining the wife, Eva V. Robinson, 27, of 3630 Horner pl. se., from taking Regina from custody of the father, who resides at 4503 Queensbury rd., Riverdale, Md.

Yesterday, however, Judge Richmond B. Keech of the District Court here ordered the father to take Regina to the mother. Keech gave her $50 a month maintenance and temporary custody of the child.

The Robinsons, who were married in 1941, became estranged last March, according to the District Court suit for maintenance and custody filed by the wife. She charged that Robinson, a Navy Department employe, beat her and used the child as a "pawn" in their relations.

She said that Robinson later came here and took the child and that his keeping Regina is detrimental to the girl's education and health. She accused Robinson of acting out of spite.

Two Persons, 4 Firms Named In Tax Liens

Notices of tax liens against four firms and two individuals were filed in District Court yesterday.

Named in the notices were:

Sightseeing, Inc., 1607 I st. nw., for $3316.94 allegedly due in 1949 for transfer of property tax, withholding tax and Federal insurance contributions. A. L. Martin, secretary-treasurer, told a reporter: "We paid the taxes and the penalties will be paid soon."

Brewer-Snyder Co., 1229 D st. se., $1889.71 withholding and Federal insurance tax for 1949. An official said the firm had no comment to make.

Leeds Jewelry Co., Inc., 725 7th st. nw., $1486.35 jewelry tax for 1949. Mrs. Wineva Coleman, manager, commented, "As far as we know and as our records show, we are all up-to-date on taxes. First we heard about it was when a reporter called us."

Windsor Co[illegible], restaurant at 1411 H st. nw., $1398.42 admissions tax, cabinet tax and Federal unemployment insurance, 1949. Matt Windsor, owner, said the taxes "have definitely been taken care of this year and there is no tax outstanding."

John Karamonolis, 331 Pennsylvania ave. se., (listed as the Hamburger Shop), $1047.10 income tax for 1945. He said, "I paid."

Samuel Gordon, 24 H st. ne., (Red's Garage, where he is manager), $1525.19 for income taxes in 1945 and 1947. Gordon had no comment.

Inmates Fight Fire Raging at Island Prison

Boston, Oct. 5 (AP).—Fireboats and inmates battled flames sweeping the three-story administration building at the Deer Island House of Correction tonight and brought it under control with no known injuries.

Most of the 660 inmates of the island prison were housed in separate buildings 200 yards away, although 40 in solitary confinement in the basement of the brick structure were removed. Thirty trustees in the building at the time made their way to safety.

Suit Attacks Procedure of Loyalty Board

Procedure used by the Loyalty Board in the Dorothy Bailey case was akin to the Nazi "degradation of justice," the United States Court of Appeals was told yesterday.

Miss Bailey, longtime Civil Service worker who was a specialist in staff training for the United States Employment Service, was discharged after the Loyalty Board held there was reasonable grounds to believe she was disloyal.

Loser in her suit for her reinstatement in the District Court, Miss Bailey's attorneys have sent the Appeals Court their brief in the case.

The brief argues that procedure in the loyalty probes is unconstitutional in that it is based on "secret" information, the source of which is not even divulged to the board or the person being probed.

Loan Firms Split On License Issue

Membership of the Washington Association of Finance Companies split yesterday on whether to apply for licenses under the District's new small loan regulations.

Attorney William R. Lichtenberg said 15 members will apply for the licenses, which go into effect November 1, and the remaining five will "ignore the regulations and continue business as before.

Both groups, however, are planning to support the filing of an injunction next week asking the District Court to enjoin the Commissioners from applying the new regulations, on the basis that the city fathers do not have sufficient authority to put them into effect.

Recreation Fund Hits $680 Mark

A total of $680 has been collected thus far in the Garrett Park (Md.) community drive for $1000 to outfit its new playground and community center, it was announced yesterday.

Sponsored jointly by the Garrett Park Citizens Association and the Women's Club, the drive will supply funds for furniture and a heating unit. The center will probably open next month, Mrs. Walter Borror, cochairman of the drive, reported.

Already put into the project are two surplus CCC barracks, a two-acre site contributed by the Montgomery Board of Education, $12,400 appropriated by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and 1500 man-hours of voluntary labor.

Qualifications Listed For Virginia Voting

To vote in the State general election November 8, Virginia voters must:

Register by midnight, Saturday, October 8. (In Alexandria at the central registration office at City Hall; in Arlington and Fairfax counties, at the court houses or with precinct registrars.)

Be resident of the State a year before election day and of the city or counties for six months.

Have paid their poll taxes by last May 7.

If they became 21 years old during the calendar year and have lived in the State a year, they may register and vote without payment of poll tax.

Mother Falls Critically Ill at Coast Phone Calling Son Here That Father Is On Deathbed

Death darkened the third wedding anniversary of a Boiling Air Force Base officer yesterday.

Instead of celebrating the anniversary here with his wife, Maj. Orlo L. Austin, base operations officer at Bolling, flew to Yakima, Wash., where his father lay dead and his mother was unconscious in a hospital.

Major Austin received a long-distance call from his mother, Mrs. Grace P. Austin, at about 6:30 p. m. Tuesday.

The mother's call from Yakima had a twofold purpose. She wished to congratulate her son and his wife, Mildred, on their third anniversary, and also to inform him that his father was in a hospital with a heart ailment.

During her conversation, the mother slumped to the floor, victim of a cerebral hemorrhage. Major Austin heard her gasp, "I can't get up."

The Air Force officer immediately telephoned his brothers, Harold V. Austin, jr., and Murray A. Austin, who live in Yakima. They rushed to their mother's home and found her unconscious. She was still unconscious yesterday, her right side paralyzed.

Two hours later came word that Major Austin's father, Harold V. Austin, had died.

Major Austin took off for Yakima early yesterday morning in a B-26.

Major Austin, 29, lives at 4202 Wheeler rd. se. He has been stationed at Bolling for about a year. He is a native of Yakima and a graduate of Kansas State College.

He joined the Air Force in January, 1942, and became a pilot. During the latter part of the war he was operations officer of a fighter squadron. He has received the Distinguished Service Medal and the Air Medal.

Boettiger Paper Ends Publication

Phoenix, Ariz., Oct. 5 (AP).—The Arizona Times, Phoenix afternoon daily newspaper, announced today it would suspend publication, effective today.

The Times began daily publication May 1, 1947. It was established by John Boettiger and his wife, the former Anna Roosevelt Boettiger. They disposed of their interests in July, 1948.

The suspension announcement published by the Times said:

"Only after the most careful consideration have the stockholders reluctantly reached the conclusion that continued publication is not economically feasible.

Crommelin Admits He Gave 'Confidential' Navy Letter to Press

of the letter on Monday he had asked that his name not be used "to prevent any diversion of attention of the American people from the true import of the contents of the three documents."

His statement added:

"I can find nothing in the letter or indorsements as released which is of military 'confidential' nature and which should be withheld from the people of the United States. However, that judgment must be finally made by the people themselves.

"My action in this vital matter may have been a technical violation of a regulation, but it had to be done."

The United Press quoted Admiral Denfeld as saying after he had read Captain Crommelin's statement:

"Oh, My. He did say it."

Asked for further comment, Admiral Denfeld said: "Not a bit. It's very interesting."

Captain Crommelin issued his statement on the eve of a Congressional hearing at which top Navy officers are to tell their story regarding charges that Navy morale has been "shot" by national defense policies.

The House Armed Services Committee called the Navy's ranking chiefs to appear this morning after formally closing its investigation into the B-36 bomber program.

Congressmen expect the new inquiry to produce more explosions than the one just concluded. Navy critics of Pentagon military policies and armed forces unification have had their "case" prepared for weeks and Committee Chairman Vinson (D., Ga.) indicated that Air Force and Army officers will be called in rebuttal.

The committee yesterday voted unanimously to recommend that the Navy fire Cedric R. Worth, Navy civilian official who admitted writing and circulating an anonymous "smear" document accusing Air Force chiefs of wrongdoing in procurement of the B-36.

Shortly thereafter the Navy disclosed that Worth had submitted his resignation August 30 and that it had been accepted the same day by Secretary of the Navy Matthews. Worth earlier had confessed to the House committee that he had no facts to back up his charges.

Matthews headed the list of Navy witnesses invited to appear before the committee this morning. Others were Admiral Denfeld, Admiral Radford and Vice Admiral Bogan.

Among the other witnesses expected to be called by the House committee are Captain Crommelin, Admiral Richard L Connolly, commander of Eastern Atlantic-Mediterranean naval forces, and Adm. William H. P. Blandy, Atlantic Fleet commander.

In closing the B-36 probe, the committee released their special counsel, Joseph Keenan and his associates, with high praise for their work. Vinson said the committee had disproved completely the bomber procurement charges and felt the collateral questions scheduled for investigation in the probe should be completely "divorced" from the B-36 inquiry.

"Collateral" Matters Listed

A report will be submitted to the House on the latter, said Vinson, and then the committee will go ahead with hearings on "collateral" matters, sitting in its regular capacity as a legislative committee.

Several members at first objected but then went along. The "collateral" matters listed in the original agenda include: (1) A determination whether the B-36 is a satisfactory weapon; (2) Was cancellation of the super-aircraft carrier United States wise?; (3) Is the Air Force neglecting tactical aviation in its concentration on strategic air power?; (4) Is the present emphasis on strategic bombing sound?; (5) Should the Army and Air Force be allowed to pass on what weapons the Navy should have and vice versa?

Representative Short (R., Mo.), ranking Republican on the group, declared the committee wanted to hear "all sides of the problem" and said that witnesses should be allowed to testify "freely and frankly" without fear of reprisals from Pentagon chiefs.

Representative Sasscer (D., Md.) lauded the planned program and declared that since the Unification Act centralized control in one man at the Pentagon, the committee must "keep an eye" on the situation.

We must guard against "weakening our team by getting a strong quarterback and then taking the shoes off the halfback," he added.

Later in the day, Defense Secretary Johnson and Matthews conferred with President Truman. They described the meeting as "routine" and not connected with publication of the confidential documents.

Johnson told reporters he disapproved their release, but left such matters with the respective services to handle.

Democrats Set Fight for Olds

the nominee. By its vote the committee upheld a 7 to 0 tally against Olds by a subcommittee Tuesday.

Administration leaders indicated the Senate probably will not be asked to vote before Monday.

Senator Lyndon Johnson (D., Tex.), the subcommittee chairman, said Democratic Leader Lucas (Ill.) told him he wants the Senate to act as soon as possible.

Assistant Democratic Leaders Myers (Pa.) and Johnson (Tex.) agreed that the prospects for Senate approval "are very poor" despite the President's intervention. Johnson said he doubts if any Republican Senators will vote to confirm Olds and that he doesn't expect the nominee to get more than a "handful" of Democratic votes.

Olds was criticized at subcommittee hearings for his radical writings in the 1920s and for his views on Federal regulation of the natural gas industry. Olds admitted he wrote radically as a young man, but said he did so to shock the people into seeking reforms.

The 58-year-old nominee denied he ever has been a Communist or that his writing supported Communist philosophies as contended by his opponents.

Mr. Truman wrote Chairman Johnson (Colo.) and Vice President Barkley Tuesday. He said nothing had been disclosed in the testimony which "raises any doubt in my mind as to his (Olds') integrity, loyalty or ability."

Instead, Mr. Truman said, "powerful corporations" are opposing Olds. He added that great corporations cannot be allowed to dominate commissions set up to regulate them.

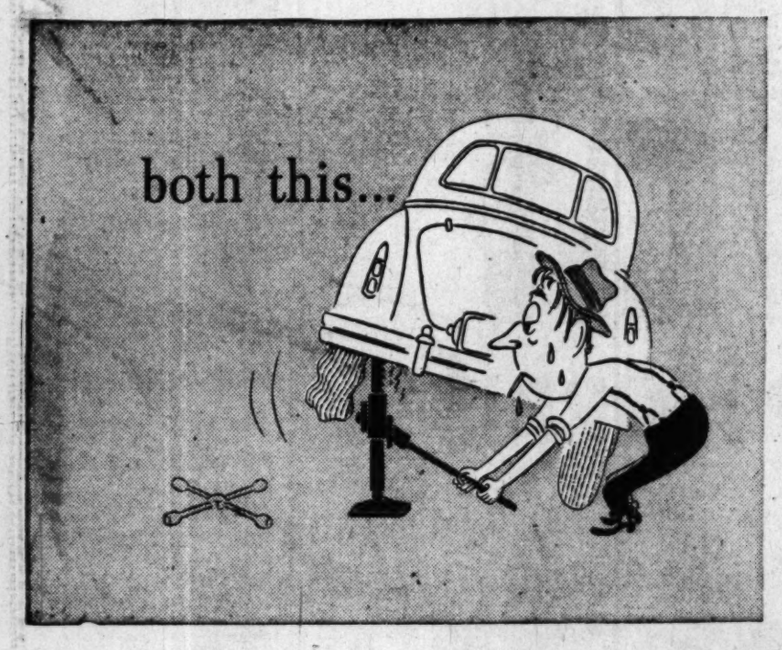
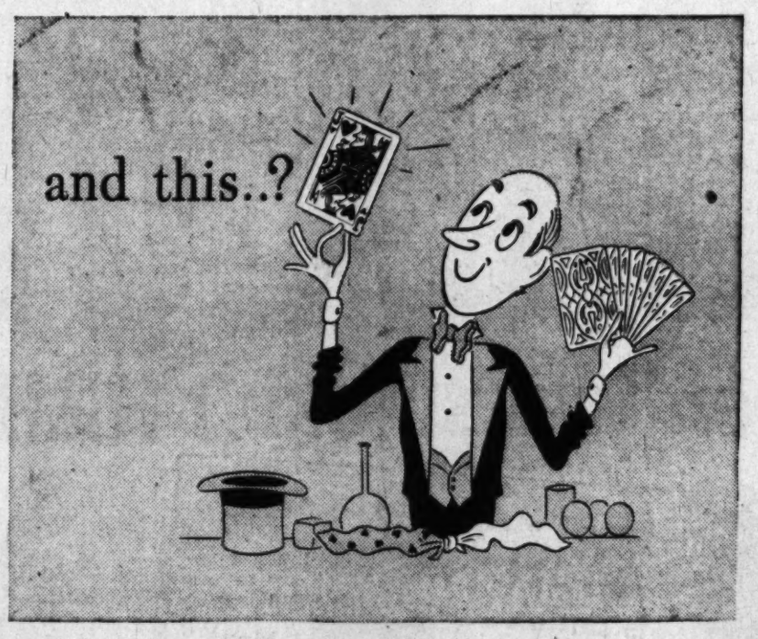
Guess which 4-letter word means...





But no guessing about BALLANTINE

...it always means PURITY BODY FLAVOR

• The word is jack! Right you are! There's the jack that spares the motorist's back . . . the jack the magician charms from the pack. Jack, you see, is a word with more than one meaning; it can keep you guessing.

But no guessing about Ballantine! Ballantine always means PURITY, BODY, FLAVOR . . . the qualities symbolized by Peter Ballantine's 3-ring trade mark. Look for the 3 rings . . . call for Ballantine—America's finest since 1840.

One on the Aisle—

'Ichabod' Is Fine Disney, Plus Bing

By Richard L. Coe

WALT DISNEY'S latest, at Keith's, is the cartoon master's best in years—no wretched human beings cluttering up his drawings.

He calls it "The Adventures of Ichabod and Mr. Toad," which means he's devoting a half-hour to Kenneth Grahame's "The Wind in the Willows" and a half-hour to Washington Irving's "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow."

To relate what happens in the English classic, Basil Rathbone is on hand. Bing Crosby both sings and narrates for Irving's spooky yarn about Ichabod Crane.

Of the two, I think Ichabod comes off the better. This one benefits a lot from Bing's friendly voice and from some of the handsomest drawings Disney's ever put on the screen. The colors in this favorite of Washington Irving's yarns are rich and striking, and there's a splendor in them that will stick in your memory.

Irving, I'm sure, would have been delighted with this rollicking version of his tale about the gawky schoolmaster who loses out in his pursuit of the wealthy Katrina van Tassel because the headless horseman frightens him overmuch on Halloween.

The horseman, a fiery, be-caped knight, is a frightening fellow indeed, but whether he'll be too overpowering for the small fry is beyond me. My personal idea is that youngsters are likely to take the fellow in fun and that it won't do them any lasting harm. Friend Hopkins' 8-year-old and 5-year-old went to "The Wizard of Oz" the other day; the 8-year-old ate it up, the younger one was scared stiff.

The Wonderful Mole

"The Wind in the Willows," which is one of the most delightful books ever written, is good Disney but by no means the best of Grahame. This is the story of a flighty toad who gets tossed in jail because he's stolen an auto. His friends, Rat, Mole and Badger, help clear his name as well as his mansion, Toad Hall, but at the fade-out Toad is off on another frolic.

A good deal of "The Wind in the Willows'" charm lay in Grahame's neat, satirical language, much of which is necessarily lost in the pictorial telling. Rathbone's voice and those of Eric Blore, Pat O'Malley and Claude Allister sharpen the wry tone and the drawings have a quiet humor about them. Still, those Ernest Shepherd did for one popular edition are so superior that the Disney suffers by comparison.

The device of linking the two stories is unfortunate and uninspired, being in the question of which is a better classic, the English or the American one. One reason certain works become classics is that they are incomparable to anything else, and to compare the Grahame with the Irving is a gratuitous devaluation of both. Especially since the English story is much harder to film and consequently is less effective. However, the comparison technique may lead the curious to refresh their memories of both originals.

At all events, "The Adventures of Ichabod and Mr. Toad" is good Disney, which is saying a whale of a lot.

SECRETARY SNYDER said yesterday that he was not only all in favor of getting the Belasco Theater back into dramatic harness, but that his Treasury Department could and would hurry to get out of the building . . . With the department head taking so firm, helpful a public stand, this should help clear sights all the way down the line . . . This morning, a meeting will be held in Senator Flanders' office between interested Government agencies and members of a special ANTA committee coming down from New York . . . To the Gotham travelers, welcome, bless you for coming, and good luck.

SEATS FOR the Milton Berle variety show Friday night at Uline's are now on sale at Mrs. Stabler's in Jordan's, 13th and G sts. . . . The Almas Temple box office at 1315 K st. also is open daily from 9 ayem to 9 p. m. . . . "Mr. Television," as they call the comic, will have seven variety vaudeville acts along with him for the three-hour show, which is aiding charities of the local Shriners . . . The night's festivities are part of the three-day Mid-Atlantic Shrine Convention which begins here today.

SPEAKING of vaudeville, the Capitol's going to have an eight-act show in the old vaudeville style for the week beginning the 13th . . . Yes, there'll be a picture, too, "Slattery's Hurricane,' and you'll be getting a show bound to run over three hours . . . True, the Capitol has never given up its "in-the flesh" programs which have been the rule since Roxy opened the theater as the Fox, but it's been years since eight acts of vaudeville have paraded across a stage in our town . . . Unless you count some of those vaudeville revenues once seen at the Unnatural National.

TRAVELER RETURNS—Kay DeWitt comes back to the Capitol Theater and Sam Jack Kaufman's orchestra today after a summer of combined sunning and singing up in the north country. Kay's songs have made her a top Capitol favorite

Independents' Sales Off 3% Here in Month

By S. Oliver Goodman

Combined dollar volume of Washington independent retailers in August showed a 3 percent decline, compared with the same 1948 month, and was 6 percent less than in July, the Census Bureau reported yesterday.

Launching of the local sales tax in August was believed to be a factor. Nonchain sales here in previous months had been trending higher. For the first eight months the Census Bureau said local independents' sales were 3 percent higher than in the same 1948 period.

Only five of 20 fields displayed increases during the month. These were in food, bakeries, custom tailors, auto dealers and filling stations.

Sharpest declines were noted in women's apparel, lumber and building materials, auto accessory, fuel and ice, liquor and drinking places.

Here is how individual trades fared here in August and the first eight months, compared with the corresponding 1948 periods:

HONORED: Herbert J. Rich, president of B. Rich's Sons shoe store at 1001 F st. nw., last night presented diamond pins to Andrew Smith and John Dillon for 25 years service and a sapphire pin to Edgar Werner who has completed 20 years. Occasion was the eightieth birthday celebration of the firm at the Woodmont Country Club. Entire store force, directors and their families attended. The business was started in 1869 by Bernard and Max M. Rich, the grandfather and father of the present president. Frank H. Rich, great grandson and grandson of the founders, is vice president.

H. J. Rich

NEW FIRM: A new wholesale jewelry firm, Horace Pack & Co. Inc., has been opened here with offices in the Homer Building. Founder is Horace Pack, who has been identified for the past 20 years in the Washington jewelry field. He formerly was manager of Blustein Co. Inc., and previously was general manager of Schwartz F st. store from 1940 until 1948.

ODD LOTS: Esso Standard Oil Co. has adopted a new program of supplemental allowances for its lower-income retired employes, effective next year . . . Post Carrier Of '84 Recalls Good Old Days

About the only similarity between 1884 and 1949 in the Washington area, it seems, is that you got your Washington Post bright and early in the morning, then as now.

In other respects, 1949, has a long way to go, according to Frank W. Vedder, who entered The Post's contest to find the four former carrier boys who delivered the paper the longest time ago.

The 82-year-old retired Government clerk, now living at 231 Massachusetts ave. ne., recalls somewhat longingly what a dollar could do then.

"A dinner, with soup, meat, vegetables and dessert with coffee, tea or milk," he says, "was 20 cents. In summer, eggs were 16 cents a dozen." That made his $6-a-month wages fairly impressive.

"Even the bandits were different then," he reports, "in those days, they would never rob a woman."

In 1903, writes Charles J. Dean of 509 Massachusetts ave. nw., it was possible to enhance your paycheck with scrap cake handouts from the baker along the route and free ginger ale from the early-bird barrooms along 7th st. nw.

The traffic lights, too, had a more human touch. Dean recalls the flagmen at 7th st. and Massachusetts ave. nw. waving red and green lanterns to direct the street cars across the intersection in the early morning darkness.

Moon Eclipse To Start at 6:50 Tonight

Look heavenward tonight and you'll see some celestial color works on the Moon.

The eclipse will begin at 6:50 p.m., although you'll hardly be aware of it. This marks the beginning of the penumbra during which part but not all of the sun's rays are cut off from the moon.

At 8:05 p.m. begins the real show, the umbra. Now the bright surface of the moon begins to change to a dim copper hue.

At 9:20 p.m. begins the total eclipse. The moon will be hanging in the sky like a faintly shining copper medalion. The moon's only illumination will be the small bit of sunlight bending around the earth's atmosphere and refracting to the moon. Totality of eclipse will continue until 10:33 p. m.

It's Raschi Against Roe in Second Game Today

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

YANKEE STADIUM, New York, Oct. 5.—The debate set in almost before the lucky fan in the right field seats could stuff Tommy Henrich's home run ball in his pocket. In the Yankee dressing room they were saying it was a fast ball. "Fast curve," Don Newcombe was sadly maintaining in the Dodgers' clubhouse.

Henrich, himself, was no help in the discussion. "Don't know what it was—it looked good," he said, "coming and going."

POVICH

Newcombe's home-run pitch was his fatal mistake, but not his original error. "You can't have Henrich up there swinging with a two-and-nothing count, if you're a pitcher," said Yankee Manager Casey Stengel. "Newcombe was in a hole when he didn't get those first two to Tommy over the plate."

Henrich, incidentally, hadn't achieved anything that Stengel personally couldn't boast. His manager, too, knew what it was to win a 1-0 World Series game with a home run. Back in 1923 he'd beaten the Yankees for the Giants by that score in the third game of the series.

FOR THE DODGERS, their defeat was full of paradoxes. Manager Burt Shotton was swayed in his choice of Newcombe as his opening game pitcher because of the fellow's potentiality as a hitter. Newcombe went hitless and Reynolds, his opponent, collected two hits for the Yankees.

At the finish, when Reynolds had completed his two-hitter against the Dodgers, he was jubilant. "How were they going to lick me when they couldn't even outhit me?" he laughed. At this point in the series, it is, indeed: The Dodgers, two hits; Reynolds, two hits.

Reynolds was never sharper. For this day he reserved what must have been the best game of his life. He was throwing into the teeth of that bulky portion of critics the old charges that he was the most faint-hearted of the Yankee pitching staff. They had pointed to the fact that he had finished only four of the games he started this season.

"Thanks for the day off," said Joe Page, as he wrung the hand of Reynolds after the game.

FOR THE DODGERS at this point it doesn't look good. It's a rare club that loses the opener and wins the series. But there was really nothing frightening in the performance of the Yankees today, and in Newcombe, the Dodgers turned up a pitcher who must be the favorite in his next start.

That one jolt by Henrich licked 'em. It was the Dodgers who were threatening all day to break through, while the Yankees were almost helpless against Newcombe. You couldn't say the Dodgers are a team to weaken on. Like the Yankees, they like rough going, and in that Dodger line-up there is power to win the series, yet.

That's what I think will happen—that the Dodgers will take it. Joe DiMaggio, far off in his timing, is not whipping his bat well, as two pop-ups and a strikeout today attest. This isn't going to be a short World Series.

Pick-The-Winner

Oklahoma-Texas Top Contest Puzzler

OKLAHOMA VS. TEXAS in the Dallas Cotton Bowl promises to be the most thrilling game in the country this Saturday.

Appropriately, it will be the tie-breaker in The Washington Post's Pick-The-Winners contest.

Always a tremendous football game, this year the Oklahoma-Texas winner has a good chance of going on to become the top team in the Nation. Oklahoma crushed Boston College, 46-0, and Texas A. & M., 33-13.

Texas has rolled over Texas Tech, 43-0; Temple, 54-0, and Idaho, 56-7.

As in previous seasons, this year's contest will reward those who know their teams and are students of the game. Read closely accounts of games throughout the season. Remember, this is a game of skill.

Each week the winner of the contest will receive two tickets to the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia, November 26, and an all-expenses-paid trip to this game for two persons.

The person submitting the most accurate entry each week also will receive four tickets to a major college or professional game in this area. The Washington Post will select this game.

The contest each week will include 21 major colleges games. Each contestant will select the winner (or tie) of 20 of these games. On the 21st game, each contestant will give the "Probable Score."

Little World Series Postponed by Rain

Indianapolis, Oct. 5 (AP).—Steady rain that began falling about an hour before game time tonight forced postponement of the fourth game of the little world series.

The advance portion of a crowd which was expected to reach an overflow of more than 15,000 fans already was in its seats for the resumption of play between Indianapolis and Montreal.

The home club, winners of the American Association playoff championship, held a 2-to-1 edge over the International League playoff champions.

Newcombe Lauds Job By Reynolds

By Ted Smits

New York, Oct. 5 (AP)—There was grimness in the face of Brooklyn Dodger Manager Burt Shotton but he forced a smile.

"One pitch did it," he said. "If it weren't for that we'd still be out there."

He was, of course, referring to the pitch that Yankee Tommy Henrich hit into the right field stands in the ninth inning today to give the New York Yankees the first World Series game 1-0.

Asked about his pitching choice for tomorrow, Shotten said: "I should think it would be Roe."

Roe is Preacher Roe the Dodger southpaw who won 15 and lost six over the season.

Elsewhere in the Dodger dressing room the reactions were varied.

Don Newcombe, a pitcher who came close to series immortality, sagged down his 235 pounds and pressed his resin-stained finger and thumb against the bridge of his nose to hold back the tears.

"Reynolds pitched a helluva ball game," he said in a voice so low it could scarcely be heard.

The dressing room was deadly quiet.

"You can't get runs when you face pitching like that," said Jackie.

Newcombe whispered that it was a curve that Tommy Henrich belted for the decisive ninth-inning home run—"a curve ball, a good pitch."

Newcombe said he didn't know that the World Series record for strikeouts was 13, set by Howard Ehmke in 1929, and that he was only two short of it.

Yanks Again 7-5 Choice in 2d Game

New York, Oct. 5 (U.P.).—With 21-game winner Vic Raschi scheduled to pitch tomorrow for New York and Preacher Roe expected to go for Brooklyn, the odds for the second World Series game are listed tonight at 7 to 5 in favor of the Yankees.

'Skins Finally Elevate Turk

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

After two months of filling in as the Washington Redskins' line coach, Turk Edwards yesterday became an executive vice president of the firm in fact as well as title.

Into the line coaching job stepped Herman Ball, who was previously designated as the Skins' chief scout, and taking over Ball's scouting duties was Al Heagy, former Maryland University mentor who worked for the Redskins on a part-time basis for some time.

There was no reason for the change, insisted Redskin Owner George Marshall, beyond the fact that just such a set-up was planned at the time Edwards was removed in favor of Billick Whelchel as head coach.

A good job of coaching the line has been done by Edwards, Marshall said, and Whelchel expressed regret that big Turk is needed elsewhere.

Edwards, it was announced, will confine himself to front office work, the contacting and signing of new material, plus a small amount of scouting. Ball, who called most of the plays over the roof-top telephone at Pittsburgh on Monday, will handle linemen during the week and continue calling the plays from upstairs on Sunday. All substitutions will be made by Whelchel and his backfield coach, Wilbur Moore, on the field.

Meanwhile there was no letup in Redskin preparations for Sunday's home opener against the New York Giants at Griffith Stadium. The team will continue to work out at American University field until Friday morning when they move into the stadium for their first drill.

Redskin headquarters announced that plenty of seats are still available for Sunday and for the team's five other home games. With more than 21,000 season tickets already sold, Sunday's crowd is expected to be well over 30,000.

Griffith Wants Playing Manager With Drive, Whip

New York, Oct. 5.—Clark Griffith today indicated that the next manager of the Washington club will be a playing manager.

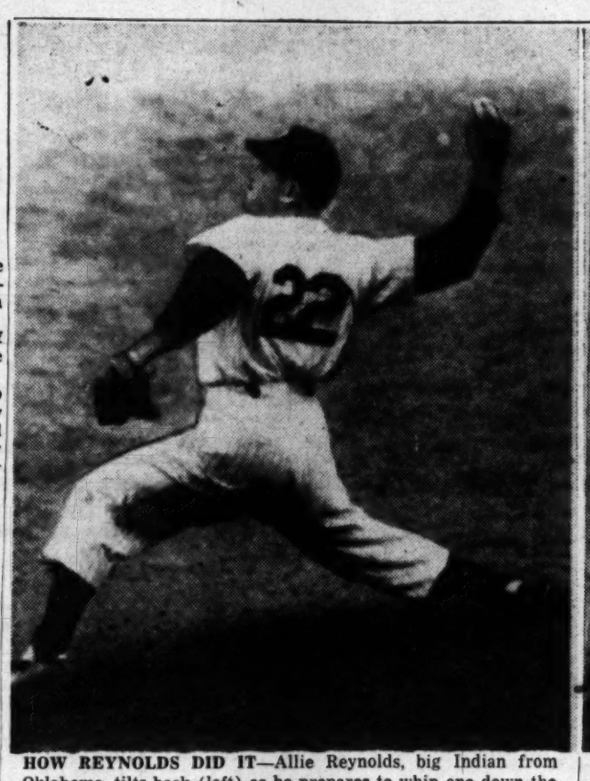
"If I could find the right man, with some drive and whip to him, I'd rather have a playing manager," said the Washington owner.

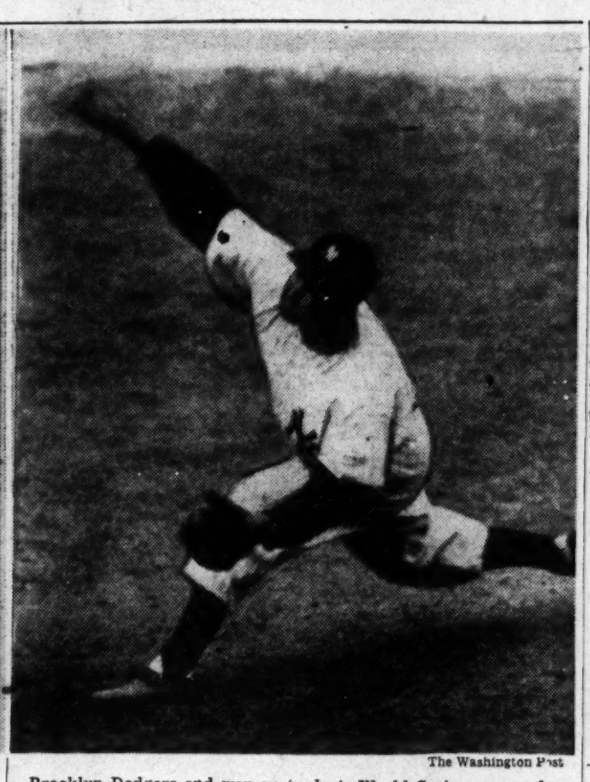
The listlessness of the Nats under Joe Kuhel rankled him worse than the defeats, said Griffith. "The leadership wasn't there," he said, defining for the first time his dissatisfaction with Kuhel.

"Our club showed that when it was eager it could win games, as they did in taking those two from the Red Sox and Yankees near the finish," said Griffith.

He pointed out that Washingtons only three pennant winners were under playing managers—Bucky Harris in 1924-25 and Joe Cronin in 1933.

"I may have to swap some talent for the man we want to play and manage the club," said Griffith, "but I'm willing to do that. I'm going to exhaust the possibility of a playing manager before I name any other man to the job. It may take until December.





The Washington Post

HOW REYNOLDS DID IT—Allie Reynolds, big Indian from Oklahoma, tilts back (left) as he prepares to whip one down the alley (right) in the style which gave up only two hits to the Brooklyn Dodgers and won yesterday's World Series opener for the Yankees, 1-0. "Old Wahoo" walked four, struck out nine

To Bums Henrich Is Poison

New York, Oct. 5 (AP).—Tommy Henrich is strictly poison to the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Henrich, who homered in the ninth inning today to give the New York Yankees a 1-0 victory over the Dodgers in the first game of the 1949 World Series, always has been a pain to the Dodgers.

Exactly eight years ago today, October 5, 1941, Henrich struck out in the ninth inning at Brooklyn for what appeared to be the final out of the game but Catcher Mickey Owen dropped the ball and Henrich reached first safely. The Yanks promptly teed off and scored four runs to win the game, 7-4.

The next day the Yanks beat the Dodgers, 3-1, to take the series, four games to one. One of the Yank runs was a home run by a guy named Tommy Henrich.

A home run by Henrich helped the Yanks win the second game of the 1947 series against the Dodgers. Tommy led off the fifth inning with a homer to give the Yanks a 4-2 lead. The Yanks went on to win, 10-3.

The last time Reynolds, who only pitched four complete games in 31 starts during the regular season, went the distance was on September 3 when he shut out Washington, 6-0, on three hits.

Tommy Is Stealing Casey's Stuff With Those Homers

(The following World Series briefs were taken from the wires of Associated Press and United Press.)

New York, Oct. 4—When Tommy Henrich broke up the first series game with a home run in the ninth inning he was duplicating a feat pulled by his manager, Casey Stengel, during the 1923 series between the Yankees and the Giants.

Casey smashed a blow that beat the Yankees, 5 to 4, in the ninth inning of the first game with an inside-the-park homer to left center. Then in the seventh inning of the third game Casey lowered the boom again with a hit into the right field bleachers. This second blast gave the Giants a 1-0 victory over the Yankees.

"That Henrich—I ought to get mad at him," shouted Stengel as he prepared to take his shower.

"Tommy is stealing my stuff. Why, my two home runs in the 1923 World Series won the only games for the Giants against the Yankees that year.

"I was all prepared to go on a vaudeville tour with Gus Van and Joe Schenck. But along came a fellow named Babe Ruth. He hit three home runs in that series. They thought Ruth would be more valuable on a tour so I didn't get to be an actor.

Dodgers Call Ump 'Homer'

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—The New York Daily News tonight quoted Jackie Robinson of the Brooklyn Dodgers as saying of World Series Plate Umpire Cal Hubbard that "I've never seen such bad strikes called. He actually called a pitch-out a strike. That's the payoff."

The paper went on to say:

"Robinson was referring to the pitch on which Peewee Reese stole second in the eighth. Spider Jorgensen was at bat, let the ball whiz by, and was shocked to learn, an instant later, that Hubbard had called it a strike.

"'It was wide,' related Jorgie, 'and way up here'— and he stretched his arm out at forehead height. 'And he called it a strike.'"

The newspaper started its story, written by Dick Young, by saying:

"They were cursing about a 'homer' in the dejected Dodger clubhouse—and they didn't mean the sudden death homer that Tommy Henrich had just blasted to break the 1-0 tingler for the Yanks in the final frame. They were talking about Plate Umpire Cal Hubbard, and calling him 'an American League homer,' which is the stock sports expression for criticizing an official on the grounds he favors the home club."

4100 Pay $1.20 Each To See Series Video

A capacity crowd saw the first World Series game by television on the full-size screen of a Brooklyn movie theater. It was the first time a series game ever had been televised in a movie house.

The Brooklyn Fabian Fox theater was filled to its 4100-seat capacity by fans who paid $1.20 each to see both the series and regular show. Popcorn, peanut and soda pop venders moved up and down the aisles, selling their wares during the game.

One Dodger rooter brought changes of linen, announcing he was going to stay in the theater for the entire series.

Brooklyn Boy Has Fun About Yanks Invalids

The hundreds of baseball fans who lined up early for the sale of bleacher seats at Yankee Stadium got a laugh out of this:

A 'teenager, obviously a Brooklyn rooter, walked by. He had his right thumb in a thick bandage, had the length of his right arm bandaged and carried his left arm in a sling.

He carried a sign: "The Brooks will give 10 percent of winning series share to Yank old age and invalid fund."

In addition he wore a rubber shoe heel attached to a placard which said: "Joe Dee's $100,000 heel."

Casey's Mind Made Up

Irked at Burt Shotton's coyness at naming Brooklyn's starting pitchers, Casey Stengel of the Yankees said he'd show 'em and reeled off his starters for the next three days—Vic Raschi, Ed Lopat, and Tommy Byrne.

Then I'll come back in again with Allie Reynolds," Casey said.

Stadium Not Sold Out

Probably the biggest rat race for tickets in World Series history has been going on all over New York, but any guy with a spare dollar bill could have walked right in to a bleacher seat almost up to game time.

News pictures of those baseball filberts who stayed in line all night in the rain discouraged less hardy folk who said "What's the use?" and stayed home.

The stadium was not sold out.

BASEBALL COMMISSIONER

A. B. Chandler passed up his time-honored prerogative of pitching out the first ball. Proudly, Old Happy turned the job over to 8-year-old Bruce Howard of New York, a smiling youngster who is licking polio.

Reynolds disclosed that his son, Allie, jr., 13, declined invitation to attend the World Series.

"I'd rather go hunting with you after the World Series," the boy told his famous father.

It might have been a different ball game had Stengel yielded to an urge in the eighth inning and yanked Reynolds for a pinch hitter.

"With Coleman (Gerry) on second after his double and only one out," Casey explained, "I was toying with the idea of putting in a pinch hitter for Reynolds and finishing with Joe Page. But Allie changed my mind for me. Before I knew it, he was standing at the plate ready to hit."

Grid Fans Start Ticket Rush For 'Skins Clinic Wednesday

Washington's football students apparently know a good thing when they see it.

In their earnest desire to learn as much as possible about the game from those who play it best—the professionals—they started an amazing rush for tickets yesterday to next Wednesday's Redskin Football Clinic, sponsored by The Washington Post at Griffith Stadium.

Washingtonians weren't alone in their desire for a behind-the-scenes look at the Redskins while they practice, or for the instruction which will highlight the program.

From Alexandria came an order from Oliver Maechtle, director of the Alexandria Boys Club, for 400 tickets to the first portion of the Redskin Clinic. A second will be staged a week later, on October 19, also at Griffith Stadium.

Maechtle's tickets, he said, will be distributed to four other clubs in Alexandria beside his own—Del Ray Boys Club, St. Mary's, St. Paul's and the Junior Optimists.

In order that every member of each club will be able to watch the Redskins in action, Maechtle is making arrangements with the Alexandria Dairy for the use of several trucks to transport youthful grid enthusiasts to the stadium.

At Gonzaga High, Coach Joe Kozik was every bit as enthusiastic as Maechtle about the clinic. He said a school bus in addition to a truck will transport Gonzaga's varsity and junior varsity elevens to the clinic, and he was confident that at

The 'Old Pro' Takes Homer In Stride

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

New York, Oct. 5 (AP).—The New York Yankees have named right-hander Vic Raschi, who came through with 21 victories and 10 defeats during the season to start the second World Series game against the Brooklyn Dodgers.

After their first game 1-0 victory the Yankees were a serious lot.

Over on one side of the dressing room Raschi was muttering, "what a ball game!" and Joe Diaggio, still weak form his recent illness, was telling reporters: "I stood up for nine innings; that's regulation."

Tommy Henrich pushed his cap back and scratched his head. There was a puzzled look on his face as he said,

"I don't know what kind of a pitch it was that I hit. I think it was either a fast ball or a slider. Anyway it looked pretty good, so I hit it.'

In the dressing room, the Yankee first baseman was doing his best to live up to his nickname of "the old pro." He wasn't showing much excitement and was doing his best to analyze the game.

"I never saw a World Series game that had the pitchers so much in charge," Tommy continued. "The players on our bench all were saying that Newcombe gave them very few good ones to hit. He really was the boss, and so was Reynolds."

Allie Reynolds, who shut out the Dodgers with two hits, was taking his second World Series victory just as calmly. He posed giving Henrich a big hug for the benefit of photographers, then, still wearing a jacket over his uniform, he explained.

"No, I didn't have as much stuff today as I had the other day against Boston, but I just couldn't find the plate then, today I had good control."

In his private office, Manager Casey Stengel looked as if he had been working harder than the players. As he cooled off and accepted congratulations from his bosses, Del Webb and Dan Topping, Stengel commented.

"I had been taking Reynolds out all along about seventh inning this season but today I decided to wait until he weakened. I didn't even have anybody warmed up when they had two men on bases in the fifth."

Shifty Weatherman Calls for Rain Now

New York, Oct. 5 (U.P.).—The weather man changed his mind for the second time tonight and came up with bad news for World Series fans—possible rain at game time tomorrow.

The latest forecast said: "Increasing and thickening cloudiness tomorrow, followed by rain in afternoon or evening continuing into the night."

Mauriello Kayoed; Says He'll Quit

New York, Oct. 5 (AP).—Argentina's Cesar Brion stopped Tami Mauriello in 2:18 of the second round of a scheduled 10-round fight tonight at St. Nicholas Arena and the veteran New York heavyweight announced he was retiring from the ring.

"I am through. I don't intend to fight again," the battered Mauriello said in his dressing room after the bout.

of his own, only one of them in the first four innings.

And so the Yankees collared this first, important victory of the series and zoomed into lop-sided favoritism to take it all, shooting now for two straight on the morrow.

Brooklyn Manager Burt Shotton, who withheld announcement of Newcombe as today's pitching choice until just before game time, will go tomorrow with his No. 2 man, Elwin (Preacher) Roe, the lefthander who has won 15 and lost 6.

For the Yankees, Manager Casey Stengel has announced he will toss his No. 1 man, Righthander Vic Raschi (21-10) at the Bums. Like Roe for the Dodgers, it was Raschi who won the critical games for the Yanks in the last frenzied week of the pennant race.

Muscling into the hero picture for the Yankees today was also Joe DiMaggio, who saved Reynolds' scalp in the sixth inning with a magnificent catch of a smash into deep left center by Jackie Robinson that threatened to blow the game open.

With one on and one out, Robinson overpowered a 3-and-2 pitch and belted it seemingly for extra bases, but DiMaggio, showing no sign of his recent illness siege, galloped far to his right to haul the ball in.

Into the World Series till the big crowd dumped $313,727 for this opening game, after early morning rain quit and a warm afternoon, on the humid side, came up. The sun was playing hide-and-seek with the clouds all day.

Newcombe's fast ball was hiding from the Yankees for the most part, and only seven of his pitches did they hit beyond the infield. He was showering down with strikeouts in every inning except the first and eighth, and walking nobody in contrast to spells of wildness that had Reynolds in trouble.

It was the Dodgers who raised the first scoring threat, with Lindell a contributor. Unaccountably misjudging Jorgenson's fly to left with one out in the first inning, Lindell could never catch up and the ball dropped for two bases. But in this crisis, Reynolds struck out Duke Snyder and got rid of Jackie Robinson on a soft pop to Mapes.

And Reynolds was inviting disaster in the second inning, through inability to get his 3-and-2 pitch over the plate. He walked Hermanski with none out, and the Dodgers were playing for a run with Furillo attempting to sacrifice.

Fouling off two pitches, Fruillo was forced to hit away, and Reynolds grabbed his smash at the box with one hand to start a double play that got him out of trouble.

Johnny Lindell tried to launch a Yankee rally in the second with a single to left with one out, but Newcombe buckled down and fanned Johnson and Mapes for his third strikeout of the inning.

Guilt somewhere in the Dodger strategy gave Reynolds a gift double with one out in the third when Left Fielder Hermanski played the Yankee pitcher far toward center at a time when Newcombe was throwing a curve ball that Reynolds could pull, and did for two bases. But Newcombe disposed of Rizzuto and Henrich on pop-ups.

Rookie Second Baseman Gerry Coleman tossed the day's only error into the proceedings in the fifth when he bobbled Furillo's soft grounder to put a man on with none out. Hodges sacrificed this time, and Campanella drew a walk, but Reynolds fanned Newcombe and got rid of Reese on a ground ball.

By the sixth inning, Reynolds was not only keeping the Dodgers scoreless, but he was actually outhitting them, with his second blow of the day, a single through short that opened the inning. The Yanks couldn't press that chance.

Rizzuto grounded to Jorgensen, who threw to Robinson for a force on Reynolds. There was no double play because Reynolds barged into Robinson. They swapped words and drew scowls from the umpires. A bit later, Snyder drifted far back for Henrich's bid for a hit to get Newcombe out of the inning.

Reynolds had DiMaggio's help on Robinson's drive after walking Snyder to start the Dodgers' sixth, but after that he required little help. He struck out two in that inning, fanned two more Dodgers in the seventh, and opened the eighth by striking out Newcombe.

At that point Reese got a single to center, and stole second with the help of Berra's high throw. Whereupon Reynolds took charge again, and sent Jorgensen and Snyder down swinging for this third strike out of the inning.

Coleman, seemingly atoning for his fifth-inning error, doubled down the right field line with one out in the eighth for the fourth Yankee hit, but this time Newcombe slipped a third strike past Reynolds. And he got Rizzuto on a modest fly to Snider.

Reynolds moved easily past the Brooklyn ninth, disposing of Robinson, Hermanski and Furillo on five pitches, and now the Yankees could clinch it for him. Henrich maneuvered Newcombe into that two balls—no strike spot, and everybody went home.

At Laurel

Dear Folks:

In my more than 25 years of knocking around the tracks, both as an amateur and a pro, I thought I had encountered almost every conceivable angle of the sport. But an old dog continues to learn another trick now and then. For instance, I happened to be in the manager's office when a man came in, handed the official a sum of money, laughed and left. A few days later I met the same fellow and he asked, "I guess you are wondering why I gave him that money?" I denied being nosey but he continued "my wife won't let me go to the track more than once a week unless I'm working there. So I pay my own salary, tell her I'm working and give her the associations check at the end of the meeting."—BILL.

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Laurel, Md., Oct. 5.—In a powerhouse photo finish with both colts and jockeys giving their all, Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Foreign Affair hung a lip-wide defeat on the Bobanet Stable's Mystagogue here today.

Before a crowd of 8000 the son of Discovery proved the fourth winner for the Vanderbilt forces in the $10,000 added Maryland Futurity. Mrs. R. H. Heighe's Meringue was third in the nineteenth running of the famous 2-year-old classic.

Foreign Affair, whose victory was not assured until the unraveling of the negative, not only won for Vanderbilt, who made his first racing appearance of the fall season here, but for the favorite players as well. The dark gray colt paid a mere $3.80 mutuel.

Third Win of Year

It was the second victory in a row for Foreign Affairs and his third of the year in 10 tries. Jockey Eric Guerin, who came down from Belmont for the saddle task, rode the colt the 6 furlongs in 1.13 2/5 about average for the event.

Foreign Affair joined Newsweekly, New World and Speed to Spare, the others to carry the familiar cerise, white diamonds and white cap to victory in the Maryland-foaled contest.

Vanderbilt, owner as well as breeder of Foreign Affair took away three trophies, one presented by the Maryland Horse Breeders Association. President H. L. Straus made the presentation.

Foreign Affairs won in courageous fashion. Mystagogue set the early pace and on the far turn opened what appeared to be a pay lead. However, Guerin took the Discovery colt to the center of the track and placed him under a drive.

Through the stretch Foreign Affair gradually wore down the Baltimore-owned Mystagogue. At the eighth pole there was some doubt about the Vanderbilt colt getting up in time. But he was there with flying colors in the last jump.

The victory was worth $7300 to Foreign Affair to bring his 1949 earnings to $13,750. In addition, he ran up $600 for owner Vanderbilt as the breeder's award.

By 5-4 Vote at Heated Session

Board of Education Creates Special Group To Improve Sports In District Schools

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Midst wrangling and the angry pointing of fingers, the Board of Education yesterday voted to appoint a separate committee to improve the schools athletic program.

C. Melvin Sharpe, board president, cast the deciding ballot, breaking a 4-4 deadlock. Sharpe said that he will appoint the committee within 10 days.

Appointment of Albert Steinem as chairman is expected. He has been one of the leaders in the fight favoring stronger community participation in high school sports.

Approval of a separate committee gives interhigh sports a shot in the arm.

It insures that night football will get a stronger airing before the board, and that player insurance will be proposed. It is expected that the new group will recommend a new administration setup along the lines proposed by Dr. George D. Strayer, in his report to Congress last March.

Dr. Strayer termed the administration "wasteful . . . outmoded . . . intolerable . . . absurd . . . and probably illegal."

The time is past, Dr Strayer declared, when "athletics should be kindly tolerated and suspiciously supervised" by the principals.

He recommended that the title of "Head" of the Health Physical Education and Safety Department be changed to "Director," and that the director be just that, not merely the tool of the principals, unfamiliar and unsympathetic to the needs of the sports program.

Dr. Strayer called the scholastic eligibility rules "absurd" because they required athletes to pass four major subjects per semester. Since then, the requirements have been relaxed to three subjects.

Leading the heated opposition to the athletic committee was Dr. James Gannon.

"We are making a big mistake in placing this new emphasis on athletics," said Dr. Gannon. "We would do better to spend our money emphasizing music and history and English.

"I am against night games. It takes away the energy and interest of the students. It encourages gambling," said Gannon.

Steinem interrupted asking, "You mean there is more gambling at night than during the day?"

Dr. Gannon ignored the question and continued, "Even I might become so interested as to start gambling. I like to gamble a little myself."

This time Dr. Philip Johnson, another board member, interrupted, "Do you mean that you'd gamble at high school games?"

"I could if the games were played at night," retorted Dr. Gannon.

Even after the vote was taken, the argument continued.

Mrs. Philip S. Smith, one of the committee's opponents, questioned the "ethics" of Sharpe's breaking the tie vote.

His face red with anger, Sharpe ponted a finger at Mrs. Smith and exclaimed, "I resent your questioning my honesty. I feel very strongly in favor of this committee . . . Your remarks are those of frustration and deep disappointment in losing the vote."

Adelbert W. Lee, who voted in favor of the committee, pointed out that it was the president's duty to vote in case of a tie.

Later, Sharpe apologized "for my intemperate remarks."

Voting in favor were Lee, Johnson, Steinem, Sharpe and Mrs. Edward C. Magdeburger. Against were Gannon, Mrs. Smith, John Wilson and Mrs. Velma G. Williams.

Capot Beats Coaltown at Belmont

New York, Oct. 5 (AP)—Greentree Stable's Capot scored a stunning victory today over Calumet Farm's Coaltown in the $20,000-added Sysonby Mile at Belmont Park.

The Greentree 3-year-old, one of the leading candidates for the season's championship in his division, was clocked in 1:35 3/5 as he handed Coaltown his second defeat in 14 starts this year. Coaltown set a world record for the mile of 1:34 at Washington Park in August.

H. W. Collins' Manyunk was third and last. The field was cut to three starters by the scratching of Ponder, Calumet's candidate for 3-year-old honors, King Ranch's Assault, and Collins' Safe Arrival.

The winner, ridden by Ted Atkinson, returned $8.80 for $2, with no place or show wagering.

Capot, winner of the Preakness and Belmont Stakes in his campaign for 3-year-old honors this spring, closed ground in the stretch to beat Coaltown at the wire by a length and a half. Manyunk, always trailing, was three lengths back of Coaltown.

Coaltown last was beaten by Star Reward in the Equipoise Mile at Arlington Park, Chicago, June 25.

Champ Central Vs. Anacostia May Be High Title Preview

What may well be a preview of the Interhigh football championship playoff on November 25 will be staged Friday afternoon in the most important game on the weekend's 25-game schoolboy card.

Friday's big game pits Central's defending champion against Anacostia, last year's runnerup, at 3:15 in the Central Stadium.

Because the two clubs are in opposite divisions of the two-division league, it's possible that both may wind up in the big Griffith Stadium playoff. Both are loaded with veterans of last year's good teams.

Three other Interhigh games are also on the Friday bill. Chamberlain plays at Western, Wilson at Eastern and Coolidge and McKinley Tech at Roosevelt.

Post Contest Winner Finds It Pays to Root for Middies

It does so pay to be a Navy football rooter.

The Middies' victory over Princeton, only their first in 16 games, was the big one for Ernest N. Weingart, 21 West Masonic View ave., Alexandria. It enabled him to become the second weekly champion in The Washington Post's Pick-the-Winners contest.

Weingart picked 19 of 20 games correctly, missing out only on Pitt's upset of Northwestern. So did Joseph F. Betterley, 5004 Moorland Lane, Bethesda. But Betterley, superintendent of Post Office buildings all over the U. S., selected Princeton in the tie-breaking 21st game.

Weingart stuck with Navy Navy (14-7). The native Alexandrian, 50-year-old retired Southern Railway bureau chief, said, "Navy always has been my favorite college team."

Now, he can thank Navy for the all-expense trip for two to this year's Army-Navy classic.

He also will receive four tickets to the Redskins' first home game against the New York Giants this Sunday.

Weingart, avid sports fans, is the father of two, Richard, 13; Ronald, 9. But Mrs. Weingart will be his "date" for Army-Navy.

The contest winner was all wrapped up in the World Series opener yesterday. Right before Tommy Henrich came up in the ninth, he told a friend, "This guy's the greatest clutch hitter in baseball. If anyone's going to break up this game, Henrich's the boy."

See, Weingart is a double-threat man.

Twenty-six contestants had only two wrong.

Hoyas Elect Falvey Basketball Captain

Dick Falvey, starting his fourth season of varsity basketball, yesterday, was elected Georgetown captain by seven lettermen.

Falvey, 22, is a senior from the Bronx. An excellent playmaking forward, he's 6-foot-1.

Don't Quit Now

Fall Fishing Prospects Are Good

By Ralph Murdock

TO CERTAIN ANGLERS the advent of the fall season is just the turning point for better fishing.

Murdock

We refer to the hearty disciples of bass angling and that includes both fresh and salt water fishermen.

This is the interval when the water temperatures drop, the large and small mouths hit ferociously and the stripers pull no punches. Bass which were shipped from the hatcheries in the spring are acclimated to the fresh water streams and ponds and offer stubborn resistance when hooked. The same applies to the striped bass.

When trolling for the latter, the anglers never know whether he is going to tangle with a half pounder or a 20 pounder until he gets the proverbial bank. It is the season when sport fishing is at its best and the general catches of fish are of the larger type. The outlook appears bright for the anglers who do most of their fishing in the fall season.

ANGLERS SUCH AS Bert Lamb and Al Corbin have just about convinced us you do not necessarily have to follow the sea gulls to locate the rockfish.

Believe it or not, the gulls should follow Bert and Al, for they really know the rockfish hideouts. On two successive trips Lamb docked with a bushel basket of rock each time without the aid of a single gull. The hauls were made in shallow depths that ranged from 4 to 11 feet. His knowledge of Herring Bay makes him a sure pop to give the stripers a rough time.

IN FRIDAY'S COLUMN we picked Herring Bay as our "best bet" for catching rockfish. Here are some of the catches at this point.

Aboard the "Vicky Ann" were Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Homococki and their son, Jimmy, 9. The trio picked up three big rocks and 18 bluefish on Sunday afternoon while trolling. The blues averaged two pounds each. The three stripers weighed 10½, 11½ and 15 lbs. Captain Boosie McDaniels was their guide.

Then, here's a party from Arlington which only caught one of the big ones, but it was an 11½-pound rockfish. Another one of equal size was hooked but got away. The anglers were J. Paul Craig and his wife, Ethel; George Newland and his wife, Lillian; Charles K. Mason, sr., and Charles K. Mason, jr., and Miss Beebe Holmes.

Williamson Picks Army Over Michigan

By Paul B. Williamson

The time has come for mighty Michigan to be defeated. The day is Saturday, the place Ann Arbor and the team selected to hand the Wolverines their first defeat since 1946 is Army.

It should be a thriller with Col. Red Blaik's Cadets winning.

Around the Washington area, I pick:

Michigan State to stop Maryland; Wake Forest to whip Georgetown. Kansas University to score its first win this season at the expense of George Washington, and unbeaten Duke to stay that way at the expense of Navy.

Team in first (left) column is picked by the Williamson System as the winner.

Bertola Dies After Fight

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 5 (U.P.).—Enrique Bertola, 26-year-old former heavyweight champion of Italy, died today at Buffalo Emergency Hospital from head injuries suffered last night in losing a 10-round decision to Lee Oma of Detroit.

A delicate 6-hour brain operation for a cerebral hemorrhage failed to save the life of the 196½-pound fighter. Bertola collapsed in his dressing room in Memorial Auditorium shortly before midnight and never regained consciousness.

Bertola's death was the twelfth ring fatality recorded for 1949.

District Attorney Gordon Steel ordered an immediate investigation.

"I have ordered Oma detained and held here until the matter is resolved," said Steel.

Mrs. Glick Leads In Payne Golf

Baltimore, Oct. 5 (A.P.).—Mrs. Maurice Glick of Baltimore carded a 79 today to take a six-stroke lead in the first round of the Maryland State Golf Association Payne trophy women's golf tournament at the Rolling Road Club.

Betty Garber of the Argyle Club, Washington, carded a nine-over-women's par 84 to gain second place.

Mrs. T. E. Schluderberg of the Baltimore Country Club and Helen Ruff of Rolling Road were tied for third with 86's. Mary Anne Downey of the Baltimore Country Club, who carded an 88, was the only other player to shoot under 90 in the first round.

Betty Meckley, Mrs Trouchaud Gain Final

Mrs. Betty Meckley and Mrs. J. P. Trouchaud advanced to the final round of the Kenwood Country Club women's championship by wining yesterday.

Mrs. Meckley defeated Mrs. S. B. Crocker, 2 and 1, and Mrs. Trouchaud trounced Mrs. J. H. Bullock, 6 and 5. In the consolation flight, Mrs. Rex Howard defeated Mrs. F. B. Hunter, 2 up and Mrs. Roy Jarman downed Mrs. Ed Widmayer, 2 up.

Second flight results, Mrs. Robert Keebler defeated Mrs. J. D. Morgan, 3 and 2; Mrs. Ed Fox ousted Mrs. Polly Foley, 5 and 4. Second flight consolations, Mrs. More Gates eliminated Mrs. J. D. Aldredge, 3 and 1; Mrs. E. C. Atwood won by default.

Bulldogs Sell Tackle

New York, Oct. 5 (A.P.).—The New York Bulldogs of the National Football League today sold Tackle Mike Jarmoluk to the Detroit Lions for an undisclosed sum.

Cardinal Fans Get Souvenir Tickets

St. Louis, Oct. 5 (U.P.).—St. Louis Cardinal fans will get their World Series tickets, even though the Cards didn't win the pennant.

The Cardinal office was sending tickets along with the returned checks and money orders for series ducats.

But the tickets, sought so eagerly just last week, are stamped as "souvenirs."

Players of Week

Bill Butler
ANACOSTIA

Because Bill Butler is a good halfback and knows it, Anacostia High won its Interhigh League opener over Western, 19-0, last week.

Don't get Bill wrong. He's not a braggard nor anything like that. He's simply the best ball carrier and safety man on the club. He calls the signals, too, and he's not afraid to call for the ball when the chips are down.

Now Western has a poised, experienced, tough little team, but weak in reserves. Bill calculated that if Anacostia could strike early, Western would be too tired to counterattack later.

So he pulled out all the stops in the first half, calling all of Anacostia's best trick plays. The first one enabled Bob Chatlin to go 26 yards for a touchdown.

The second came when Butler called Anacostia's mousetrap play, and 170-pound Bill knocked over four Western players as he went 21 yards for the score. Toward the end of the second quarter, Bill carried the ball five out of seven times as the Indians romped 50 yards to Western's two. Bill bucked over.

Anacostia had all 19 of its points before halftime, and coasted in, just as Bill had planned.

George Sabol
LONGWOOD

When he "grows up," 19-year old George Sabol of Longwood Prep will be a big help to somebody's college team.

He's already baby hippo size at 6 feet 4 inches and 235 pounds. And last Saturday against favored Bullis, he showed himself to be something special as a tackle.

Not only did he stop the favorite off-tackle thrusts of big Chow Echaves, but in the closing minutes, with Longwood trailing, 7-0, he turned apparent defeat into a tie.

Bullis was heading for a clinching touchdown, when George tackled the ball carrier so hard that he fumbled. George recovered on his own two, and Longwood had just enough time to score a touchdown. It was George who stepped back, and booted the tying extra point.

Playing tackle comes by George naturally. His big brother, Joe, who weighed 235, played that position for Tennessee a few years ago. George is headed for Lafayette though. Coach Clipper Smith spotted George when the youngster was playing for Lansford, Pa., High, and the two are fast friends.

Baxter Isn't on Ropes But He Uses 'Em on Foe

Laverne Baxter was disqualified for illegal use of the ropes after 18 minutes of his wrestling match against Mr. America last night at Turner's Arena.

In the preliminaries, Marvin Mercer pinned Ace Freeman in 20 minutes, Ivan Kamaroff defeated Bob Ford in 18, Lou Sgoberg trimmed Harry Finkelstein in 17, and George Macricostas and Joe Corbett drew in a 30-minute bout.

Gaines Wins Cup

Eddie Gaines, Norfolk, Va., won the fourth annual Howard U. "H" Club golf tournament, winning the Industrial Bank of Washington trophy with a 36-hole score, 75, 75—150.

Clinic Draws Fans' Interest

least 90 youngsters would attend from the I st. school.

Western High's Fred Mulvey began arrangements for as many private cars as possible to carry Raider gridmen and other students to the stadium. And from Anacostia came wholehearted approval of the program from Coach Zuzu Stewart.

Besides a look at the Redskins engaged in fundamental drills—blocking and tackling—clinic fans will be able to watch stars in their favorite positions in action. Tackle students will watch such as the great John (Tree) Adams of Notre Dame perform. Ends will see players like Joe Tereshinski of Georgia and Hugh Taylor of Oklahoma City in action. Backs will have a busy evening keeping track of such stars as Sammy Baugh, Dan Sandifer, Eddie Saenz, Harry Gilmer, Ed Quirk and Rob Goode.

There will be no charge whatever. Just clip out the box elsewhere on these pages and follow instructions.

Compromise Suggested By Truman on Measure To Raise Executive Pay

The President yesterday suggested a compromise executive pay raise bill to the 10 Senate-House conferees on the troublesome problem. He proposed:

That Cabinet members be paid $22,500; undersecretaries, $18,000; a $16,500 grade for large agency heads such as the administrators of Federal Security, Housing and Home Finance, and General Services; a $16,000 grade for members of the Federal Reserve Board, Federal Deposit Insurance, Comptroller of the Currency and similar jobs; that assistant secretaries and the members of most commissions and boards be paid $15,000, and that a $14,000 bracket be set up for members of comparatively minor agencies, such as the Indian Claims Commission, Philippine War Damage, and War Claims.

Mr. Truman pointed out that his proposal would cost only $70,000 a year more than the Senate bill. He went out of his way to congratulate the conferees for guiding the executive bill through the Senate and House.

The President also suggested that the McClellan amendment be stricken from the bill. The rider would require the President to submit a balanced budget to Congress next January. Mr. Truman proposed that his two legislative assistants be paid under the Classification Act instead of under the executive bill.

In this connection, he advocated a $14,000 ceiling for classified salaries. The House bill proposes that the $10,330 maximum be lifted to $15,000; the Senate bill to $12,500.

One of the conferees asked the President to express his views on the different House-Senate postal pay raise bills. Mr. Truman declined. He said his primary concern was the executive bill. The President made it plain that his views were merely suggestions; that it was up to the conferees to write a satisfactory bill.

Chairman Johnston of the Senate Civil Service Committee, said he hoped to have a meeting of the conferees this morning. He is confident a bill can be written to please the President.

Senator Langer (R., N. Dak.) said he would support the President.

The other conferees were Senators Long (D., La.), Humphrey (D., Minn.), Flanders (R., Vt.) and Representatives Murray (D., Tenn.), Morrison (D., La.), Miller (D., Calif.), Rees (R., Kans.) and St. George (R., N. Y.).

STORY: This month's issue of Personnel Administration, published by the Society for Personnel Administration, carries this delightful story:

A New York plumber wrote to the Bureau of Standards that he had found hydrochloric acid good for cleaning our clogged drains. The bureau replied: "The efficacy of hydrochloric acid is indisputable, but the corrosive residue is incompatable with metallic permanence." The plumber wrote back that he was glad the bureau agreed with him.

To which the bureau responded: "We cannot assume responsibility for the production of toxic and noxious residue with hydrochloric acid and suggest you use an alternative procedure." By return mail the plumber wrote he was glad the Government thought his idea OK.

In desperation, the bureau brokedown and wrote the plumber in plain language: "Don't use hydrochloric acid. It eats hell out of the pipes."

FAIR EMPLOYMENT: James L. Houghteling has been appointed to succeed Guy Moffett as chairman of Civil Service's Fair Employment Board. Moffett recently had a heart attack and he plans to travel extensively abroad.

Dr. Ethel Dunham, who has gone to Switzerland, has resigned and she has been succeeded by Sybil L. Smith, an Agriculture retiree. James E. Scott, who retired recently from the Budget Bureau, will succeed Daniel W. Tracy, who resigned because of personal business.

The three resignations were routine. None were brought on by internal differences or policy disputes.

ORDER: Civil Service is taking steps to put into effect the President's order to cover more than 5000 war service and temporary people into Civil Service.

For the next 60 days these people who are eligible for status under the order can't be displaced from their jobs. Those who are recommended for status within that period will continue to be exempt until Civil Service acts on the recommendations.

War service and temporaries who were appointed prior to March 16, 1942, are eligible for status under the order.

12 Agencies Ask Increase Of $14,527 For Fiscal '51

Regulatory Units, Paced by Weights And Measures, Seek $1,186,879

The District's 12 regulatory agencies yesterday asked for $1,186,879 for operations during fiscal 1951—an increase of $141,527 with the lion's share for the Department of Weights, Measures and Markets.

The department asked for $249,427 for the year beginning July 1, 1950, to cover a backlog of improvements set aside during the war years.

The second highest increase was requested by the Recorder of Deeds Marshall L. Shepard, who asked $263,900, compared with a present budget of $201,338. Shepard asked for $34,260 with which to hire 15 clerks for a three-year drive to bring the office Lot and Square Index up to date. A period of 12½ years is missing from the file.

No request was entered by Rent-Control Administrator Robert F. Bogswell since the District rent-control law expires before the beginning of the new fiscal year. At present the office is operating on a $125,000 budget.

Other requests by regulatory agencies follow:

Alcoholic Beverage Control Board—$102,600. Anticipated revenue during fiscal 1951 is $750,000 in license fees and three million dollars in beverage taxes.

Board of Parole—$71,200. The board supervised 333 parolees, 201 good behavior releases and 87 paroled here by the States.

Coroner — $58,000. Increase of $10,000 mainly because coroner's jury fees rose from $5 to $7 a day last July and a clerk-typist is requested for the Morgue.

Insurance Department—$83,300.

License Bureau—$64,000. Expect $1,100,000 in revenue from $50,000 licenses in fiscal 1951. Two inspectors for checking lodging houses are asked.

Minimum Wage and Industrial Board — $77,000. The board has jurisdiction over 218,000 workers.

Public Utilities Commission—$142,752.

Zoning Commission and Board of Zoning Adjustment—$34,900 Both groups have had from a 30 to 50 percent increase in requests for zoning changes since prewar days.

Teacher Rooms Requested for Class Space

The Washington Highlands Citizens Association last night authorized a letter to the Board of Education asking that the Patterson School follow the policy of other schools where grade school youngsters attend part-time, in sacrificing their teachers' rooms for additional classroom facilities.

Meeting at the Patterson School, South Capitol and Darrington sts., the citizens also endorsed a proposal to build a bridge across the Anacostia River at East Capitol st. In another resolution, the group asked installation of traffic lights at South Capitol and Atlantic sts., and at the intersection of South Capitol, Xenia and Nichols ave.

The association also decided to continue membership in the District of Columbia Central Suffrage Conference and the Southeast Council and appropriated a year's dues to each organiation. Mrs. Claude Oliphant, secretary of the District of Columbia Public Schools Association, told the meeting that her group will try to find out in the coming year just why the District cannot obtain funds now for construction of schools.

Labofish to Head Crestwood Group

John P. Labofish, a Washington attorney who lives at 4000 17th st. nw., was elected president of the Crestwood Citizens Association at a meeting last night in the Roosevelt School, 13th and Upshur sts. nw.

Elected also were Dr. David Franklin Lady, 3930 Argyle terrace nw., first vice president; William L. Swan, 1732 Shepherd st. nw., second vice president, and Miss Ruth B. Wylie, 3831 Argyle terrace nw., secretary. Reelected were Mrs. Frank A. Hodson, 1805 Quincy st. nw., treasurer, and Mr. and Mrs. James R. Latimer, delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

After a discussion of music on buses and streetcars, 29 of the 54 members attending favored the music, 1 was opposed, 8 were neutral and 16 didn't vote because they don't use streetcars or buses.

The meeting adjourned to the home of the outgoing president, C. V. Maudlin, 1718 Crestwood dr. nw., to hold a party celebrating the eighth birthday of the association.

St. John's Lodge Dance

The annual dance of St. John's Masonic Lodge will be held tonight at 8 in the main ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel, it was announced last night by Albert F. Mueller, 3845 Beecher st. nw., worshipful master.

Facts-of-Life Word List for Young Urged

Church, Home, School Combination Called Best for Sex Data

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

Parents should give children "about a 15-word scientific vocabulary" on the facts of life as soon as they "start asking questions," the District Parent-Teacher Institute was told yesterday.

This approach to "better and more sex education" was urged by Ray Everett, director of the D. C. Social Hygiene Society at the institute's group conference on education in Lisner Auditorium.

"If parents taught their youngsters the proper scientific terms of the body, particularly of the generative system, you wouldn't see so many nasty words written on walls," Everett maintained.

No Appeal

The "proper" terms simply would not have the same "mischievous pornographic appeal as the slang" expressions, he told the parent group.

Everett said explanation of the human reproductive process in school" is still rather taboo. The ideal thing should be teamwork between parents, school and the Church."

Recalling the controversy at the P-TA convention two years ago over a resolution aimed to urge more social hygiene teaching in District public schools, Everett said later:

"My suggestions for more parent help in this field of character-building is completely in line with the resolution unanimously adopted by the Congress of Parent-Teacher and Teachers last year.

That resolution said, in part: "The home is the logical place for dealing with the more intimate aspects; the church should help in the ethical and moral aspects, and the school should help by laying the scientific foundations through courses in elementary science, health and physical education, biology, home economics and other subject matter areas where the problem may be studied."

Save Embarrassment

Everett said a scientific approach in answering children's questions furthermore will "save parents a lot of embarrassment."

"There is no reason why the toughest question of all—the father's part in bringing a baby brother or sister into the world—should throw so many parents," he told the group of mothers.

Other group conferences were held on the local P-TA program for the coming year, welfare, home and family life, publicity and organization.

The two-day thirteenth annual Parent-Teacher Institute closed with a talk on "The community looks at the P-TA" by Mrs. A. J. Nicely, P-TA national vice president.

Full-Time Schooling for 4000 Children Seen Possible by Use of Bus Transport

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

Right in the Board of Education's own backyard, about 400 children are being transported to school by bus.

For three years Catholic parochial schools have provided education for children from sections of the city where there are no schools by carrying them to sections of the city where schools have vacant desks.

Bus transportation is now before the Board of Education for consideration as a method of providing full-time classes for the 4000 pub lic school youngsters attending part-time in the overcrowded sections beyond the Anacostia River in Northeast and Southeast Washington.

Construction of schools in the two areas has not been able to keep pace with fast-growing populations. In older sections of the city some schools have been left half empty by population shifts.

The board yesterday authorized Schools Superintendent Hobart M. Corning to hold conferences with principals, teachers and parents and prepare a study weighing advantages of fulltime schooling against the problems of transporting children out of their home communities.

Petition Signed

A petition signed by 109 parents of children attending the Congress Heights School was submitted as favoring the plan.

Dr. Corning reported to the board that currently there are 2084 white elementary school children and 1981 Negro children attending school on half-time.

He estimated that from 35 to 40 buses would be needed to transfer students from overcrowded schools to those where there is available space. New buildings that will be ready for Negro pupils within the next few months will substantially cut down part-time education, reducing the number of buses needed to 25 or 30, he said.

At yesterday's school board meeting, Member Adelbert W. Lee said he understood parochial school children are transported by chartered bus daily from outlying sections of the city to downtown parish schools.

The Very Rev. Msgr. John S. Spence, director of education for the Washington Archdiocese, said that while transportation does work financial and physical hardship, it has enabled the churches to provide youngsters with a full-time education program. But transportation is a temporary measure until new parochial schools are built in the new residential areas, he said. The parents pay 40 cents a week and the schools 70 cents for each pupil transported.

The chartered buses pick up 101 children in nearby Forestville, Md., and carry them to St. Joseph's School, 321 2d st. ne. Sixty children are brought from the Little Flower parish in the Northwest where there is no school to St. Stephen's, 24th and R sts. nw.

Others Listed

In the far Southeast 119 children go by bus from the parish of Our Lady Queen of Peace to Holy Name, West Virginia ave. and Neal st. ne., and 109 from Assumption parish in Congress Heights to St. Mary's School, 5th st. and G pl. nw.

In the Assumption parish the youngsters, carrying lunch boxes, gather each morning at 8:20 a. m. on the lawn of the church at Highview pl. and Nichols ave. se., to await the bus. Another group is picked up outside the Congress Heights Theater and a third group at the housing development at Bellevue. The children are returned to the same street corners when school is over at 3 p. m.

The Rev. Charles E. Roach, pastor of Assumption, said that the children have been transported across town for three years without accident.

He started sending the children into town to St. Mary's when the parochial schools in the vicinity St. Teresa's, St. Peter's and St. Francis Xavier became too crowded to take in additional children.

In reporting to the school board yesterday, Dr. Corning said that if bus service were approved it should be made mandatory for all schools in which there was part-time. Upper grade children should be the ones transported, he said, with grades selected from the sixth on down until a sufficient number of children were removed to permit the remaining children to attend fulltime.

Consideration also should be given, he said, to provide bus service to relieve over-crowded condition in schools which are not now operating on part-time but in which classes are unusually large.

Corning said that transportation of the children raises problems of health and safety. Distances of travel would range from 3½ miles to more than 7 lengthening the hours the children would be away from home. The youngsters also would have to do without a hot meal at home at noon, he said.

The school superintendent also raised the question whether temporary solution of the school housing problem by buses might not become permanent.

"It would be very disastrous," he said, "if the temporary use of bus transportation to relieve an emergency situation were later to be regarded as a permanent solution making unnecessary the providing of adequate school facilities in the home neighborhoods of children."

Plasterers' Convention Here Ends

Use of wallboard and other combustible materials in public and private housing was condemned by the Contracting Plasterers' International Association.

The action came yesterday at the final session of the organization's thirty-second annual convention at the Statler Hotel. More than 500 delegates attended.

Also called for were an expansion of apprentice training, and meetings with contractors, architects and unions to "revise outmoded working rules, which are not in the public's best interest or economy."

In condemning wallboards and dry walls, the association listed among its objections "the enormous waste of both private and public funds," also the "unnecessary fire hazards."

Reelected president was Edmond F. Venzie of Philadelphia. Other officers chosen were Joseph D. McNulty, Chicago, first vice president; Frank D. Smith, San Francisco, second vice president; R. Terry Blazier, East St. Louis, third vice president; and E. L. Thompson, Atlanta, Ga., fourth vice president.

Named secretary-treasurer was Albert Beever of Detroit. San Francisco was chosen for the 1950 convention.

Gallant Gunman Gets $150 In Delicatessen Store Holdup

A gunman who showed consideration for the waitress but none for the cash register got away with $150 early yesterday from Riggs Delicatessen, 1501 P st. nw.

It was shortly after 2 a. m. All the customers had gone and the proprietor, John Costakis, 52; his waitress, Miss Irene Combs, 43, and a dishwasher were closing up.

Suddenly a man popped out of the men's room, walked to the cash register, rang it and made the following announcement:

"Stay where you are—this is a holdup!"

The bandit produced a pistol from his sweater pocket, scooped the money out of the register, then ordered everybody into the back room.

The gunman noticed a telephone and asked Miss Combs to yank out the cord. She said she couldn't. He said okay, and did it himself.

"I don't want to overlook anything," he said, turning to the waitress. "You have any money on you?"

"I got cab fare," she said, "You wouldn't take that, would you?"

He didn't.

The bandit then ordered everyone to lie down on the floor.

"But I can't do that," protested Miss Combs. "You wouldn't want me to get my uniform all dirty, would you?"

He didn't. However, he ordered all hands to remain in the back room and motionless for five minutes while he made his escape.

The gunman and an accomplice who was standing guard outside were last seen running west in the 1500 block of P st. nw.

The gunman was described as between 50 and 55 years, about 6 feet tall and weighing 170 pounds. He was wearing a brown sweater and brown felt hat. His companion was about 30 or 35, 6 feet, 185 pounds, and was wearing a green sweater. He wore no hat over his straight brown, combed-back hair. Both are white.

School Board Gets Plea For Closed Meetings

Woman Member Wants Deficiencies Reported to Staff, Not Aired in Public

Meetings closed to the press and public, in which the Board of Education would "discuss deficiencies in our public school system," were proposed yesterday by Mrs. Velma G. Williams, board member.

In a meeting marked by sharp personal disagreement on almost every question brought before the board, Mrs. Williams said the board, instead of airing "grievences in public where the press can get it, should have closed meetings."

She said she felt this extended to all school problems.

"Rather than criticize in public the things we don't like we should tell the superintendent and his staff and let them correct it," she said.

Mrs. Williams called for closed meetings after Adelbert W. Lee submitted a seven-page, single-spaced, typewritten report in which he took to task the efforts of Superintendent Hobart M. Corning and other school officials to revive the cadet corps.

3 Major Disagreements

The cadet question was one of three in which major disagreement showed a growing animosity among members. The board split down the middle on the question of setting up a special committee on athletics, with President C. Melvin Sharpe breaking the tie in favor of the committee. Mrs. Philip Sidney Smith, who opposed the committee, questioned the "ethics" of Sharpe's casting a vote.

The board also disagreed on when it should take a stand on suggestions that Central High School become a high school for Negroes to relieve overcrowded Cardozo. The board decided to discuss the question as soon as Dr. Corning submits a recommendation.

On the cadet question, Lee said Corning attempted to justify the drop in cadet enrollment in white schools by stating white school enrollment had decreased. Comparing 1943 with 1948, Lee said the number of male high school students has increased by more than 400. During the same period cadet enrollment dropped from 1695 to 629.

Dr. Corning had cited fewer eligible students as a reason for lessening interest in cadets, in a report prepared at the request of Representative Olin E. Teague (D., Tex.).

Lee Wants Report Rewritten

Lee called for rewriting of the report and quoted extensively from an analysis of the cadet problem submitted by Lieut. Col. William E. Barkman, professor of military science and tactics for the white schools.

Corning said Barkman's report was part of his confidential files. The board, he said, had its choice between "a confidential report that is entirely negative and criticizes everybody" and "the official report to the Board of Education."

The board approved Corning's report for submission to Congressman Teague, but called on the superintendent to answer Lee's charges.

The Barkman report listed interference by the High School Principals Association, conflict of authority, use of temporary teachers as military instructors and failure of school officials to fill the post of military property storekeeper among reasons why the cadet program has been declining in recent years.

"Hodgepodge of Uniforms"

Lee charged cadets are wearing a "hodgepodge of uniforms" and resemble a "Coxey's army." He criticized school officials for failing to set up specifications in call-

Falls Church Board Seeks School Fund

Moves to Ask Council For Vote on $900,000 Loan for 3 Projects

By Judith Spivak
Post Reporter

The Falls Church School Board last night voted unanimously to ask the Falls Church City Council for referendums to borrow $900,000 for school construction.

The funds, it was announced, would be used for:

1. Acquisition of a site and construction of a "modern" junior-senior high school, including a gymnasium and auditorium, science laboratories, home economics rooms, music rooms, library and cafeteria.

2. Acquisition of a site and construction of a modern primary school with library, cafeteria and a community hall.

3. Remodeling of the present Madison School.

The present Jefferson School and annexes would be abandoned under the plan with the Jefferson site reserved for future school use. Madison School annexes would be used for art, music and special activities.

The board said the new school buildings, which it hopes to have ready for use by the fall of 1950, should cause only a "nominal increase" in the city's current school tax levy, fixed at $2.65 per $100 of assessed valuation.

The city council is expected to consider the request at its next regular meeting on October 12.

Under city law, if the fund request is approved by the council, the request must be voted upon in two elections, first of property holders within the city and then of all qualified voters, including property holders, within the city.

City Attorney LaRue Van Meter told the board he believed both referendums could be held before Christmas.

The school board, in its resolution, laid "much of the present problem" to the Fairfax County School Board's refusal to give Falls Church High School and Oak Street School, both within city limits, to the city of Falls Church.

The county's refusal left the city in a "position of dependence" upon the county, the board said.

It stated that the four school buildings in Falls Church, built to handle 1710 children, now have an enrollment of nearly 2700, with most of the increase coming from outside the city limits."

In another action, the school board authorized its superintendent, Irving Schmitt, to receive bids for roof repairs on the Madison School building and instructed him to see that present oil heaters in six temporary classroom annexes at the Madison School, are "put in the best and safest state of repair."

ABC Lifts License Of Liquor Dealer

DANIEL BROWN,
20-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Brown, of 15-R Laurel Hill rd., was killed by a garbage truck when it drove out of the court behind the Browns home in Greenbelt, Md. The only apparent witness to the accident was the dead boy's 3-year-old brother, Gregory

A Washington liquor dealer, recently convicted of taking numbers bets in his store, yesterday suffered permanent revocation, effective October 19, of his Class A license to sell packaged goods.

An appeal to the Commissioners is available to the merchant, Jacob Rubin, trading as Embassy Liquor Store, 3125 Mount Pleasant st. nw.

The penalty was announced yesterday by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board after weighing charges that Rubin used his premises for gambling March 8, 9, 10 and 11.

Rubin had testified in District Court that he accepted some numbers bets as a favor to a friend. He received a suspended 1-3 year sentence and was fined $500.

The permanent revocation stemmed from a 1936 ruling by the District Commissioners that in the future only 300 liquor stores could be licensed in the District. At that time there were 400 such stores in operation.

Up to yesterday 12 had turned in licenses or had suffered cancelation. Rubin's loss will put the current total of license holders at 387—still above the limit.

In other decisions announced by the ABC board yesterday:

William F. Galvin, trading as Royal Grill, 1912 Pennsylvania ave. nw., suffered a 16-day suspension of his Class D (beer and wine) license, effective October 12 for selling to minor boys on July 29.

Israel Saslaw, trading as Penguin Restaurant, 1218 11th st. se., lost his Class C (whisky, beer, wine) license for 21 days effective October 12, for selling to minor girls on April 17.

Mother Fails To Try to See Her Children

Fifteen-year-old Edith Christine Hernandez and her half brother, David Gregory Little, 3, last night spent their second night in a new home—the Industrial Home School Annex.

The children, with a foster brother, 3, left at Child Welfare Division headquarters Tuesday by their mother, Mrs. Geraldine Little, because the third youngster—Jonathon—was being taken from her by court order.

"If I'm not a fit mother for one of them, I'm not a fit mother for all of them," was Mrs. Little's attitude.

Welfare authorities said yesterday Mrs. Little had made no effort to communicate with them or the children since she left the youngsters.

They said Mrs. Little had been so upset they decided to give her time to mull over the situation before they make any attempt to persuade her to take back the two children.

Jonathon has already been placed in a foster home.

Fairfax Village Tenants End Fight On Rent Boost

A group of tenants at Fairfax Village, Southeast Washington apartment development, have decided to drop further opposition to a rent increase recently approved by Rent Control Administrator Robert G. Cogswell.

The group's attorney, Scott Crampton, said no court appeal is planned. The tenants appealed Rent Examiner James G. Tyson's recommendation for a 5.91 percent rent hike, but Cogswell confirmed Tyson's opinion.

The increase boosts rents from $48 to $51 for 3½ rooms and bath and from $69 to $73 for 5 rooms

Closed Board Sessions Asked

ing for bids from supplying firms.

Lee withdrew this charge when Associate Supt. Norman J. Nelson said the schools had been unable to get firms to bid and had recommended purchase by cadets of redyed Army uniforms to cut costs.

In other actions the board:

Approved an in-service training program for teachers to qualify them for pay raises under the 1947 Teachers' Salary Act.

Granted permission for school children to appear in three local "Quiz Kid" broadcasts.

Turned down the offer of two flight scholarships for high school students.

FPC Review Asked In Gas Pipeline Case

The Arlington County Board yesterday appealed to the Federal Power Commission to review the decision of an FPC examiner which approved purchase by the Potomac Gas Co. of a section of natural gas pipeline in Arlington.

Proposed purchase of the 13,000-foot section from the Rosslyn Gas Co. was approved by FPC Examiner Ewing G. Simpson last August.

In the appeal, Commonwealth Attorney Denman T. Rucker and Special Counsel Charles E. McGee asserted "there is no support in the record" and no reason set forth in the finding that "such acquisition and operation will not adversely affect service, including cost of service to the consumers now served by the Rosslyn Gas Co."

The appeal contended that "the applicant presented no testimony with respect to cost of service as well as whether the acquisition would affect rates, charges or service."

In addition the appeal cited testimony of Paul Blundon, "engineering witness of the Arlington County Board," to the effect that "the acquisition . . . would result in advantage to other customer companies of the Washington Gas Light Co., and would subject the consumers of the Rosslyn Gas Co. to an unreasonable, unfair and unjust difference in rates and charges."

France, Thailand to Get $81 Million Jap Gold

The United States has ordered Gen. Douglas MacArthur to release 81 million dollars in Japanese gold to France and Thailand. The State Department announced yesterday.

There was opposition from Russia, Australia and the Philippine Republic, but the United States position was that occupation forces found the gold "earmarked" for French Indo-China and Thailand in payment for Japanese purchases, and that the gold legally belonged to those countries.

France will get $37,300,000 and Thailand, $43,700,000.

W. H. Hutson Dead at 60; Library Aide

William H. Hutson, 60, chief engineer at the District Public Library, town councilman and former Mayor of Capitol Heights, Md., died Monday morning at Emergency Hospital after a long illness.

Mr. Hutson

Born in Baltimore June 21, 1889, where he attended school, Mr. Hutson came to Washington in 1933 to work for the District government as an engineer in the Tubercular Hospital, 14th and Upshur sts. nw. He was transferred to his position at the Public Library in 1935, and was responsible for the heating systems in District public libraries.

Mr. Hutson was still active at the time of his death despite a heart condition.

He was a member of the Capitol Heights Town Council at the time of his death. He was a member of the church council of St. Andrew's Lutheran Church, Capitol Heights.

His home was 6151 C st. se., Capitol Heights.

Surviving, beside his wife, Mrs. Hilda Mills Hutson, whom he married in 1933 in Baltimore, are two sons, William R. of Seat Pleasant, Md., and Norman L. Hutson, Morningside, Md., and a daughter, Mrs. Mildred A. Dudgeon of Baltimore.

Funeral services will be at 10 a. m. today at Chambers funeral home, 517 11th st. sw. Burial will be in Mount Carmel Cemetery, Baltimore.

Shirley Road Business Zone Plea Rejected

The Fairfax County Board of Supervisors yesterday turned down a request for rezoning to business use land along the new Shirley highway.

By a vote of 4 to 2, the board denied the application of Vernon M. Lynch, county developer, for rezoning 21½ acres at the northwest corner of the highway's intersection with Franconia rd. near Springfield.

Lynch had said the building closest to the highway would be a tourist court 230 feet from the center of the road.

Board Chairman G. Wallace Carper, who opposed the rezoning, pointed out the purpose of the highway was to bypass Route No. 1, which has become cluttered up with gas stations and tourist cabins.

"If we grant this," Carper said, "I don't see how we can turn down anyone at any of the other intersections. I think we would be defeating the purpose for which the highway was built."

The county planning commission had approved the rezoning on the ground that the seven entrances to the limited-access highway are the only points where business could be logically located.

Before the highway was completed, the supervisors rezoned two tracts along its rout to commercial use, planning officials said. One was at an intersection; the other was not. Neither has been developed, they said.

In other actions, the board:

1. Upheld a decision of the county zoning appeals board in granting the Fairfax Hydraulics Water Co. to erect a pumping station and tank in Groveton. Nearby residents had appealed to the supervisors on the ground the construction would greatly lessen the value of their property.

2. Rezoned land on both sides of Rt. 236 just east of the Army Quartermaster Depot for a shopping center for the new Shirley-Duke apartment development.

David W. Norris

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 5 (AP).—David W. Norris, 73, of Pasadena, Calif., who became an Iowa newspaper publisher at the age of 23 and later built a far-flung furnace manufacturing enterprise, died unexpectedly here last night.

Norris became editor and publisher of the Marshalltown Times-Republican in 1899 and in the early 1900s crusaded successfully for hard-surfaced roads "to meet the challenge of the coming age of the automobile."

Rear Adm. A. E. Watson

Funeral services for Rear Admiral Adolphus E. Watson, USN, ret., a veteran of more than 53 years in the Navy, will be held at 2 p. m. today in the Fort Myer Chapel. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery with full military honors.

The son of the late Rear Admiral Eugene Winslow Watson, the 71-year-oold officer died Monday at the Bethesda Naval Hospital. He lived at 2126 Connecticut ave. nw.

2-Year-Old Oakton Boy Killed When Stove Topples on Him

Two-year-old Michael E. Miller was killed yesterday when an abandoned stove toppled on him in the back yard of his home at Oakton, Va., in Fairfax County.

The child was taken to Vienna, Va., where he was pronounced dead by Dr. Emanuel Newman. Dr. Newman said he apparently died instantly of a broken neck.

Fairfax County police said the boy lived with his grandmother, Mrs. Ethel Mauck, and that he went out into the back yard with her at about 10:30 a. m. while she burned some trash.

The child remained outside after his grandmother returned to the house. The abandoned gas stove which cost him his life was behind a shed about 40 feet from the house. Police believe it toppled over while the boy was trying to climb atop it.

The head was the only part of the child's body pinned under the stove. However, the head was not crushed.

Police said they considered the death accidental.

The child's mother lives and works in Alexandria during the week and spends her weekends at the Mauck home. Police said the whereabouts of the boy's father is not known.

Shoemaker's Death Here Ruled Suicide

A 42-year-old shoemaker who was found hanging in the back room of his shop at 4622 14th st. nw. yesterday morning, was ruled a suicide by Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, the District coroner.

The man, Nicola Papa, was found at 8:30 a. m. by Attilo Palumbo, a leather goods merchant of 2035 M st. nw., hanging from a rafter with a scarf and a piece of rag knotted around his neck, police said. He was pronounced dead by an Emergency Hospital doctor.

After investigation, homicide squad detectives determined that Papa had been seen in good spirits at 7:30 a. m. but that he had been mentally depressed for several weeks. The dead man's nearest relative is Michael Papa, a brother, who lives at 318 E Capitol st., police said.

Lane Shows How Tax Aids Montgomery

Governor William Preston Lane, jr., in another defense of the Maryland State sales tax, last night cited chapter and verse on how it benefited Montgomery County.

Speaking at a dinner-dance of the Silver Spring Board of Trade and the Bethesda Chamber of Commerce at the Indian Spring Country Club, he said Montgomery County was getting more out of the tax than it was paying.

He estimated the county's 1950 refunds as $3,105,632. The county paid in $1,219,178 at the end of the fiscal year of June 30, 1949, he said. By June, 1950, he said it will have paid in $1,894,150.

On 27 road projects over the past three years, the State has spent $3,712,219, he said, a figure which does not include widening of Georgia ave. from Colesville rd. to Glenmont. The widening project will soon be contracted, he said.

He mentioned also that plans for a new 3½-mile highway connecting Bethesda and Silver Spring will be included in the State's 1950 program.

Abut 300 persons attended the affair.

Leroy Hall, 65, Dies; Aide to Congressman

Leroy A. Hall, 65, of Flint, Mich., for the past 11 years secretary to Representative William W. Blackney (R., Mich.), died yesterday at Doctors Hospital after a week's illness.

Representative Blackney said Mr. Hall had an asthmatic ailment, but the exact cause of his death is undetermined, pending an autopsy.

Mr. Hall lived here at the Roosevelt Hotel, 2101 16th st. nw. Besides his wife, he is survived by one son, Thomas R. Hall, of Flint.

Born in Camden, N. Y., Mr. Hall attended schools in Philadelphia, graduating from Pierce Business College. He first began an accounting career with a leather concern in Philadelphia, and later became assistant manager of the Atlantic & Pacific Telephone Co., in Atlantic City, N. J.

He later became affiliated with a body company in Flint, engaged for a time in the real-estate business, and ran his own accounting firm.

During the depression, he was branch manager of the Michigan State Department's Flint office, afterward working for the Buick Motor Co. there as a car distributor. He became associated with Representative Blackney in 1938.

Funeral services will be held in Flint Saturday.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 5 (AP).—Maj. W. C. Thomas, executive officer of the Virginia State Police, said tonight that Trooper J. W. Harrison at Hillsville had been suspended "for infraction of the rules and policy of the department."

Miss Prentice Dead After Short Illness

Miss Daisy Prentice, sister-in-law of the late Theodore W. Noyes, editor of the Evening Star, died yesterday at her home in the Clifton Terrace Apartments, 14th and Clifton sts. nw.

Miss Prentice

She succumbed to a heart attack which she suffered several days ago.

Miss Prentice lived in Washington since turn of the century and taught in elementary schools here for a number of years. Before she was injured in an accident seven years ago, Miss Prentice took part in the activities of the Women's Republican Club.

She and her mother, the late Mrs. Nellie D. Pettigrew came here from their home at Le Roy, N. Y., to live at the Noyes home, then at 1616 S st. nw. Miss Prentice was the last of her generation in the family.

She leaves two nieces, Mrs. Smith Hempstone, 5415 Moorland la., Edgmoor, Md., and Mrs. Luther Sheldon, 3203 Cleveland ave. nw.; 10 grandnieces and nephews, and 12 great-grandnieces and nephews.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Young Sweethearts, Engaged to Be Married, Have Economic Reasons to Postpone Nuptials For 18 Months, But Waiting Seems a Problem

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Having read that long courtships are very often undesirable, I would appreciate your advice on our situation. Rand, 21, and I, 19, cannot possibly be married for about a year and a half, unless of course we start marriage with our future very insecure, insofar as economics are concerned.

Although we both are young and have a great deal to learn, I feel that we are mature enough to marry, but it happens that Rand has a financial responsibility which he doesn't feel he can drop, and I understand and respect him for it.

We see a great deal of each other and we are becoming more and more a part of each other; and the problem is that we find it increasingly difficult to go our separate ways when the time comes to say, "I'll see you tomorrow." Rand is very unhappy, and so am I, with the situation as it is.

Feel Frustrated; Lose Perspective

WITH RAND in his present state of mind, I am afraid he will just throw off his financial responsibility in order to be married, for he speaks of it often; but deep down I know that isn't what he wants. If we were to marry now, I am sure that later he would reproach himself for having sidestepped his duty.

Do you think it would help matters if we stopped seeing each other so much? We've discussed the idea and frankly don't think it would solve anything. Speaking for myself, when I don't see Rand it only increases my anxiety to do so, and therefore I think of him most of the time.

Perhaps we are dramatizing our problem, but we can't seem to get a perspective on it at all, and we really want to do what is right. We would be grateful for your suggestions. A. R.

Experts Approve Leisurely Court

DEAR A. R.: Some years ago Professor Ernest W. Burgess, head of the sociology department of the University of Chicago, compiled in collaboration with L. S. Cottrell a weighty study entitled "Predicting Success or Failure in Marriage."

The book, published by Prentice-Hall, is now out of print, I believe, with libraries scratching for second-hand copies; but when it came on the market, this scholarly report was played up in news columns, due to the "human interest" angle of certain findings listed therein.

One such finding (as I recall) was to the effect that lengthy engagements and/or courtships, ranging from two to five years, seemed significantly linked to a high incidence of "lasting" marriages,—whereas whirlwind courtships and short engagements were most often a prelude to marriages that later broke up. Also I think you'll find that Dr. Clifford Adams, director of the marriage counseling service at Penn State College, tends to support the same theory in his book, "How to Pick a Mate." (Garden City Publishing Co.)

Excessive Petting Engenders Tension

THUS I wonder, what have you been reading that says long courtships are very often undesirable? Is this an ultra-modern theory that I've somehow missed? Seriously, it occurs to me that it might be undesirable, in the sense of detrimental, for a pair of youngsters to associate as sweethearts indefinitely, if their principal interest in common was sex attraction, and their chief pastime petting; and if they spent most of their time together in solitary companionship "a deux."

If, as the Burgess-Cottrell study indicates, the better marriages seem related to long engagements and longer courtships, then we may infer that the participants in such cases have a broad range of interests in common from the first; and that they are sociable persons, moreover, who customarily spend much of their recreational time in the company of other congenial folk.

The anxious tension that bothers you and Rand is caused, no doubt, by spending too much time together, wasted in mooning over each other, that properly should be happily spent in extrovert exchange with other young people,—which is the normal exercise for keeping a long engagement in happy equilibrium, and also a vital pre-marital test of a couple's social compatibility. So, for advice, spend most of your date-time in congenial mixed company and avoid heavy necking, especially when saying goodnight. M. H.

Cooking Cues

If you want to keep the skin of baked potatoes soft just rub them with salad oil or some other suitable fat before baking.

The liquid left from cooking vegetables may be used to dilute evaporated milk for a cream sauce.

Put parsley (unwashed) in a shallow, wide-mouthed jar with a tightly fitting cover and store in the refrigerator.

In preparing carrot and celery strips for a first course or a dunking platter never soak them in water; get them ready as short a time as possible before serving to preserve flavor and nutrients.

Fashion Notes

By Sally Steele

That $400 gown! That $350 suit! How dare they charge so much? Workmanship and design. That's what the price tag means. Can you recognize those qualities? Could a price tag fool you?

You should know good clothes, regardless of whether you make your own or buy them ready-made. In fact, it is surprisingly easy to design and make clothes styled to your own figure and personality.

You need to know French draping, pattern cutting, construction, tailoring. Specialized subjects, yes, but modern teaching combines them in one course, giving you enough fundamentals to dress yourself smartly even to seek a career as stylist.

We are proud to announce that Mrs. Jean Belaire is now teaching at the Magda School, 1735 Eye St. N.W. (REpublic 3378). Present classes filled; new ones starting week of Oct. 17 rapidly filling.

A Charming Visitor From Luxembourg

By Elizabeth Maguire

EUROPE'S garden spot, tiny Luxembourg, has countless charms coming to the fore. One, a guest this week at the legation, is Miss Betty Bech, daughter of Luxembourg's Foreign Minister, Joseph Bech. She is in her twenties, delightful and good-looking. Like her famous father, she has a twinkle in her eye, and a very natural and pleasant manner.

Mme. Le Gallais, wife of the Minister, was present when we interviewed Miss Bech at the legation yesterday morning. Inevitably the United States Minister to Luxembourg, Mrs. Perle Mesta, came into the conversation, and Mme. Le Gallais laughed, "Nobody knows where Luxembourg is, but everybody knows where Mme. Mesta is."

Dined With Mrs. Mesta

The United States Minister dined at their home, Miss Bech said, shortly after her arrival. She wore a lovely pink gown trimmed with black lace and her diamond jewelry. As for the road from Paris to Luxembourg and Belgium, Miss Bech explained, the signs along the way give names of the villages but not countries, and that may have been what threw the United States entourage off the track, an incident of Mrs. Mesta's accession to her post.

Miss Bech flew to New York with her father the middle of September, and has been visiting her brother, Charles Bech, and his Canadian wife at their home in Mamaroneck, N. Y. Charles Bech is an American citizen, as he flew with the American Air Force during the war, which necessitated his taking out papers. Now he is a happy American businessman.

Congo Climate Better

Washington's climate has been difficult for Betty Bech to take. Even the Belgian Congo, she says, is better. Last year in July, she visited Leopoldville with her father. The journey there was made by air, taking just 17 hours from Brussels, Belgium, with one-hour stops at Tripoli and Kanu in British Nigeria. They went to attend the fiftieth anniversary of the first train that went from Matadi to Leopoldville. On their return they took the train to Matadi and thence went by boat to Brussels.

As Miss Bech has a flair for photography, she took colored movies while in Leopoldville, and her father went into the jungles to get pictures of lions and elephants.

In her native land she has accompanied friends shooting wild boar and pheasants, although she has never actually shot anything herself. The wild boar is trapped by beaters who follow his tracks through the forests, and when he is found the beaters head him off in the direction of the post where the shooting party is waiting. Sometimes as many as six beasts come rushing out.

Took First-Aid Course

During the war she was in Canada near the Grand Duchesse Charlotte and her children. She took a Belgian course called Secouriste, with two of the princesses, Elizabeth and Marie Adelaide, but the war was over before she could put her first-aid into practice.

The Grand Duchess, she said, has six children, two princes and four princesses, ranging between 20 and 29. They are all gay and attractive and live together at the palace. They all like music and are good at drawing. Princess Marie Gabrielle is studying sculpture, and some of her work is on exhibit at the Salon d'Automne in Paris.

The biggest party of the year in Luxembourg is the birthday anniversary of the Grand Duchess on January 23, on which day all diplomats accredited to Brussels come to Luxembourg to attend a reception at the palace from 9 to midnight. The palace is Spanish architecture, dating from the time when Luxembourg was under Spanish rule.

Nearly all dwellings in Luxembourg are small, Minister Mesta's there being smaller than the Luxembourg Legation on Massachusetts ave. But it is somewhat larger than the house she received in in Washington, and it is said to have the loveliest view in all Luxembourg.

Danish Club to Meet

The Danish Gymnastic Team, which is now touring this country, will be the guests of the Danish Club of Washington at their regular meeting to be held at the Washington Club this evening at 8 o'clock. Carlo Christensen, vice consul of the Danish Embassy, will speak on "Danish Colonization of America," during the period from 1624-1664, coincident with the Dutch colonization of New York.

Envoy to Receive Student Groups

The Paraguay Ambassador, Luis Oscar Boettner, will entertain a group of young people at the embassy this afternoon, his guests to be members of El Circulo Cultural Espanol of Georgetown University and students from Mount Vernon Seminary and Chevy Chase Junior College. Prof. Garcia Tunon of Georgetown University will accompany his students.

The Ambassador will show slides of Paraguay and give a short talk on his country.

Premiere Toast To Ten Women

Ten local women were honored last evening at the Playhouse Theater for their services on behalf of the community and the country.

The management of the theater paid them tribute at the local premiere of the British film, "The Weaker Sex."

Attending the ceremony as representatives of the armed services were Col. Mary A. Hallaren, director of the Women's Army Corps; Capt. Joy B. Hancock, director of the Waves, and Col. Katherine A. Towle, director of the Women Marines.

For their pioneer work in civic affairs, tribute was paid to Judge Edith Cockrill in recognition of her work with juvenile delinquents, Mrs. Joe Hume Gardner, in recognition of her work as national administrator of volunteer services of the American Red Cross, Mrs. John Allan Dougherty, who has assisted with the Thrift Shop, Mrs. Harvey Wiley for her activities on behalf of women's suffrage and equal rights, Mrs. Josephine Tighe Williams who has crusaded for social welfare, Mrs. George H. O'Conner for her work for the milk fund, and Miss Lydia Burklin for her work at Friendship House.

Visiting Defense Chiefs Feted At Round of Embasy Dinners

The French Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet entertained last evening for their compatriot, Paul Ramadier, and the Canadian Ambassador, Hume Wrong was host at a small stag dinner for the Hon. Brooke Claxton, Canada's Minister of Defense, who is a guest at the embassy during his stay here. With Mr. Claxton are the Chief of Staff of the Canadian Army, Lieut. Gen. Charles Foulkes, who is also chairman of the Canadian Chiefs of Staff Committee; Air Vice Marshal C. R. Dunlop, Commodore R. E. F. Bidwell, and Brig. J. D. B. Smith.

Netherlands' Minister of War, Willem F. Schokking, was honor guest at a dinner given last evening by the Netherlands Ambassador, Eelco van Kleffens, and Mme. van Kleffens. Also in the company of 22 were Major Gen. Pieter L. Doorman, head of the Netherlands delegation to Western Union Defense Organization, and Vice Admiral, Edzard J. van Holthe, Chief of the Netherlands Naval Staff.

Luncheon Honors Peruvian Visitor

Members of the Peruvian Embassy staff were hosts at luncheon yesterday at La Salle du Bois for Jorge Lazarte, Director of Roads and Railroads of Peru who is on a short trip to this country.

In the group were the Peruvian Minister German Aramburu; the Peruvian Commercial Counselor, German Fernandez Concha; Gen. Lacey V. Murrow, Hal H. Kelly, of the State Department; and Robert O. Swain, Executive Director of the International Roads Federation.

Senor Lazarte will leave today, with Senora de Lazarte, for New York to spend a few days before returning to Peru.

Cookbook Makes Debut at Gala Tea

By Lucia Brown

ALL dressed up in black and white with touches of red, the "Georgetown Cookbook" made its debut at a tea in the Parish Hall of historic old Christ Church yesterday.

Guests who gathered for the coming-out party included a lavish sprinkling of notables. Madame Henri Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador, was among those who poured coffee. She wore a lovely cafe au lait felt hat and a black tailleur. At the opposite end of the table Mrs. Davies Fitch poured tea, gowned in black satin with a fetching headdress of black veiling with white dots.

Mrs. Fred Vinson, wife of the Chief Justice, took her turn at the coffee table later in the afternoon. Others who poured were Mrs. Hugo Black, Mrs. Thurman Arnold, Mrs. Harold Phelps Stokes, Mrs. William McCracken, Mrs. C. Powell Minnigerode, Mrs. Ernest Mechlin and Miss Emily Matthews. Mrs. Drew Pearson was chairman for the group.

The cookbook thus auspiciously launched is issued by St. Stephen's Guild. Its mission in life is raising money for the 132-year-old Georgetown church. Between its covers are 300 choice recipes that reflect many years of fine fare in this oldest section of Washington.

Talk at yesterday's tea centered around Georgetown, old and new, and extra good dishes described in the book. It has many treasured old recipes, such as Mrs. Louis Mackall's "Chicken Terrapin" and Dr. Grafton Tyler's "Eggnog." But the cosmopolitan touch of today's Georgetown is also found . . . in A. Nelson Sayre's recipe for "Arroz de la Mendoza," for instance, or Edytha P. Porterfield's "East Indian Chicken Curry."

The books were selling like the proverbial hot cakes at yesterday's party. In fact, even before this formal launching, requests for them were tumbling in. Mrs. Robert C. King, who heads the cookbook committee, says they'll be available at bookstores, at Christ Church and through other Episcopal churches in this area.

ANOTHER PARTY of yesterday that gave a mouth-watering view of pleasures of the table was the luncheon at the Mayflower launching National Wine Week.

Representative Leroy Johnson of California was the speaker, gave us tips from our own native American wine country on how to serve various types. Tops in delectable combinations, he said, is fresh salmon served with beautiful vin rose. A wine tasting contest was a feature of the luncheon. Few of the guests could spot accurately such wines as Semillon and Pinot Noir, bearing out Mr. Johnson's statement that we're way behind the Europeans in our knowledge of this ancient and civilized beverage.

For Recreation of RAF

Beaker of Beer Prompted Decorative Lady Tedder To Found Malcolm Clubs

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

TALL, ash-blonde Lady Tedder, wife of the Marshal of the Royal Air Force, who has been visiting at Fort Myer with General and Mrs. Hoyt Vandenberg, is one of Britain's most efficient, high-powered businesswomen. Her organization, which she herself originated, is a series of 30 RAF recreational units called the Malcolm Clubs.

The original club was set up in wartime Algiers and named after the first RAF man to be awarded the Victoria Cross in the North African campaign. At the inception of the African campaign, before Lady Tedder's marriage to the Air Marshal, she worked for the United States as chief clerk in Natousa—North African Theater of Operations, U. S. A. At luncheon one very hot day, when offered red wine, Lady Tedder refused, saying she longed for a glass of beer. Sipping the beer, she exclaimed involuntarily, "what wouldn't the boys do for a glass of cold beer!" "The boys," of course, were RAF men who, she knew, had absolutely no recreational setup.

A Frenchman, at the same luncheon, was enthusiastic about her idea of starting an RAF club, and lent 250 pounds The first club, like its successors, was never and has never been subsidized. Today all profits of the restaurant and shop each unit contains are ploughed back again, the more affluent helping the less prosperous clubs out of financial harassments. The second Malcolm Club was started on D-Day in the Normandy Chateau from which Richard Couer de Lion launched his invasion.

Since the war, the need for the clubs has grown and their facilities are available to the airmen's families. Lady Tedder makes inspection tours from time to time, dropping in on far-flung clubs without previous notice—just to see that everything is getting along all right. The clubs are run by committees these days, the men making all policy and recreational decisions. Lady Tedder needs all kinds of magazines and books on technical subjects—most desperately. Any sent to her care of the Malcolm Clubs at 24 Cadogan Gardens, London SW 3, will be most gratefully accepted.

Vandenberg's Surgeon

DR. JOHN ALEXANDER who operated a few days ago on Senator Vandenberg's lung, stems from an old main line Philadelphia family, once suffered from tuberculosis, and set up in Ann Arbor because he could take life there more easily. He became a lung expert, perfected several new operating techniques in his line.

Some years ago, when the doctor was still a bachelor, friends remember with considerable amusement, his preoccupation was with an expensive Persian cat. Like many such beasties, the kitty tidied constantly, licking her long haired coat until a large, dangerous ball of fur had accumulated in her innards. The besetting problem then became—whether or not Dr. Alexander dared operate himself—or was the operation too difficult, his emotions too involved to successfully accomplish the necessary surgery? Should the cat be sent to a veterinarian who might not prove skillful enough for the task?

The question was pro-ed and con-ed for days amongst friends and acquaintances—until they went almost dotty. Then Dr. Alexander took his pet to the vet!

Crusers Announce Birth of Second Child

Lieut. Comdr. Handford Thornton Cruser, 3d, USN, and Mrs. Cruser, of Washington and Norfolk, Va., announce the birth of a son, Handford Thornton, 4th, their second child, on September 19 at Georgetown University Hospital. The baby will be christened at St. Stephen's Church this week. Mrs. Robert J. Heywang, of Montgomery, Ala., is godmother and Lieut. Comdr. Edward A. Slattery of San Juan, Puerto Rico, godfather.

Mrs. Cruser is the former Miss Marion E. Goucher of Washington.

Food, Shelter, Education Found World's Dire Need By AAUW's President

By Genevieve Reynolds and Nicha Soure

SHORTAGE of educational opportunities and lack of food and shelter are the most critical factors in the world today. This is the conviction of Dr. Althea K. Hottel, national president, the American Association of University Women.

The AAUW head bases her opinions on impressions gleaned from a round-the-world tour, including 12 capitals. She was one of several organization leaders to make the trip with the radio "Town Meeting of the Air" group.

"Mass illiteracy goes hand in hand with starvation and disease in countries like India and those of the Middle East," Dr. Hottel declared in a report to AAUW headquarters yesterday.

While in India she learned that two million people sleep in the streets of Calcutta; that millions of other homeless are milling in the streets of New Delhi and Karachi.

Dr. Hottel observed that disease, squalor, poor housing and illiteracy increased as she traveled east from Europe to Asia. "Education, along with wealth, is confined to a small group of the elite," she said, pointing out that the extreme between the rich and the poor allows for no great middle class.

Can't 'Enforce' Education

LACK of text books and school buildings plus a dearth of teachers prevents the true enforcement of compulsory education by governments indorsing it, according to the educational leader.

In the Holy Land she saw human beings as well as oxen used as farm animals. In fact, she discovered that most farming in the Middle East still is carried on as in Biblical days. This she attributed to extreme paucity of technical and scientific knowledge.

Dr. Hottel concludes that natural resources must be developed and conserved to provide for the tremendous populations.

"Social and economic problems are complicated by the displacement of persons all over the world," she warned. "There is danger in the insecurity involved in the mass psychology of millions of people without homes and specific footholds."

Everywhere Dr. Hottel went she found a great need for leadership. And while women are coming to the front in government and in the professions, she thinks too few are educated for leadership. However, she believes that the potential leadership of women is the great hope of her sex in Germany, Pakistan, India and Japan.

On her travels she met several women who had studied here on AAUW international grants. "Each one is very adequately putting her experiences into practical applications in the development of her home country," she commented.

Urge Women to Vote

START at the grass roots to promote greater citizen participation in government, the League of Women Voters was told yesterday.

Urge the voters to take part in the primaries as well as in local and national elections, was the advice of Miss Anna Lord Strauss, national president of the league, to the 77 official delegates from Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

The "tool" to aid the leagues throughout the country is a booklet, "What's the U. S. to You?" edited by Mrs. Babette Ransohoff and introduced at Tuesday's session of the first regional meeting of the league.

"Politics is everybody's business," says the booklet as it urges the voter to work for a better government through his own party. "The so-called 'independent voter' is in truth a dependent voter," the booklet continues. "On election day he can vote only for candidates chosen by those enrolled or registered in the party. If his choice is between two mediocre candidates, who is to blame?"

The latter half of the small pamphlet asks questions, but supplies no answers. Since the voting procedure differs with localities and States, the purpose of the league booklet is to stimulate interest in the voter to find his own answers.

A few of the questions are "Who are my State committeemen and committeewomen?" "If candidates are nominated by convention, how, where and when are my delegates selected or elected?" And "Do I help nominate the President of the United States?"

The league plans the widest possible distribution of the quiz booklet. In the Nation-wide campaign to educate the voter, the league will distribute the booklet to schools, dentists' offices, women's clubs, public officials and newspaper editors.

Dr. Mavis Mann, vice president of the West Virginia League of Women Voters and president of the Morgantown, W. Va., branch, summarized the conference at yesterday morning's session.

Judge Gallagher Honored

MEMBERS of the Women's Bar Association of the District of Columbia took time out yesterday to honor one of their own—Mrs. Nadine Lane Gallagher, Associate Justice of the Municipal Court. It was strictly a get-acquainted session for the 17 who gathered in the Carlton Hotel Grill for luncheon. Judge Gallagher was president of the association in 1943. Honoring judges this season will be a twice-monthly occasion for the local Portias.

On Today's Calendar

PETWORTH WOMAN'S CLUB will hold a business meeting and luncheon, noon, at the Petworth Methodist Church. TO HUSBANDS whose Wives are going through
"CHANGE OF LIFE"

No question about it! A woman going through "the change" is often a real problem. Nervous, tense . . . depressed one day, cranky the next . . . it's enough to drive a man almost crazy!

But take hope, Mister! If your wife is just a "bundle of nerves" because of functional upsets, tell her about Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Developed by a prominent doctor, this famous uterine sedative has been used by over 7 million women, often with remarkable results. Taken regularly, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription acts as a tonic to help build up resistance and calm jittery nerves. It may be just what your wife needs to make her feel "like herself" again.

Ask your druggist for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. 35 tablets, 50¢. Liquid, $1.

About Treatment for Basement Walls

What kind of paint can I use in a basement living room that has already been painted in white and is in a constant state of dripping and mildewing? The walls are of stone, plastered over. M. T.

When the inside plaster is applied directly to the outside masonry walls there is usually condensation because the walls are much cooler than the inside air. The only permanent way to correct the problem is to provide some insulation between the plaster and the outside wall. This can be done by replastering, the new plaster being on lath or furring strips. These should be at least 1 inch thick. Or, you could use insulating boards applied over furring or other insulation.

In the meantime, to reduce the amount of moisture on the walls, keep the moisture content of the inside air down by keeping the kitchen door closed when water is boiling and the bathroom door closed during shower taking.

In the summer, condensation can be reduced in basement rooms by keeping all windows shut to keep out warm summer air and by keeping the air circulating by use of a fan.

How much salt should be added to water in which a silk print is washed to prevent running of colors? M. W.

Textile experts seem to agree that soaking fabrics in salt water or adding salt to the washing water has no effect whatever on the fastness of the colors. The most you can do to prevent running colors is to wash the dress quickly in lukewarm water with a mild soap. Rinse thoroughly and dry as rapidly as possible. If the dress must be dried indoors, turn a fan on it to hasten the process. Since you are doubtful about the dress' washability, I suggest you snip a piece from an inside seam and try that. If it fades, it would be better to have the dress dry cleaned.

Mildew has recently attacked a number of my white damask dinner napkins. I have tried no remedy lest I "set" the stain. Do you know of any method of removing mildew stain? E. B. P.

As you may know, mildew cannot always be completely removed because it eats right into the fibers. However, if the stain is not too extensive you might be able to remove it by soaking the napkins in a household bleach. Use a cup of bleach to a gallon of water, let soak 20 minutes and rinse three times.

If this doesn't do the trick, try a color remover product sold where dyes are sold. Follow the directions which come with the product you buy.

How can ink stains be removed from maple furniture? Is there any way of refinishing scratched and scuffed maple furniture? M. W.

If the stains have penetrated the wood, the only way to completely remove them is to sand or bleach them away. This, of course, would mean a complete refinishing job. If the finish has prevented the ink from soaking into the wood, you may be able to remove it by rubbing the spot with pumice and oil. Rub with the grain of the wood. When the stain is removed, clean the wood with just the oil and polish the entire surface with a good furniture polish.

To completely refinish scratched maple furniture all of the present finish must be removed and a new finish applied. However, the appearance of the pieces can be improved by giving them a good waxing with a maple-stained wax to cover up surface scratches. Wax in furniture wood colors is made by an auto wax company and can be purchased at auto supply stores.

Socratic Method of Teaching Discussed at Library Meeting

The District Public Library last night introduced the Socratic method of teaching to some 50 potential discussion leaders at the Southwest Branch to begin a course in cooperation with the Great Books Foundation of Chicago and New York.

The topic up for discussion was "The Declaration of Independence."

Gordon Dupee, eastern regional representative of the foundation, and John T. Cheney, director of the reading group for the District Library system, acted as co-seminar leaders.

Are men really created equal? What are unalienable r i g h t s? When is it the right of people to alter or abolish an established form of government? Or just what does 'self-evident" mean?

By such questions as these, and a number arising in the normal course of discussion, the individuals expressed and defended their positions with much animation.

And that is the method which the Greek philosopher developed many centuries ago.

These discussion groups aren't new to the library. More than 400 persons participated in the programs last year. This course, however, is the first move in greatly enlarging their scope.

The series of eight two-hour sessions will continue through November 23 on each Wednesday night. Notables listed for future thought are: Plato, Aristotle, Thucydides, St. Thomas, Machiavelli, Shakespeare and Marx.

SEC Assailed, Defended at Tucker Trial

Chicago, Oct. 5 (AP).—The Securities and Exchange Commission was described both as the villain and the hero today as the mail fraud trial of eight Tucker Corporation officials shifted into second gear.

Otto Kerner, jr., U. S. district attorney, declared the Government intends to prove that Preston Tucker and the other promoters of the rear-engine auto firm "obtained money by means of untrue statements of material facts and that the defendants conspired to violate the laws of the United States."

Kerner said SEC investigations had uncovered "misuse of the funds of the corporation" and "false and misleading advertisements."

Then the Federal court jury of six men and six women heard Attorney Frank J. McAdams, give the defense view that, despite "innumerable obstacles," the "whole enterprise missed by only a few weeks attaining mass production."

McAdams said the black month for the Tucker Corp. was June, 1948, when the SEC announced it had begun a full investigation.

"That very same day the War Assets Administration rejected the Tucker Corp.'s bid for a steel blast furnace. The SEC investigation destroyed all credit of the corporation," McAdams said.

The defense attorney declared acts of former and present Tucker officials on trial were all "in good faith" and statements in the firm's advertising "were and are true."

One Embassy Picket Jailed, Eleven Fined

One woman was jailed and 10 men paid fines of $25 each yesterday after they pleaded guilty to a charge of illegally picketing the French Embassy in protesting the trial of Garry Davis, the "world citizen," in France.

A twelth protester, David Dellinger, 34, of Glen Gardner, N. J., paid a $25 fine for disorderly conduct. He lay down on the sidewalk and refused to move.

The defendants were members of the War Resisters' League, the Fellowship of Reconciliation and the Peacemakers.

Woman Prefers Jail

The woman jailed was Miss Winifred K. Rawlins, 49, of New York City. Through her attorney, Carl Berueffy, she said that she felt payment of fines was a privilege afforded the rich, and that she believed in voluntary poverty. Her term is 30 days.

The group through the Rev. Abraham J. Muste, 64, said they felt they did no moral wrong.

"We were merely expressing a deep conviction that we had to be in deep sympathy and solidarity with Garry Davis," he explained.

To Gain Attention

Judge Thomas D. Quinn said they admittedly had come to Washington and picketed to gain attention, and must pay for violating picketing regulations. They should not have chosen the front of the French Embassy for this, he said.

"Sometimes there is an inner compulsion to be a certain place," the clergyman replied.

Garry Davis, who gave up his rights as an American to become a "world citizen," was convicted in Paris of being in France without proper credentials. He drew an eight-day jail term, but was freed because he had been in jail that long pending trial.

Retired Pastor And Wife Feted on Golden Wedding

Members of Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and H sts. nw., yesterday honored the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. William S. Abernathy at a reception marking their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

Dr. Abernathy retired in 1941 after 20 years as pastor of the church. His wife was for 20 years teacher of the Burrall Bible Class for women, one of the largest in the city.

The Rev. Dr. Clarence W. Cranford, who succeeded Dr. Abernathy to the pastorate of the church, presented the couple with a Bible and a gift of money from church members and the Burrall class. Congratulatory letters to the Abernathys were read by the Rev. Idris W. Jones, assistant pastor.

Dr. Abernathy, during his 40 years in the Baptist ministry, held pastorates in Kansas City, Mo., and Chicago before coming here. He is a former president of the Washington Federation of Churches, the Northern Baptist Convention and the Washington Ministerial Union.

Joseph Barnes Speaker At Forum in Bethesda

Joseph Barnes, editor-in-chief of the New York Star, will speak at 8:15 p. m. next Wednesday at the first of seven Montgomery County forums to be held at Montgomery Junior College in Bethesda.

Barnes, a former deputy director of the overseas branch of the Office of War Information, will discuss "The Future of World Freedom." He assisted General Eisenhower in editing war experiences, and now is working with Admiral Leahy on a book soon to be released.

The lecture series, planned for students of the college, has been opened to the public on a season basis with tickets on sale at the college at $3.60 for adults, and $2.40 for students.

Involuntary Strip By Farmer Edward Is No Tease Act

Nauvoo, Ill., Oct. 5 (AP).—Most everything being automatic these days it's not surprising that farmer Leon Edwards recently discovered—to his embarrassment—an automatic disrober.

He was operating a combine and stepped on the power takeoff, snagging his clothes.

When he picked himself off the ground, unhurt, he was wearing only a shirt collar, a wrist band from his coat and a shoulder strap from his undershirt.

AUCTION SALES 8

THOS. J. OWEN & SON, Auctioneers
433 Southern Building

TRUSTEES' SALE OF THREE VALUABLE ROW BRICK DWELLINGS KNOWN AS PREMISES 807-809-811 DIXON COURT, SOUTHWEST.

By virtue of a certain deed of trust duly recorded, in Liber No. 8943, Folio 296 et seq., of the land records of the District of Columbia, and at the request of the party secured thereby, the undersigned trustees will sell, at public auction, in front of the premises, on FRIDAY, THE FOURTEENTH DAY OF OCTOBER, A. D. 1949, AT TWO-THIRTY O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described land and premises, situate in the District of Columbia, and designated as and being Lots 120, 121 and 122 in Philip N. Dwyer and Grata Van Rensselaer's subdivision of original Lot 19 in Square 541, as per plat recorded in Liber 14 at folio 34, in the Office of the Surveyor for the District of Columbia; subject to the right of way over the West 3 feet of said lots; and to the reservation affecting the East 4 feet of said lots, as set forth in Deed recorded in Liber 1170 at folio 144, among the Land Records of the District of Columbia.

TERMS OF SALE: Each property to be sold separately for all cash. A deposit of $250.00 will be required at time of sale on each property. All conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps, etc., at cost of purchaser. Terms of sale to be complied with within 30 days from day of sale, otherwise the trustees reserve the right to resell the property at the risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C.

Deserter Gets 10 Years in 'Amnesia' Case

New York, Oct. 5 (U.P.).—Anthony Martino, 40, who told the Army that amnesia caused him to leave the infantry in France in 1944 only to "awaken" five years later, was sentenced to 10 years at hard labor today for wartime desertion.

A five-man Army court martial split four to one in finding the rifleman, once declared dead, guilty.

On his return, Martino ignored his wife, Mary, and two children living in Waterbury, Conn. He made a new home with blond Dorothy Kelley, and a son was born to them. Last May, Martino went to authorities with a story of just remembering his Army service and his family in Connecticut.

Testimony of an Army buddy spoiled his amnesia plea. Pvt. Charles Caswell, serving a five-year term for desertion, said he and Martino connived to leave a replacement center in France and made their way back to the United States.

Capt. Marvin E. Perkins of Walter Reed Hospital in Washington testified for the defense today that he believed Martino to be a victim of psychiatric "behavior disorders."

But the court martial found Martino knew what he was doing.

Farmhand's Condition Serious After Stabbing

Harvey Ferguson, 42, itinerant farm hand, of Melwood, Md., was in serious condition at Gallinger Hospital last night with a knife wound in his back.

Police said Ferguson was stabbed with a paring knife Tuesday night at his home. Police last night were questioning a suspect.

The Lyons Den

LUNCH with the MacArthurs.—He entered the drawing-room of the American Embassy in Tokyo, said "Hello, Jeannie" in greeting to his lovely, charming wife, then rushed to embrace her. He was introduced and shook hands with each visitor, then asked: "Got any food, Jeannie?" and we sat down to lunch.

His hair, craftily combed to cover the baldness, is brown without a trace of gray. "The General never has applied any dye to it," one of his aides assured me. "His father never had any gray hair. It runs in the family" . . . One of the guests asked a leading question, and General MacArthur began. If a census of the world were taken today, he said, it would show 99 percent against war. As proof of the universal desire for peace, he cited the fact that incidents of today, had they happened 50 years ago, would have brought war. He illustrated the futility of a next war by telling of the time John L. Sullivan refereed a prizefight on which there had been heavy betting—and Sullivan's decision was: "They both lose!"

"I'll go back home whenever the general decides to go," said Mrs. MacArthur. "Yes," sometimes I get an urge to return—but only to do some shopping. Would the general like to go home now? Perhaps—only to watch me shopping" . . . She gets her size 10 clothes from the States. "Kind friends send them to me," she said . . . She never has kept a diary . . . She pointed to the silver plates on the table, and the initialed engraving. The silverware were the only MacArthur possessions they found when they returned to Manila . . . The silver box from which cigarettes were served was inscribed: "From an Australian."

My son was 4 when Corregidor was attacked," said Mrs. MacArthur. "If he had to be there, then 4 was the right age—if he were older he would have been frightened by it, and if he were younger, he would have been affected by it forever." She mentioned the fact that Arthur has never been to the States, and told of the time they were visited by Gen. Robert Wood, head of Sears, Roebuck. General Wood gave the boy a Sears, Roebuck catalogue and invited him to select anything he wanted—and that it would be his. Arthur studied the catalogue, and chose what to him was a rare luxury—a box of straws.

The luncheon was over and the MacArthurs shook hands with each departing guest. "Admiral Halsey asked me to convey his greetings to you, General," was the message I delivered . . . "Bull Halsey?" MacArthur smiled. "Tell him he's absent without leave."

Earthquake In Maine Does Little Damage

Augusta, Me., Oct. 5 (U.P.).—Only slight damage and no injuries were reported today in the wake of one of the most severe earthquakes to occur in northern New England in several years.

The temblor, which started at 9:45 p. m. (EST) and lasted about seven minutes, was felt in widely scattered sections covering a 100 square mile area.

Most residents in the Farmington-Augusta section, where the disturbance apparently was centered, didn't realize immediately that an earthquake had occurred. Many went to their cellars, believing that hot water boilers or furnaces had exploded.

Honesty About Unpleasant Things

It's easy to be honest with children about pleasant things. We're happy to tell them of treats that lie ahead or of good things that are just around the corner. It's harder, though, to be honest when we know they may be in for some unpleasantness.

If the doctor has prescribed some nasty-tasting medicine, we are likely to evade the answer to the child's question, "Does it taste bad?" If we know that the dentist's treatment is going to hurt, we may sidestep again or deliberately misinform.

Most children appreciate frankness and honesty. If they are told in a matter-of-fact way that medical attention is going to be unpleasant but that the pain won't last too long, their response is more positive than if they feel they have been deliberately misled.

In other things than physical discomfort, too, honesty is the best policy with children. A teacher may be an unpleasant sort of person. A parent does better to talk over this and discuss some of the reasons that may cause her to be this way than to act as though teachers couldn't be anything but nice people.

One might use many other examples. Our children can face unpleasantness and deal with it if we help them by being entirely honest and direct in our interpretations.

What's the Verdict

CORPORATE LIFE

Q. The X corporation's charter was limited to 30 years. It had an exclusive franchise to operate a toll bridge during its life. Because of poor management it got into financial trouble, and Y corporation was formed expressly to take over the property of the old one, and referring to the charter of X corporation for its powers, duties, etc., but saying that it intended to operate "in perpetual succession" to X corporation. At the end of 30 years, another company wants to operate a toll bridge nearby, and Y corporation insists the "perpetual succession" phase in its charter, granted by the State, gives it exclusive right to operate a toll bridge as long as it wishes. Correct?

A. A corporation is a special kind of creature given life by the State. Because it has advantages over natural persons, and because it is given existence by the State, any dispute over the meaning of language in its charter usually is construed in the way deemed most beneficial to the public welfare. Here, the fact that Y corporation took over the functions of X corporation, and referred to X's charter for its own criteria, leads to the conclusion its life would be co-terminous with the life of X, and the words "perpetual succession" would have no effect.—F. BARNABY

So the Chamber of Commerce thinks we should try to bring the Truth or Mayhem Halloween broadcast here to our town?
Yes. They've asked the Ladies Club to send in letters about the old Jackson place.
That ramshackle old structure would make a good haunted house at that—
I'll describe the desolate appearance. Funny—The top's gone off this. . .
Gloomy old mansion. . .Eerie lights. . . And we positively guarantee the personal appearance of a famous ghost. Hand me that Flabbergasties box-top, Barnaby. . .
How will Gus the Ghost feel about all this, Mr. O'Malley?

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Could you please mention in your column that Mrs. Francis Hammond, care of the Home for Incurables, 3720 Upton st. nw., has a fine selection of Christmas cards and cards for all occasions?

She is a very young widow, confined to a wheelchair as a result of an injury received while diving in a shallow pool of water.

She is trying so hard to support herself and her young son. So I do hope you can mention that she has such a complete selection of cards, and can be reached at the above address.

Mrs. Harry T. Sniffin,
4105 Wisconsin ave. nw.,
Secretary, Gray Ladies.

Dear Mrs. Sniffin:

Sorry, but it's strictly against the rules to publish pleas like this. However, if I hear of anybody who needs greeting cards, I'll sure tell them about Mrs. Hammond. Bill.

Drinking Tops Accident List, Councils Reports

Chicago (U.P.).—Drinking usually leads to a traffic accident, the National Safety Council said and came up with these figures to prove the point:

One out of six drivers involved in a fatal accident last year had been drinking.

One out every four pedestrians killed had "had a few."

One out of every eight drivers violating traffic laws had imbibed.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

'Grandstand Play' on Ford Pact

By Drew Pearson

The inside story of the Ford-United Auto Worker agreement on pensions was that it could have been settled exactly one week earlier—except for one thing. Walter Reuther didn't want it settled too easily.

Reuther

On Friday, September 23, the red-headed chief of the United Auto Workers suddenly broke off his negotiations. Both sides had been pretty much in agreement. Everything was going well. But suddenly Reuther told John Bugas, chief negotiator for Henry Ford:

"I can't come to an agreement without first threatening you with a strike."

So negotiations were broken off. Strike news flared in the headlines. A strike deadline was even issued for midnight, Thursday, September 29. Henry Ford had been entirely willing to give the auto workers an old-age pension of $100 a month, including Government pensions, but the wily Walter Reuther wanted to sell his union on the idea that he was winning a tough victory.

Note—When the strike deadline rolled around on September 29, the agreement provided for almost the same terms as were discussed on Friday, September 23. But the intervening strike hullaballoo had helped Reuther cement his hold on the union, though disrupting relations between the union and the Ford company.

Joe Ball Becomes Lobbyist

Nobody much has heard of Minnesota's Senator Joe Ball since he was defeated last year. At first Joe toyed with the idea of becoming a newspaper columnist—almost a tougher racket than being a Senator. But that didn't seem to pan out, so now Joe, after some unhappy months of indecision, has turned up as a lobbyist.

Joe's job is quite a modest one when you consider his once-high place in GOP counsels, and when you consider that some lobbyists rake down about 50 grand. For the former Senator from Minnesota is drawing only around $8000 as the lobbyist for the Association of American Shipowners.

These are the shipowners who don't get Government subsidies, and part of Joe's job is to see that they do get them. If you recall how vigorously Joe fought against so-called "statism" when he was in the Senate, you can get some idea how distasteful this lobbying is going to be—also how broke Joe must have been to take it.

However, Joe's bosses, the unsubsidized shipowners, have pulled a neat trick, which should materially lessen his work. In fact, it's one of the neatest tricks ever pulled in a town that has seen all sorts of lobbying tricks. For they managed to put their former lobbyist, Lynne Mote, in as assistant counsel of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee.

Embarassing Questions

Mote, who once received $8000 as a lobbyist for the shipowners, now receives $8800 from the congressional committee that writes the legislation the shipowners want passed.

A bill—H. R. 5346—is now before Congress that would greatly expand Government subsidies and grant shipowners more favorable tax depreciation. Lynn E. Mote, as lobbyist for the shipowners, helped with this bill. Now that the bill is before the House Merchant Marine Committee, Mote, as counsel for that committee, will advise on passing that bill.

Big Business Masquerades

It looks like big business is now being disguised in sheep's clothing. At least, that's what tireless Congressman Wright Patman of Texas has discovered about two organizations supposed to champion small business though actually receiving support from big business.

They are the "Small Business Economic Foundation" and the "National Small Businessmen's Association." And when you look up their contributors, you find among them such small and struggling firms as the U. S. Steel Corp. and Standard Oil of New Jersey.

Another struggling little company that contributes to these small business lobbying groups is American Rolling Mill. Then there is another very small outfit that most people never even heard of named the Chrysler Motor Corp., together with Sears Roebuck, and a "very small" steel company called Republic Steel.

Total receipts of the Small Business Economic Foundation in 1948 were $60,931, and Congressman Patman, interested in ascertaining how much money came from big business masquerading as little business has called De Witt Emery, president of the outfit, as a witness to find out.

Note—Most indefatigable defenders of small business in Washington are Congressman Patman and George Meredith, former counsel of the Senate Small Business Committee.
